

ATLANTA UNITES WITH NATION TODAY IN OBSERVING ABUNDANT THANKSGIVING

President Will Lead Country in Celebration; Million Bargains Await Shoppers Tomorrow

Stores Packed With Goods for Greatest Sale

Prices Slashed for Big Event; Lots of Things Are Free.

Atlanta tomorrow will be the city of a million bargains. Big store and little shop, all over town, are joining hands to play host to all of Georgia at the third and biggest After-Thanksgiving Sale ever held here—launching the Christmas shopping season with a bang while shelves are crowded with new goods fresh from the factories.

Prices will be slashed—for the period of this sale only—as the best way Atlanta merchants know of saying "Thank You" and "Merry Christmas" to the friends who have brought them patronage throughout a greatly successful year.

And here's more good news. In many stores, the November books are closed. At these stores purchases made on a charge account tomorrow will appear on your December statement.

The full story of the great sale is told on the inside pages of this paper—the biggest The Constitution has printed on a week-day in years. It tells in minute detail what each firm is featuring, and what the prices are. By studying carefully it will be an easy task to make up a shopping list—of things you want to give as Christmas presents, of things you want for yourself.

Free Rides to Town.
The big sales day brings an additional thrill because there are lots of things that will be free—free rides on street cars, buses and shoppers' buses at certain hours, round-trip taxi rides for one fare, courtesy of the Black and White and Yellow Cab company, between the hours of 9 and 4, and free trickets to the theaters.

The out-of-town folks get these same things, too, if they abide by the same rules laid down for Atlantans—but they get an extra break. They get free meals at downtown restaurants.

And how, you may ask, may these free things be obtained? Just read this, carefully.

Anybody can board a street car or trolley bus, or shoppers' bus, between 9 and 10 o'clock tomorrow morning anywhere OUTSIDE the business district, and come down town absolutely free—guests of the Georgia Power company, The Constitution, and the merchants. And outside the business district means anywhere outside an area bounded by Baker street, Courtland street, Washington street, Mitchell street and Spring street.

Those who ride the Suburban

FOR OUR MANY BLESSINGS WE THANK THEE, O LORD!

Framed against a Gothic background of unshattered glass, these little ones turn their eyes devoutly heavenward in Thanksgiving. In one spot, at least, on this flame-engirdled earth, there is still real cause for observance of Thanksgiving Day. The people of one nation are unified—unified at once in the desire for peace, and the firm determination to protect that peace. Yes, her people are unified, her churches still stand. Therein lies cause for

Churches To Hold Special Program Throughout Holiday

Hymns of Thanksgiving will sound in Atlanta churches and homes, and throughout the nation today, intermixed with devout prayers in gratitude for peace and hope that America can continue to live without war coming to her shores.

On the less somber side of the American observance was the cheerful picture of many American tables, more heavily laden than in many years with turkey and other traditional Thanksgiving delicacies.

Of the 48 states, 32 will observe Thanksgiving today with the President leading the celebration.

Day Observed By 32 States

By The Associated Press.
Somber thoughts of tragic happenings in other lands today permeated a Thanksgiving holiday peculiarly devoted to gratitude that America, herself, is at peace.
"In a year which has seen calamity and sorrow fall upon many peoples elsewhere in the world, may we give thanks for our preservation," President Roosevelt said in his annual proclamation—and that inevitably provided the theme of the day's countless offerings of prayer.

Sticklers for Tradition.
The day was observed officially, however, in but 32 of the 48 states, for again this year Mr. Roosevelt ignored the traditional last-Thursday-in-November date and set the holiday for the next-to-last. In 16 states—including four of the Solid South—sticklers for tradition held out for the 28th.

So with some overlapping in states which will observe both dates in some form or another, the 16 will celebrate next week. The states are: Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Kansas, Iowa, Massachusetts, Maine, Nevada, Oklahoma, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee and Vermont.

Roosevelt Observance.
President Roosevelt planned to observe the day quietly at Hyde Park, N. Y., with church services in the morning and a family dinner later with Mrs. Roosevelt and his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt.

A similar schedule was planned for families the country over, but in many instances with the addition of football games and other sports diversions in the afternoon.

The controversy over the date caused unusual mixed programs in some states. In Massachusetts, the home of Thanksgiving Day, for instance, the holiday will be observed officially on the 28th, but today nevertheless is a bank holiday, and colleges, the Boston Stock Exchange and some business houses will be closed on both dates. Maine will have a full holiday on the 28th with a court and bank holiday today. The same is true in a number of states.

Last year, when the week-ahead-of-time Thanksgiving date was first proposed by the President—to give retail merchants a longer and more prosperous Christmas sales period—26 states did not conform.

500 All-Steel Cars Ordered by Seaboard
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Seaboard Railway placed orders for 500 all-steel freight cars today with the Bessemer, Ala., plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co. Unofficial estimates placed the sum involved at $1,500,000.
The cars, of 50-ton capacity, will be delivered in 1941.

Atlanta Needy To Get Food

Hymns, prayers and sermons will mark the observance of Thanksgiving in numerous Atlanta churches today as all Georgia gives thanks for the abundant American way of life.

In some churches dawn will be greeted with Thanksgiving hymns, "O Worship the King" and "God of Our Fathers," while in others feasts, symbolizing peace and plenty, will be part of the day's services.

Hundreds of needy families will be given Thanksgiving dinners, ranging from elaborate baskets filled with turkey to good but plain canned foods. Schools, civic organizations, churches and individuals have been planning for weeks to share their plenty with the poor of the city.

Schools To Close.
All public and private schools will be closed today and tomorrow, and federal, state, county and municipal offices will close today, as will private business concerns. The draft board offices also will be closed today.

The outstanding sports event of the day will be the annual charity football game between the Georgia and Georgia Tech freshmen at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Grant field. All proceeds will be given to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

As the Thanksgiving theme in the churches is stressed, many ministers will discuss the significance of the American holiday when most of the countries in the world are at war.

Services Held.
Some of the churches, on the eve of the holiday, held impressive services last night. In Capitol View Baptist, Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian churches held a community service in the Capitol View Methodist church, with the church choir rendering the music and Dr. R. S. Hough, pastor of the Capitol View Presbyterian church, delivering the sermon on Thanksgiving. In the First Christian church a Thanksgiving dinner was served and

Ruling Places Viaduct Keep Upon Railroads

Test Case by City Will Affect $8,000,000 in Properties.

The Atlanta city government may be relieved of future expense of rebuilding, repairing or maintaining 14 major viaducts crossing railway rights-of-way costing approximately $8,000,000 and that liability may fall on the railroads themselves as a result of an opinion yesterday by Assistant City Attorney Frank Hooper.

It appeared yesterday that a test case probably will be made if the city's attempt to force the Western & Atlantic, the Southern and the N. C. & St. L. railroads to stand the expense of rebuilding the Jones avenue bridge, and that the outcome of the projected litigation may establish a precedent for similar actions. Judge Hooper's opinion was given in connection with the Jones avenue project.

City council last Monday instructed Chief of Construction Clarke Donaldson to notify the three railroads to rebuild the Jones Avenue bridge, and included in the resolution citations from sections 337 and 338 of the city code of 1924, which refer to charter amendments authorizing council to force the railroads to rebuild at their own expense viaducts crossing their tracks.

Mayor Hartsfield has approved the ordinance, and Judge Hooper has prepared the formal notification, which Donaldson will serve. In the event the railroads do not agree to rebuild the bridge, the city contends it has the right to do so and to levy on railroad property just as city levies are made against other debtors.

One clause in section 338 recites, however, that the railroads are not responsible for construction of bridges except when a street was already in existence before the railroad obtained its right of way.

It was regarded as a certainty yesterday that the roads will resist the city's effort to force them to rebuild the Jones avenue project at an estimated cost of $62,190. The action will not be so much to prevent making that outlay, but to establish a precedent as a guide in other probable actions, it was said.

It was pointed out that the

110 Tons of Newsprint Used In Your Today's Constitution

Here are a few statistics on The Constitution's 80-page Thanksgiving edition:

At least 150 rolls of paper averaging 1,450 pounds each, were used. This is total of approximately 110 tons of paper.

The total columns of the edition, if run end to end, amount to 172,000,000 feet. This is, roughly, more than 32,500 miles—or nearly more than 8,000 miles greater than the equatorial circumference of the earth, which is 24,902 miles.

Each paper weighs approximately one and a third pounds. There were 10,500 pounds of ink used in printing the edition, a total of 21 drums containing 500 pounds of ink each.

Peters street, Mitchell street, Forsyth street, two Whitehall street, Fryor street, Central avenue, Washington street, Nelson street, Edgewood avenue, Magnolia street, Peachtree street and the Virginia avenue bridges probably would be in the same legal status as is the Jones avenue project, and that decision against the roads in the Jones avenue matter probably would entail large future outlays.

Although Judge Hooper declined to comment on what effect the Jones avenue effort might have on future viaduct construction, he admitted it might establish a precedent.

His only statement was: "We have decided to serve the notice in this instance to preserve the city's rights in the event the railroads have to pay the bill."

Donaldson asked Lloyd A. Walker, city purchasing agent, to advertise immediately for bids for rebuilding the Jones avenue project, and said that whatever the outcome of the controversy about how the new structure is, the viaduct should be placed into use again as quickly as possible.

The Georgia Power Company, which pays $400 annually to the city for the use of the bridge for street car lines, has offered to lend the city the needed sums to rebuild it immediately.

Council also has authorized the power company to construct a single track line over the condemned structure so that traction service may be maintained during the reconstruction. This will be in service in about two weeks, Donaldson announced.

Only the huge Spring street viaduct appeared exempted from the city contentions. This was because no recognized thoroughfare existed before the viaduct itself was erected.

Donaldson expressed concern that a decision favorable to the city might react in future years to prevent construction of additional bridges to meet needs of the city's growing traffic congestion, but refused to amplify.

Hungary Stops Paying Foreign Debt Interest

Exports Slump Given as Reason; Owes U. S. 45 Million.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Hungary has stopped the transfer of interest payments on its foreign debts, it was announced today, because of a sharp curtailment of the nation's exports for free currency. The suspension became effective October 15.

Export trade, it was stated, has been seriously affected by the war, the more so since the spread of the conflict to the Mediterranean.

Foreign banking circles in Wall Street estimated that Hungarian loans with a face value of $45,000,000 to $50,000,000 are outstanding in this country.

For several years holders of the Hungarian dollar bonds have been receiving only partial adjustment interest, in some cases at the rate of 1½ per cent or 1¼ per cent annually, or more than 50 per cent less than the coupon rates.

HUNGARY TO MEET WAR DEBT INSTALLMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A legation spokesman said today that Hungary's suspension of interest payments on foreign debts did not apply to its war debt, of which $2,000,000 is still outstanding, and that the December 15 installment of $10,000 would be paid to the treasury on schedule.

It also was learned that negotiations are in progress here looking toward continuance of payments on a moderate scale on all Hungarian bonds held in this country.

Lost Pilot Safe; Another Is Sighted

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 20.—(UP)—One of five Canadian Royal Air Force fliers who were forced to jump from their plane Saturday was safe at a lumber camp tonight and a rescue party was pushing its way through the tangled wilderness to reach another flier sighted this afternoon. The first to reach safety was Pilot U. J. H. Le Blanc, who made his way to a camp near East Lake, Que.

The five fliers parachuted from their bombers when their gasoline gave out in a snow storm. It was believed a high wind carried some of them across the border into Maine. A searching plane sighted the second survivor in Maine territory. He waved to the pilot.

No news of the other three fliers was heard and woodsmen said unless they were armed and warmly clothed they would suffer severely from exposure and lack of food.

Livingston Urges Aliens To Register

Postmaster Lon Livingston has urged Atlanta aliens to register immediately at the old post office building, warning the deadline is December 26.

Through Monday Livingston said a total of 1,618 aliens had fulfilled the registration requirements, but that there were still about 500 who had not complied with the federal law.

"Our Christmas rush will soon be on and I would like to get everyone registered as soon as possible to prevent so much confusion during the holiday season," Livingston explained.

Under the law all aliens 14 years of age and over must register. He warned that violators were subject to a $1,000 fine and a jail sentence.

Unlimited Time Permit Given Albany Station

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today modified the construction permit of the Herald Publishing Company for a new radio station at Albany, Ga., to permit the station to operate on an unlimited time basis.

The original construction permit authorized the station, which officials said had not yet started operation, to operate on a frequency 1230 kilocycles, with power of one kilowatt, daytime only. As amended by the commission today, the permit authorizes the station to operate on 1530 kilocycles, with power of one kilowatt, unlimited time.

Experts Differ On Home Costs In Glover Case

Trial Suspended by Underwood Until Monday Morning.

Trial of J. G. (Bugs) Glover on charges of defrauding the state out of approximately $10,000 through the construction of wardens' houses on his land in three Georgia counties was suspended until Monday yesterday by Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood after P. T. Flagler, Atlanta construction engineer, gave his estimates of the cost of the three homes.

Judge Underwood ordered the jurors to report back at 10 o'clock

Monday morning. Defense attorneys predicted the greater part of next week would be required to complete the trial.

Estimates Differ. Flagler's estimates were considerably lower than those of Joseph S. Shaw, who also appraised the houses and who was a government witness.

Flagler estimated the house on Glover's land in Dawson county cost $1,505.80, while Shaw had valued it at $3,929. The defense witness placed the cost of the Dade county house at $1,266.54, and the Miller county house at $1,029.50.

Shaw had said the Dade county dwelling was worth $3,319, not including a $1,675 power plant.

Flagler said a warden's house in Lanier county was erected at an estimated cost of $1,129.54, and one in Spertown for $932.95.

Alters Statement. Flagler first testified he was basing his estimates entirely on the use of convict labor in construction, but later altered this statement by saying he had made a "small allowance" for free labor which he could not isolate.

In cross-examination, District Attorney Lawrence Camp attempted to show that Flagler had not included some items in his estimates and that the cost of lumber was greater than that listed by the construction expert.

Flagler testified that he expected to get approximately $25 per day for his work in appraising the houses.

In reply to a question by Camp, Flagler said Glover accompanied him on the inspection trips.

Georgia Leads In Tree Planting

Georgia took first place among states in the distribution of forest planting stock from state nurseries for the calendar year 1939, the Georgia division of forestry reported yesterday.

Figures compiled by the United States Forest Service give Georgia state nurseries credit for the distribution of 10,552,352 seedlings to farmers of the state. This figure does not include 1,366,100 seedlings distributed to naval stores operators and other landowners not classified as farmers.

Georgia accounted for more than one-sixth of the total trees planted out of 64,000,000 seedlings distributed to farmers in the 41 states and two territories operating forest tree nurseries. South Carolina came second.

Former Atlantan To Begin Work Soon Under New Contract.

Diminutive Barbara Clark, 19-year-old former Atlantan, who went to New York two years ago to dance on Broadway and wound up in Hollywood playing dramatic roles, came home yesterday for a few days' rest before beginning work with Warner Brothers, where she has a new contract.

Miss Clark, shapely blue-eyed blonde, who is five feet three and weighs 108 pounds, donned a nifty pink slacks suit, a la Hollywood—she says she only wears slacks or evening dresses in the cinema city—and talked about her ambitions. "The one thing I really want is a swimming pool, and, of course, a house to go along with it," she said. Declaring that romance doesn't interest her, she fondly fingered some endearing telegrams from one of her Hollywood admirers, and wears a diamond on her engagement finger.

"But that's just a friendship ring," she insisted. "I get up at five o'clock, usually work till five at night and have to study dramatics besides." The starlet said that her career comes first in her life.

In Atlanta she attended Girls High school, and she finished her education at the Julia Richmond school in New York, where her grandparents, Judge and Mrs. E. L. Clark, live. He is judge of the children's court in New York.

After finishing school she danced at the Paradise Restaurant and Roxy Theater in New York before moving west. Her contract has just been renewed after completing work in "Wagon Wheels Roll at Night," "Mexican Spitfire Out West," "Love Thy Neighbor," and "Too Many Girls."

1st Draft Quota Assigning Set For Tomorrow

Many Volunteers Expected To Be in Army in Fortnight.

The first draft quotas to be assigned in Georgia and which will be made up of volunteers will be issued to local boards throughout the state tomorrow, but in all probability no board will be called upon to furnish more than three or four men.

The December quota of 412 men will be filled by registrants who have signed voluntary induction applications. They will be sent to induction centers during the first week of next month, so that many of them will be in the Army within 15 days from this morning.

Some local boards have informed state headquarters that they are planning to skip the first draft call, and retain their volunteer list until subsequent calls are made. This is permissible, it was said, because only those men who are particularly anxious to begin service immediately will be accepted at this time.

Local boards who send men now will be credited accordingly against their gross quota for next year. Local boards who pass the first call will have to make up their proportion of the call next year.

Adjutant General Marion Williamson also called attention to the fact that the Selective Service system must administer the law and not enforce it. He said this in connection with charges that registrants were attempting to evade the draft by giving false addresses.

While not denying that this had been done in a few cases, Williamson said "Many of the alleged violations that have come before the attention of local boards will prove to be unfounded." He urged that cases not be turned over to authorities "unless there is reasonable certainty that a violation has been committed."

General Williamson also declared the underlying philosophy of Selective Service to be that "each man is chosen or deferred by a board of his neighbors after fair and sympathetic consideration of all the facts." He warned that this might be "compromised" if local boards identified themselves too closely with enforcement of the law.

Judge Modifies Restrainer on Road Group

Permits 'Necessary' Purchase of Supplies, Maintenance and Salaries.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Nov. 20.—(P) Superior Judge Lee Wyatt today modified a restraining order on the State Highway Department spending to permit expenditure of $100,000 from this date until further order of the court "for the purchase of road building material."

The modified restraining order will come before Judge Wyatt in LaGrange on November 30 for a hearing in the injunction suit filed by the MacDougald Construction company of Atlanta.

This company contends the State Highway Department owes it $169,000 and sought to halt any further contract lettings and purchases.

In his modification of the original restrainer the judge said: "Only so much of this authorized amount shall be expended by defendants as may be reasonably necessary for the preservation and protection of the construction work now under way, and being carried on by state forces, maintenance and convict forces, and the construction of present WPA projects."

"In addition to the foregoing the defendants may pay the regular administrative and maintenance salaries and expenses, on the schedule as now in force, and reasonable cost of maintaining feeding and guarding convict forces."

Judge Wyatt was here holding court for Carroll county. Present when he signed the modification were Attorney General Ellis Arnall, representing the state; Highway Commissioner Herman H. Watson and Highway Treasurer Sam J. Boykin and the construction company's counsel, B. D. Murphy and James Frazier.

Man Is Convicted In Wife Slaying

Garnett Miller, 27, last night was found guilty of the murder of his wife, Sarah, with a shotgun September 1 in a soft drink stand on Roswell road near Sandy Springs where the Millers resided.

The jury, which deliberated little more than an hour, recommended mercy, which automatically means a life sentence. Judge E. E. Pomeroy, presiding, was not present when the verdict was returned but said he would pass sentence on Miller Monday.

Miller, the father of three young children, sat quietly during his trial and made no comment when the jury returned its verdict.

Part of $25 Reward Is Stolen From Man Who Found $555

Harold Belk, the young automobile worker who found $555 in a freight car the other morning and returned it to its owner, still thinks honesty is the best policy. But there are some who don't think so.

Harold got a $25 reward for his honesty in returning the money, which he shared with his foreman, Roy Singleton, who was with him when he found it. He took $12.50 and Singleton took $12.50.

Yesterday morning when Harold left home, he gave his mother $5.

He spent 50 cents and put $7 in his shirt pocket and went on to work. He changed his street clothes for overalls, leaving the shirt, with the $7 in it, hanging on a nail in the room where the workmen dress.

About half an hour later he remembered he had left it there and decided he had better go up and get it. He went. It was gone. "Somebody," said Harold Belk last night, "figured I got it easy and they would get it easy. I wish I knew who it was. I'd like to poke him one in the nose."

'Yellow Cab' Taxi Firm Is Formed Here

Will Take Over Black and White Company, Belle Isle Says.

A charter for the incorporation of the "Yellow Cab Company of Atlanta" was granted A. G. Hendley, Hamilton Douglas and A. L. Belle Isle yesterday by Judge A. L. Etheridge in Fulton Superior Court.

The new corporation will take over operation of the present Black and White Taxi-cab Company, of which Belle Isle is president, when the taxi-cab company moves from 105 Pryor street to its new $30,000 plant at Harris street and Techwood drive about December 1, Belle Isle said.

Hendley is to be made president of the "Yellow Cab" Company and Douglas and Belle Isle will be officers, it was understood.

Belle Isle said that he will operate the storage garage and that it and the you-drive-it and truck rental business will remain at the Pryor street location.

The new building at Harris and Techwood will be ready for occupation before the end of this month.

New equipment is to be installed by the new company and henceforth the cabs will operate under the "Yellow Cab" name instead of Black and White.

"Everywhere 'Yellow Cabs' are known and the name is almost synonymous with taxi-cab," Belle Isle explained. "We are changing the names of the cabs because 'Yellow Cabs' have friends all over the country. It is a step in our plan to render better cab service to the people of Atlanta."

The charter of incorporation allows the new company 500 shares of common stock, with no par value, and the directors will have the right to make changes in the financial structure of the company by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders. The company will also have the privilege of establishing branch offices in other cities than Atlanta under the state charter.

The charter petition set out that the minimum capital would be $1,000.

County School Building Funds Are Approved

Delay in Construction Seen as Defense Work Takes Precedence.

WPA appropriation of $188,080 for the construction of 12 county school projects was approved yesterday in Washington by the president, Congressman Robert Ramspeck wired Jere Wells, county school superintendent.

The school system will match this sum with $172,211 for the enlargement of school facilities in every section of the county. Nine additional projects, including four for high schools, are to be approved by the local WPA officials soon as sent on to Washington, Wells said.

Affected by the WPA appropriation will be the following schools: Roswell, Benjamin H. Neely, Garden Hills, Colonial Hills, Benteen, Cascade, Hunter Hills, Milton High, Union City, West Haven, Hemphill, and E. P. Howell. New buildings will be constructed at Hunter Hills and Union City, while additional class rooms and facilities will be built at the others.

Wells added that the WPA officials here notified him they can start on only four of the projects at once, but will begin the others as rapidly as man-power is available. The WPA rolls have been reduced greatly lately and some defense projects take precedence over all other work, it was said.

The county's part of the cost of the projects is to be met with money raised by the sale of bonds authorized last spring by the voters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, will preside in place of President Roosevelt at the annual Thanksgiving Day dinner party for crippled children at Warm Springs, Ga., tomorrow.

O'Connor had luncheon with the President today and afterward left for the Warm Springs Foundation. He will read a telegram from the President tomorrow.

The chief executive will go to Hyde Park, N. Y., tonight for Thanksgiving, foregoing his usual visit to Warm Springs because of its longer distance from Washington.

Turkey Dinner Given Inmates At Boys' Farm

County Commissioners Guests at Hapeville Thanksgiving Party.

A Thanksgiving dinner was given yesterday in the state dining room of the county's white industrial farm for boys at Hapeville. The room was tastefully decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. The board groaned with this succulent menu:

Redd, county physician to juvenile delinquents; George Waits, assistant superintendent of the county's colored farm at Adamsville, and 14 employees of the host institution, including Ira H. Coach lines serving the areas around Atlanta also may ride free—and their time for catching the bus is three hours long—from 9 o'clock in the morning until 12 o'clock noon. The free ride on these lines is through the courtesy of the Suburban Coach company.

And here's how to ride the taxi-cabs for half fare. Catch the cab any time between 9 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Pay the charge and get a signed meter receipt from the driver. Then, going home, bundle-laden, call a cab and present that slip for your homeward ride.

And now for the theater tickets and the meal tickets.

Throughout the day official Constitution hosts and hostesses will pass through the shopping throngs, passing out tickets to Loew's Grand and the Rialto Theater, and tickets good for a delicious free meal at the S. & W. Cafeteria, Wooding's Cafeteria, and the Holsum Cafeteria. Keep a sharp eye out for them.

And that's about the story. A big town giving a big party for its friends. It will be easy and cheap to get here if you live somewhere else. It will be easy to get downtown if you live here.

And once here, as today's paper tells, just name it and it is yours.

Holiday Work Ruling Made by Regional Chief

Hours Worked Thanksgiving Not Necessarily Overtime, He Says.

Hours worked on Thanksgiving Day or on other legal holidays are not necessarily overtime work under the wage and hour law, James G. Johnson, acting regional director of the wage and hour division for Georgia and Florida, said yesterday.

Johnson said hundreds of employees had called the wage and hour office inquiring about this point. He explained that unless an employee works more than 40 hours a week he is not entitled to additional pay for overtime hours under the wage and hour law.

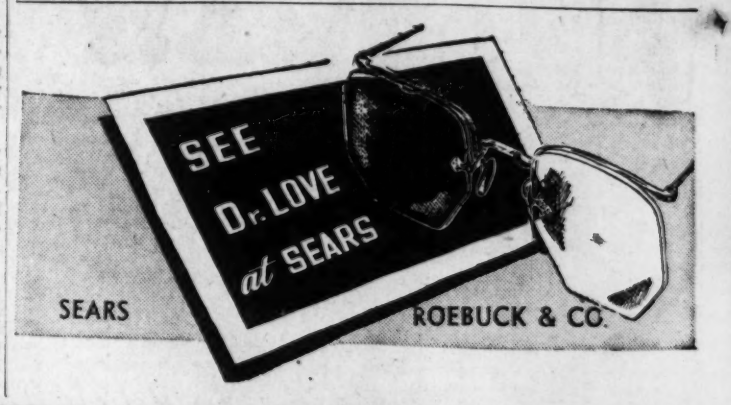

At the same time it was announced that two Atlanta companies were restrained from future violations of the wage and hour law in an injunction issued by Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

Both firms, the Floding Company, and the C. & O. Machine Works, were alleged to have violated the minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the law and failed to keep proper records.

As a result of the injunction Associate Attorney William A. Lowe, representing the wage and hour division, said approximately $2,500 in back wages will be paid employees of the companies.

3-Day Session Of Fertilizer Leaders Ends

Industry Ready for Any Defense Measures, Resolution States.

The fertilizer industry, closely related in some respects to explosives production, is ready for any national defense measures, leaders of the industry decided here yesterday.

Completing a three-day business session as the National Fertilizer Association, they adopted a resolution stating the industry's position and revealing specifically that the United States is self-sufficient in respect to potash, has "substantial capacity" for nitrate of soda and has "released a considerable portion of the sulphuric acid formerly required for the production of nitric acid for explosives."

John Sanford, of Atlanta, is president of the association. About 350 persons attended the sessions, which were devoted almost wholly to technical aspects of the industry.

Text of the resolution follows:

"The commercial fertilizer industry of the United States is prepared to furnish all of the chemical plantfood which may be needed during the present national emergency, even if conditions during the next few years should make necessary an increase in crop production, with a consequent increase in the demand for fertilizer."

"The situation which now confronts the country, in regard to supplies of commercial fertilizer, both actual and potential, is quite different from that which existed at the time of the great war. Developments since that time have made this country self-sufficient and independent with reference to our potash needs, have provided substantial capacity for the production of nitrate of soda and made it possible readily to expand this capacity, and have released a considerable portion of the sulphuric acid formerly required for the production of nitric acid for explosives."

"The officers and personnel of the fertilizer industry and the staff of the National Fertilizer Association may be depended upon to do their part to put into successful operation any emergency task they may be called upon to perform, to the end that the farmers of America may be assured that during the present national emergency, and in the years to follow, there will be available all of the fertilizer they may require."

Huge Industrial Expansion Is Forecast Here

C. of C. Bureau Cites 'Opportunities' Under Defense Program.

An early increase of between $10,000,000 and $50,000,000 of permanent new industrial development for Atlanta and adjacent area as the national defense program gets into high gear is forecast, with reasonable reservations, by the Industrial Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Bureau officials pointed out that while it was natural to speed activity in existing industrial regions of the north and east in the first phase of preparation, later additional capacity would be spotted in other sections, especially in the south.

One possibility alone—concerning which all identifying facts were withheld for strategic, competitive reasons—is an enormous plant of an industry closely allied with modern war necessity. This plant possibly will represent alone an investment of $15,000,000.

It is described as typical of the opportunities definitely confronting Atlanta.

"The general development might be termed a working-out of the principle of decentralization of industry so long discussed and forecast by economists," it was declared.

"It might better be described as

40 Boys and Girls To Get Turkey Dinner

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—Forty underprivileged Marietta boys and girls will sit down to one of the best Thanksgiving dinners of their lives here tomorrow.

Made possible by the municipal employees' Christmas committee, the turkey dinner will be held in the basement of the First Methodist church and attendance will be by invitation only. The police charity committee invited the youngsters, ranging from 5 to 12 years old.

a slowing-up of centralization. As new units are required, they are not added to the existing plants, but are placed in new locations as long-range national policy suggests."

New Factories Needed.

Going into greater detail, a bureau spokesman added:

"The $10,000,000 already appropriated for defense is only a preliminary flurry compared to what is coming. Ten, twenty, thirty or forty more billions are coming as fast as they can be used."

"In the beginning, defense orders had to be filled quickly where the plants were. When things straighten out on the long-range course, great numbers of new factories will have to be built."

"The industrial map of the United States will be radically altered. New England is the first place the army expects any foreign attack to come, even if only by air. If no attack comes, safer plants will have to be established elsewhere anyway."

"There is every reason why they should be in the south. Generally speaking, we have always had every advantage except skilled labor and capital. All of the available skilled labor of the north is in use now, so we are on an equal footing in that respect. Capital will be furnished directly or indirectly by the government or from private sources stimulated by the emergency."

Big Opportunity.

"This sets up the big opportunity for the south to develop industrially. We can possibly do in the next five years what normally would take 50 years."

"A chance like this will never come again in our lifetime."

"We need to develop skilled labor."

"We need good management material from our schools."

"We need widespread industrial-mindedness and a conception of our opportunities."

"We need to prepare our case and sell it."

A principal agency in the south's effort to present its advantages to industry is the Southern Governors' Conference. A strong resolution commenting on original emphasis upon northern industry in the defense program, and urging diversification of location was adopted at its Mobile session two months ago, and presented to President Roosevelt and the National Defense Commission.

McDonald's View.

Its executive secretary, Walter R. McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, pointed out that Civil War contracts developed northern and eastern industry and gave it ascendancy for 75 years. It was urged that this national dislocation should not be fostered by the present emergency.

Educational orders, already placed with various Atlanta plants, are regarded as precursors of important, large-scale demands upon the south for finished products.

Strictly military establishments for the Atlanta region include the $15,000,000 Southeastern Quartermaster Depot, a 2,000-bed army hospital costing $3,000,000; a $3-000,000 Army Air Corps reconnaissance squadron base, and a $400,000 facility for a National Guard air squadron.

These are in addition to projects already widely publicized and under way, such as the navy's reserve air training base at Camp Gordon airport.

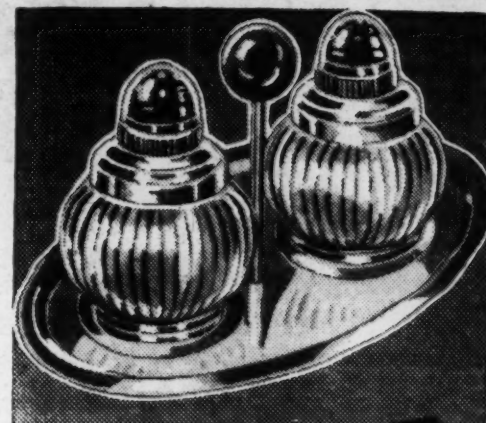

Youths in France To Learn Farming

VICHY, Nov. 20.—(UP)—The return to the land will begin with the young. A new law provides that city boys of between 14 and 17 must go to work in the fields. The state will cover six months of this apprenticeship by paying the farmer 900 francs to teach them farming. After the first six months the farmers will be obliged to pay his apprentice.

France's desperate need of farmers has compelled the government to institute a law obliging city boys of between 14 and 17 years to become apprentices on farms to learn farming. Each farmer will take a certain number of boys as apprentices and teach them his trade. All boys who are taken as apprentices will have to work at least one year with the farmer, who after the first six months will pay him according to his ability at a rate yet to be fixed. The farmer will have to insure a fatherly way of existence of the boys in his care.

The man who wants to fix your place up advertises in the "Business Service" classification in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Salvation Army Of Whole South To Meet Here

3-Day Celebration of Anniversary Opens November 30.

Atlanta will be converted, in a measure, into a three-day revival meeting with music and numerous preachers when the Salvation Army of the entire south converges upon the city to join the local organization in celebration of its 50th anniversary November 30-December 2 in what was termed, at its beginning, "the great southern metropolis."

Outstanding in the celebration of that meeting in October, 1890, when Atlanta had only three soldiers (or members), will be addresses by the foremost personage in the international organization, General Evangeline Booth, now retired after serving as commander in chief of the United States and as international general from 1934 until her retirement last year.

Contrast Noted.

The program will embrace in addition to Atlanta's 1,000 members, persons from the entire south representing adult and young people's groups. The gain in the Atlanta army will be particularly noted by the contrast of 1,000 southern officers and 750 young people at 1940's meeting with 90 persons from cities other than Atlanta who attended the first big sectional meeting five years after the founding of the Atlanta unit at the Marietta street, or Givens, opera house.

Mayor Hartsfield has proclaimed Sunday, December 1, as Salvation Army Day throughout the city. During the morning service hours, 60 army representatives will appear in Atlanta church pulpits. About 20 will preach during the evening hour.

80-Piece Band.

Music for various parts of the celebration will be furnished by three bands which will attend all sessions. One band of officers from Atlanta and outside groups will be composed of 80 pieces and will be the largest band at the convention. Another band of young people from North and South Carolina will have 30 pieces and a young people's chorus will consist of some 70 voices.

The program will open Friday evening with a dinner for the advisory board of the Salvation Army and members of the civic committee. It will be followed up Saturday with a luncheon for the young people and a meeting of visiting officers on Walton street to commemorate the first open-air meeting. The ceremony will be led by Colonel Richard F. Stretton, of Atlanta.

Booth To Speak.

In the afternoon General Booth will address the young people and the day's activities will be concluded by a speakers' contest at the Wesley Memorial church.

Sunday morning and evening Lieutenant Commander William C. Arnold will lead a public meeting at the Wesley Memorial church. During the afternoon, the general's main address, "The World's Greatest Romance," will highlight the activities.

Monday will be devoted to officers' councils, three of which will be held at the First Methodist church.

General Booth's lecture, "The World's Greatest Romance," according to Salvation Army officials, will be an enthralling story based upon actual facts taken from life. The "world's foremost woman orator," as she has been called, will tell in her own way the epic of the expansion of the Salvation Army from a one-man (her father) mission in the East End of London—a district now a mass of ruins from Nazi bombs—into a world-wide organization of mercy operating today in 100 countries and colonies.

General Booth, the daughter of William and Catherine Booth, founders of the Salvation Army, was born on Christmas day, 1865, the same year her parents founded the London Christian mission, the organization which later developed into the Salvation Army.

Ships of Britain On the Mississippi

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(AP) Hundreds of craft destined for ports in England ply the Mississippi river these days, replacing the boats flying the Nazi swastika ensign which not long ago were numerous.

Germany's sleek tankers no longer chug up the lower Mississippi and glide back into the Gulf of Mexico with great quantities of American petroleum.

Instead, freighters under British and neutral registry are busy carrying an endless cargo of explosives, other war materials and civilian commodities to the United Kingdom.

Shipping officials along Marine row believe that Britain's "domination" of the right to trade in the Mississippi will be an important factor in the outcome of the "starvation" war in Europe.

Transfer of explosives here to freighters bound for England has forced the United States to take safeguards in the lower Mississippi. Capt. James L. Ahern, of the Coast Guard, has been appointed "captain" of the river from Baton Rouge to the Gulf, including the port of New Orleans.

Ahern has designated 27 explosives anchorages between Baton Rouge and the passes, and all ships taking on dynamite and TNT must anchor at those points to receive cargoes.

All docks and wharves have been placed under rigid administration, with all persons barred except pass-holders approved by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

REVAMPING HOWELL PARK—Historic Howell Park, named in honor of the late Evan P. Howell, editor of The Constitution, is having its face lifted. New evergreen shrubs, playground facilities, including tennis courts, horse-shoe pitching areas and other attractions will be surrounded by winding walks bordered with grass plots.

Split Among Fulton's Solons Threatens Bills

Opposition to Change in Budget Law, Hornsby Ouster Seen.

BY FRANK DRAKE.

A cross-up among Fulton county's 1941 delegation to the state general assembly over city political lines may block passage of practically all local bills introduced at the next session of the legislature, it appeared yesterday.

Members of the delegation aren't talking out loud about their differences, but it is generally known much legislation will be requested—and little supported—unanimously by the Fulton representatives and the state senator from the 52nd, Hugh Couch, who defeated G. Everett Millican in the Democratic primary.

Local bills not supported unanimously seldom get through both houses of the general assembly, and, if they do, are likely to be vetoed by the governor if the majority of the delegation asks it.

Budget Change Opposed.

Strong opposition has developed in the delegation to any proposal to radically change the Fulton county budget law under which the county commissioners have been squirming lately.

Ed Almand, chairman of the commission, frankly favors repeal of the entire law, and some members of city council have talked with representatives in an effort to bring about repeal or drastic change in the city's budget law.

Also, the proposal to abandon city-wide election of council members and members of the board of education will bring up a battle in the statehouse if such a bill is introduced either in the senate or the house of representatives.

Repeal Favored.

A large number of councilmen favor repeal of this provision. However, the representatives in the legislature who got the law passed do not intend to abandon it, it was said.

Supporters of the Incoming Legislature.

Representatives from Fulton, W. C. Kendrick, Heller Douglas Mankin and Paul S. Etheridge Jr., helped pass most of the legislation over which there is likely to be contention at the next assembly session. They served with Senator Millican.

Should there be a split between the house members and the senator from this district when the legislature convenes, political observers say it is highly probable each side will block the others' attempts to pass bills. Thus no bills of importance may get through.

Traffic Police Find Trouble, Fun at Work

Offenders' Remarks Often Laughable, Sometimes Threatening.

By STERLING SLAPPY.

A consensus around the Traffic Department of the Atlanta Police is, they hate very much to give you a ticket "when you fly low," but they can't help but admit they often get good laughs at the remarks you make when they traffic court.

It's not often that the boys in blue who straddle their motorcycles and chase speeders and red light jumpers get such remarks as "I'm guilty," or "officer, you're doing your duty, give me that ticket."

When and if they hear such confessions, the motorcycle officers are just a little inclined to look askew and wonder if you aren't out of your mind, for those times are seldom.

Lieutenant Cuba Heath, who directs all of Atlanta's motorcycle officers, looks back over five years of riding the streets looking for those who wish the speed limit was a three digit number, and tells of the funniest answer he ever received.

Runs Red Light.

Lieutenant Heath was parked on the corner of Auburn avenue and Butler street when a Negro in a dilapidated machine drove up to the corner and stopped. The lieutenant noticed because the Negro driver had stopped while he had a green light. When the light changed to red, the Negro immediately put his car in first and drove across under the stop signal.

Lieutenant Heath went after the Negro and caught him a short way from the corner. When the Negro was asked why he realized that he had gone under a red light, he replied, "Sho, I do, Boss."

The police officer asked him, didn't he know that was against the law? "Naw Suh, Boss man, I didn't know dat was agin the law. I thought the red light was for us cullud folks and a green one was for you white folks."

The Negro got a ticket. The height of something or another was recorded when Officers Jesse Smith and Paul Edwards spotted a Negro on Edgewood avenue last spring doing some fancy driving. When the two officers finally finished book him at the station house he are even less troublesome than those from the family car.

You actually can meander around in the yards, take deep breaths and the only fume you'll inhale is the one you normally exhale—or the one the flowers inhale. Veteran G. O. P. Chiefs Against Willkie Clubs

Look to Organizations' Conflict With National Committee.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Republican old guard leaders in congress are manifesting some misgivings over the expressed determination of sponsors of the Willkie-for-President Clubs to continue their organization activity, independent of the Republican national committee, now that the 1940 presidential campaign has passed into history.

There is a suspicion that the Willkie-for-President Clubs, numbering some 10,000 over the country, its is claimed, may become the personal organization of Wendell L. Willkie, defeated Republican candidate, and as such devote their efforts entirely to promoting him for the party nomination again four years hence.

Even though the names of the clubs are changed to remove the suggestion of a personal organization, as Mr. Willkie himself recommended in his post-election broadcast to the nation, the clubs would still be expected to look to him for guidance and leadership.

Republicans in congress say they have no objection to the 1940 nominee exercising his position as titular leader of the party, but they are by no means prepared to go along with him in support of a personal organization designed to advance his name for 1944 and lead to clashes with the regular party machinery.

But there are no indications at this time of the Republicans showing any unanimity on the prospect for a 1944 standard-bearer, which offers the real clue perhaps to the opposition of old guard elements to a continuation of the Willkie clubs.

With the recent election less than two weeks old, it is far too early, of course, to engage in serious speculation over the 1944 outlook on either side; yet it does have a bearing on the Willkie situation to point out that already there are signs of at least two of the 1940 Republican presidential candidates bestirring themselves with an eye to the next national convention. Both Senator Taft, of Ohio, and District Attorney Dewey, of New York, whom Mr. Willkie defeated for the nomination at Philadelphia, have made moves here to indicate sufficiently their deep personal interest in future presidential events.

Clashes Foreseen.

In opposing retention of the Willkie clubs, Republicans in congress are wondering whether these several thousand groups may not attempt to set themselves up as an organization determined to dictate Republican party policy. The inevitable result, it is felt, would be to precipitate clashes within the party, with Mr. Willkie expected to side with the clubs.

Bobby Jones Clubhouse Is Nearly Ready

Completion of $50,000 Structure To Fulfill 7-Year Dream.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

A seven-year-old dream out at the 146-acre Bobby Jones golf course has just about materialized.

The beautiful new $50,000 clubhouse is nearing completion, and George I. Simons, parks manager, said yesterday that along with that improvement goes the "rebuilding of Howell park," on Gordon street in West End, named in honor of the late Evan P. Howell, former editor of The Constitution.

The 18-hole Bobby Jones course, named in honor of the first American to make a grand slam in golf by winning the British and American amateur titles, is one of the most difficult of the modern municipally owned and operated courses in the country.

It was opened to the public December 30, 1933, but there was no clubhouse. Fifty per cent of the green fees were set aside in a special trust fund to build one.

The city and WPA co-operated in constructing the building, said to be the last word in appointments and convenience.

And out the 21-acre Howell park, Simons and the WPA have literally re-made that ancient and barren tract.

It, too, will be ready for a formal reopening dedication within the next few weeks, and Simons is proud of the revamping of "the woeful neglect of one of the prettiest and most historic of Atlanta's parks."

When completed, it will be a beauty spot surrounded by an 18-inch stone wall, within the confines of which will be a modernly equipped playground space for children; tennis courts, beautiful magnolias reminiscent of the old south, and evergreen shrubs. The entire tract will be resodded.

But back to Bobby Jones' clubhouse. It is constructed of brick and granite and is solid white. It is located, as is the course itself, on sites on which were fought the historic Battle of Atlanta. It is on the banks of Peachtree creek of War Between the States' fame.

Simons and members of the parks committee of council will plan the formal opening exercises for the clubhouse and for Howell park within the next few weeks.

Combination Is Found, But the Safe Is Barren

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 20.—(UP)—A cry of triumph rang through the city hall when Hubert Smith, secretary to Mayor C. H. Veale, found a long-lost combination to a safe in the mayor's office which hadn't been opened since T. A. Penney left office in May.

Smith called Veale, and together they opened the safe. It was empty.

Stutterers Protest

Military Service Rule

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 20.—Stutterers at the University of Iowa want no exemption from military service.

This they made clear in a recent letter to Lieutenant Colonel Lewis B. Hershey, acting selective service administrator.

The Demosthenes Club, a campus organization composed of genuine word muddlers, protested a recommendation by Dr. J. S. Green that the 1,000,000 stutterers in this country be exempted from military duty lest the strain emotionally disorganize them.

"In brief, we do not care to be excused from military service and know of no sound reason why we should be," they said.

NAVY AIR BASE TAKES SHAPE—Here is pictured the progress being made upon the Navy's reserve training air base at Northside airport, Camp Gordon. Concrete

Draft Board's Aide Is Fast at Adding Figures

Major Brockman Used Slide Rule To Work Out Quotas.

By CHARLES GILMORE.

Out at State Selective Service headquarters he is known as "The Human Comptometer." Of course, the pay roll lists him as Major Charles J. Brockman, but the nickname more accurately describes his daily activities.

A comptometer, it might be said, is a machine that multiplies and divides almost as accurately as Major Brockman. But its human counterpart on Confederate avenue must be 100 per cent perfect, because he is dealing with human lives.

Tackles Job.

It began a month ago when Major Brockman reported for a year's active duty, fresh from the chemistry department of the University of Georgia. His first order asked him to compute draft quotas for each of the 188 local draft boards in the state.

This was no job for a machine, and a good machine at that. But the former college professor never batted a whisker. He grabbed a piece of paper and a dozen pencils and began computing. His only help was a slide rule, a little gadget that helps engineers divide and multiply but the accuracy of which depends largely on the human element. In this case the human element was Major Brockman.

He sweated for three days. He patiently figured out six columns of numbers for 188 local draft boards. He checked and rechecked, realizing that the work he was doing determined how many young men would be drafted from each county in Georgia.

First he divided the state's total registration of 395,457. The result was multiplied by the individual registration of each local board—a process that required 188 operations, but determined the local quotas.

Then he divided the state's credit of 26,941 men now serving in the military services by the total registration, and again multiplied the result by the individual registrations. It took 188 additional operations, but determined the local credits.

Major Brockman is a graduate of Lehigh University, carries the keys of three scholastic fraternities and for 19 years had taught students how to use a slide rule and compute proportions. But somewhere along the line a mistake was made.

When the totals were completed, they were off by more than 200 men. It had taken three days to work out a wrong answer. Major Brockman's heart started to break.

Sitting at a near-by desk was Lieutenant Colonel Percival S. Moses, himself an engineer of no mean ability, a Yale man, with a long army record. He could use a slide rule, too.

Calls on Moses. To him Brockman turned, and half humorously, half seriously, he begged, "Moses, help me out of this wilderness."

The two of them rechecked the figures for another day. The slide rule slid back and forth, but the numbers would not jibe. Colonel Moses had hunted diamonds in Africa, but finding this mistake was something else.

Between them they worked it out this week. The result is six columns of figures for each draft board in Georgia, arrived at by the efforts of a patient college professor who has answered the call to the colors.

When the quotas for each board are officially announced, it should be recalled that two men and a slide rule worked more than a week to get an accurate total.

Brother Watts Is Ready With Gourd Seeds

Friend of Man and Martins Hopes To De-throne Thrasher.

By WILLARD COPE.

That friend of man and other types of fauna, especially martins and bluebirds, Brother Connie N. Watts, of Baldwin's chill emineces, let it be known yesterday that the gourd seed are just about ready.

This may not sound like much to the uninitiate, or, so to speak, non-esoteric, of whom there are quite a few around but it means lots to Watts and to fanciers of our feathered friends throughout the nation.

He is engaged in his very own words, as president of the Dixie Martin-Bluebird Co-operative Club, "in rounding up my gourd seed" and, furthermore, "will in a short time begin mailing them out as I did last season to those interested," namely, folks who want to help keep martins and bluebirds alive during the winter after inducing them to abandon the normal southbound trek.

A slicker and strategist of Machiavellian proportions, Brother Watts explained a scheme he has which, in his own original phrase, he described as killing two birds with one stone.

He is fighting valiantly for the de-thronement of the brown thrasher as Georgia's official state bird and the coronation thereafter of the bluebird.

"Therefore," said President Watts, "those requesting gourd seed should enclose their vote on this question with the aforesaid request."

But, to make it all fair and democratic, he broadened the scope of the poll to include "anyone interested in this election, whether he wants gourd seed or not."

Finally, said Brother Watts: "I will keep a correct and honest tabulation of this election and will let you know how it all comes out."

Navy Bolsters Defenses With Patrol Planes

Designed for Long-Distance Work, Heavy Bombing.

By DEVON FRANCIS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Navy is buttressing defense in the Atlantic with warplanes which can fly half way to Europe in search of an enemy surface fleet.

They are designed for long-distance patrol work, to flash back a wireless alarm of any hostile threat.

They are designed, also, for heavy bombing, to make direct attacks on enemy ship concentrations, supply bases and aviation depots.

The airplanes are rolling off the assembly line in big volume, and their manufacture begins to throw some light on the defense strategy of the Navy, which faces the problem of hemisphere defense in the absence, for the present, of a two-ocean fleet.

The Navy has been secretive about Atlantic defense.

A key to its plans has been the letting of huge contracts for long-range patrol bombers for quick production while shipyards get geared to the infinitely slower job of turning out more surface vessels.

Bases acquired from the British under the administration's destroyer trade, and probably other bases which will become available in Latin America, in addition to ports under the American flag, will be used by the new fleet of bombers.

The patrol bomber, essentially an American invention, grew out of the big, multi-motored flying boats which braved the Atlantic crossing back in 1919. One, it will be remembered, did get to Europe. The new flying boats, for all practical purposes, are much like the Clipper planes plying between the United States and Portugal. They are smaller in point of tonnage by more than half, but they carry heavy defensive armament and a formidable load of bombs at a cruising speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

The largest single contract for this type of plane recently was placed with the Glenn L. Martin Company, a pioneer flying-boat builder, at Baltimore. The $108,125,000 being spent at the Martin company will provide approximately 400 of the planes, bi-motored and equipped with an odd-shaped "gull" wing.

Other contracts have been let by the Navy from time to time to the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, of San Diego, another veteran builder of both commercial and military flying boats. This company, too, has received a fresh order for long-range bombers.

Even though the British should want half the United States patrol bomber output, several hundred will be available for hemisphere defense in the next twelve months. Already in service are consolidated flying boats which have taken the Pacific in stride on "routine" flights.

The new 20-ton Martin planes stand out in the defense picture principally because of the rapidity with which they are being produced at the expanded Baltimore plant.

In addition to being exceptionally fast for flying boats with hulls that create "drag" problems at high speed, the Martins, known as PBM-1's, have wings which thrust upward from the root to place engines and propellers out of the reach of water in rough seas.

They have four visible gun emplacements for defensive fire and at least one more which cannot be seen. Ample living quarters are provided for the crew to relieve the strain of long hours at sea. A secret and unique system of storing and dropping bombs is intended to make them bad news for any enemy surface vessels.

In a paper included in the naval institute proceedings published last week, Lieutenant Commander A. B. Vosseller, skipper of a squadron of patrol bombers, remarks, "the question of whether bombers can sink battleships is, of course, of little importance, but the incontrovertible fact that ships can be bombed and unquestionably damaged must be considered by those charged with the responsibility for the national defense."

He adds that patrol bombers in formation, with concentrated fire power, ought to be almost immune to attack except by vastly superior numbers of enemy fighters. In other words, it would require the air fighting power of several enemy aircraft carriers to cope successfully with the patrol bombers which, in the next few months, will be marshaled to meet any threat of invasion by sea.

For mid-ocean patrol purposes the new planes can be refueled at sea by tenders if necessary. Their hulls are built to take the shock of landings and takeoffs in pretty rough water. Armor, for crew protection, surrounds the "bridge" and gun stations. Self-sealing gasoline tanks are insurance against loss of fuel or fire from bullet punctures.

mother and her two sons, who also had extensive third degree burns, Dr. Ivory began administering the adrenal cortex extract.

"Each case presented a severe state of toxemia, which, in my opinion, usually would have been fatal," he said. All three were in a semi-conscious condition with high fever, rapid breathing, extremely high heart rates, and blue color of the skin.

Very tiny amounts of the extract, one cubic centimeter every hour, were administered and the result was dramatic. The patients rallied quickly from their comatose state, their pulse and heart rates dropped back to normal and they were able to eat.

"At least one of these patients would unquestionably have died had not the cortical adrenal extract been used," Dr. Ivory said. "Possibly the others might have survived without the extract, but even in their cases the clinical improvement after administration strongly evident" and when the treatment was discontinued during certain periods they slipped back to their former state.

The effect of this treatment is apparently to replace a deficiency of hormones from the adrenal glands and to prevent the absorption of toxic substances from the burned areas into the body.

Stairway accidents are less likely if steps are all of one height. An armadillo mother always gives birth to four babies, all of the same sex.

New Treatment Discovered For Severe Burns

Hindenburg Disaster Victims Treated With Adrenal Extract.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP) Out of such a horror as the explosion of the German dirigible Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N. J., in 1937 came a new method of treatment for severe burns.

Lieutenant Commander Harry S. Ivory, of the Medical Corps of the United States Navy, reported in the Military Surgeon that the lives of three of the persons involved in the disaster had been saved by the administration of hormones from the cortex or covering of the adrenal glands which lie just over the kidneys.

Four persons in the same family were burned badly in the explosion, and all were treated with the usual administration of tannic acid sprayed on the burned surfaces, opiates to relieve pain, administration of salt and sugar solutions and blood transfusions.

One of the four, a 10-year-old girl, died despite all the efforts of Dr. Ivory and his hospital associates because more than three-fourths of her body had been burned.

Fulton County Police School Opens Monday

More Than 150 Officers From 16 Agencies Will Attend.

By FRANK DRAKE.

More than 150 officers from 16 law enforcement agencies will be in attendance Monday when the first police training school ever held by the Fulton county police department gets under way at the courthouse.

The school, modeled after the police academy conducted by the FBI in Washington, will have FBI experts for lecturers as well as special speakers on various phases of law enforcement, Paul E. Dowis, who is in charge of the Fulton police record department, announced yesterday.

Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman of the county commission, and Police Chief George Mathieson will welcome the students to the new school.

Policemen and deputies sheriff from Atlanta, Albany, East Point, Hapeville, Fairburn, Palmetto, Avondale, Decatur, De Kalb county, Cobb county, Marietta, Roswell and Alpharetta will study the advanced methods of the FBI along with all the officers of the Fulton police force. Patrolmen from the state highway patrol will also attend.

Weekly Sessions.

Two sessions of the school will be held on the first four days of each week until March 2, when those who have completed the courses will be graduated. There will be morning sessions at 10 o'clock and night classes at 8 o'clock so that all officers can attend.

In the school will be taught courses on crimes new to the average Georgia officer—crimes brought on by the nearness of war. The students will be instructed in the latest methods of detecting and preventing sabotage and espionage.

Also the officers will be given special instructions and actual experience-training in using the modern weapons of the police officer as well as the gangsters—machine guns, automatic rifles, tear gas and rapid-fire pistol work.

Mathieson and Dowis have made arrangements with officials at Fort McPherson for the student-policemen to use the Army ranges for target practice.

All the officers will be required to learn how to mow down the enemy with machine guns and automatic rifles, and how to draw their own pistols as quick as old-time western badmen and fire with the accuracy of a Zane Grey hero.

Opening Features.

Motion pictures illustrating the "Techniques and Mechanics of Arrests" will be one of the opening features of the training school. It will be shown and discussed during the first week of the session. The subjects for the first week include how to make raids, how to block roads and how to make arrests.

During the winter, the officers will take up such subjects as the demeanor of the officer in the courtroom; his duty and relationship to the public; how to make notes, write reports, and how to conduct interviews; how to collect and preserve evidence; how to comb the scene of a crime so that no clue may go undiscovered; how to make homicide, burglary and larceny investigations; and then how to prepare special reports, how to maintain them in a uniform record system and how to keep uniform crime statistics.

They will also study the technical laboratory work involving fingerprinting and photography. The laws of arrest, searches, seizures, warrants and evidence will be learned by these students too.

And before the school ends, the pupils are going to learn something about public relations under the guidance of an FBI lecturer.

Every one of the Fulton county police force, numbering more than 80, is required to attend the school. Officers from other police forces have been invited to study with them.

WANTS TO BE DRAFTED.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Woodrow Wilson Todd, 34, hopes he will be drafted into the Army, the sooner the better. Fined $100 for drunken driving, he said, he is paying it on the installment plan. If he is drafted, Judge C. A. Gale said he would cancel the fine.

112 Volunteers Added to Tech 'Blood Bank'

Charity Patients Who Can't Afford Transfusions Benefit.

The "blood bank" at Georgia Tech added 112 to its lists of volunteer donors last week. The donors were students who turned up at the Tech hospital to have their blood typed by Emory University hospital technicians.

The bank, which was started at Tech by the Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is being used for charity patients who can't afford transfusions and emergency cases when no professional donor is available.

And to date 226 Tech students, their telephone numbers and type of blood, are listed in the Tech Y. M. C. A., which receives calls from hospitals throughout the city.

When a call comes, a boy who has the type of blood needed is sent immediately to the hospital, and the fraternity pays his transportation. Not more than two transfusions a year may be donated by any one boy, thereby safeguarding his health.

The program of the charity "blood bank" is being supervised by R. S. Huggins and Dr. R. R. Kracker, of Emory University hospital, and by Dr. J. L. Henry, of Georgia Tech. Each student who is listed for call has passed the school physical examination.

Last week when the fraternity issued a plea for more students to have their blood typed, the boys answered the call, but some young

London Studies Defense Plan Of Oklahoman

Thanks Conveyed in Letter From British Air Ministry.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 20.—(UP)—The suggestion of an Oklahoma City man that smudgepot screens would be a simple defense weapon for Great Britain has brought a letter of thanks from the British Air ministry.

George J. Heuser, 41, an accountant, got the idea two months ago after reading a newspaper account of the difficulty German pilots were having in finding their objects in London because of the pall of smoke from fires started by incendiary bombs.

Heuser remembered that while he lived in Florida farmers burned pine needles for a warm smokescreen when frost threatened citrus crops. The more he thought about it, the stronger he felt the urge to tell the British.

Heuser cabled British Prime Minister Winston Churchill saying, "Continuous smudgepot smoke-screen every building suggested defense enemy aircraft." He signed the $4 cablegram, "Friend."

Later Heuser discussed his idea with an army officer who advised him to write Churchill giving additional details.

Heuser wrote the British could build good smudges from worn-out motor oils, refuse and old rubber tires. He suggested the slogan, "Keep the Home Fires Burning." The letter from the British Air ministry said in part: "Your letter addressed to Mr. Churchill has been passed by him to Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air, to consider your suggestion that London should be hidden from enemy raiding aircraft by a smoke-screen which could be created by suitable material."

"... Thank you for your contribution towards our success in the present struggle... Your proposal has been passed to the technical people who are concerned with this problem."

Yugoslavia Has Two Trumps Against Axis

War-Threatened Nation Balances Precariously on Neutrality.

By The Associated Press.

Yugoslavia has been balancing precariously on the tight rope of neutrality for 15 months. Meanwhile war has been moving closer to her borders.

She has watched neighbor nations—Albania, Rumania, Hungary—come under domination of the Rome-Berlin Axis. Her neighbor Greece has been invaded by Italy. Bulgaria, to the east, is trying to play ball with both Russia and the Axis.

Yugoslavia, despite a tough little army of 350,000 (plus 1,000,000 reserves), is wide open to attack through Axis-controlled Hungary on the north. Italy conceivably might hope to effect a successful invasion from Fiume via Zagreb, or through the Adriatic coast pass to Sarajevo.

Every major city and railroad in Yugoslavia is within 70 minutes by bomber from an Axis base.

The Iron Gate.

But Yugoslavia holds two trumps. They've saved her skin so far, despite her military vulnerability.

First Yugoslavian trump is the Iron Gate. The great Danube river, the water highway of central Europe, narrows down to go through the Carpathian mountains at the Iron Gate.

Here a concrete-filled ship, judiciously sunk, could close the Danube's channel. The Axis knows this and knows Yugoslavia knows it. That's why there has been some deference in the Axis attitude toward the Yugoslavs.

A closed Danube would handicap the Axis immeasurably. No oil and foodstuffs could go up the Danube into Germany. The already-overtaxed Axis rail transport would be hard put to take up the slack if Yugoslavia blocked the Iron Gate.

Yugoslavia's second trump is unpredictable Russia. The Yugoslavs and the Soviet have been close as A and B for years. Russia might go to Yugoslavia's aid if her sister Slav state were attacked. Remember, Russian bases are only 800 miles away via the Dardanelles and the Black sea. Turkey, already jittery, probably would permit Russian ships to pass. Greece, now fighting the Axis, would be tickled pink to allow Russian troops to debark at Salonika. From there they could pour through the southern pass to aid Yugoslavia.

That the Axis has not already moved on Yugoslavia indicates inability up to now to obtain a "by-your-leave" from Russia.

She'd Rather Fight.

Yugoslavia has maintained a meticulous neutrality. She has continued trade with the Axis, but has made it clear she would fight rather than become an Axis puppet.

Even without Russia's aid, the Yugoslav army, numbering some of the best fighters in Europe in its mountain brigades, would be no soft touch. The tiny navy, topheavy with mine-layers, could make the narrow Adriatic an unhealthy spot for Italian vessels.

So far, their two trumps have saved the Yugoslavs. Continued control of that Iron Gate is the country's best insurance against attack.

British Relief Work Pressed By Atlantans

Group Here Raises $9,275; Membership Increases to 700.

Two months ago the Atlanta branch of the British War Relief Society was organized. At the second meeting of the Atlanta branch held recently, the progress of the relief work done by the organization was reviewed.

From memberships, donations, and the sales of emblems, the Atlanta group has received $9,275. The membership has grown to 700 men and women. Mrs. Albert E. Thornton is chairman and Mrs. Dan MacDougall is co-chairman.

The jars bearing the British War Relief Society labels, which have been placed in all sections of the city for voluntary contributions, now total 385 and have accounted for more than $500, ranging from pennies to several dollars given by sympathetic donors.

The junior committee added $1,375 to the fund. This amount was raised at the Red, White and Blue ball given soon after the branch was organized at the Piedmont Driving Club. The entire contribution was sent to England to equip 35 urgently needed hospital beds.

The emblem committee reported that $775 had been raised from the sales of the British War Relief pins, cigarette cases, compact and earrings.

Each week a shipment of warm clothing and knitted garments is made from Atlanta to New York and transferred to British vessels. Since the society was organized in America, no shipment has been lost at sea.

From the knitting centers at the First Presbyterian church, St. Luke's Episcopal church and the Y. W. C. A. at 1845 Peachtree street, 1,500 hanks of wool have been distributed to knitters who have turned back 82 sweaters, 27 pairs of sea boots, 23 helmets, 67 mufflers and mittens for Britain's army, navy and Royal Air Force. More than 600 other garments are now being made.

More than 3,500 recon-ditioned warm garments have been sent from the St. Luke's church work-room committee, and were donated by persons not only in Atlanta, but also from Gainesville, Marietta, Greenville, Decatur, Lewisville, Hapeville, Alto, Conyers, Hawkinsville, Buford and Albany.

These garments include everything from carriage robes, fur coats and comforters, to booties and babies' caps. Twenty cases of good wearable shoes, collected in a "barrels of shoes for Britain" campaign, have been sent. All clothing goes to bombed out civilians in the British Isles.

The money collected is used to buy ambulances, surgical supplies and kitchens on wheels. These kitchens are made in the United States from designs sent by Lady Reading, chairman of the British Women's Services for Civil Defense. Each kitchen is capable of feeding 200 persons, and are sent to all bombed areas. There is an immediate need for many more to be sent.

In the British War Relief society 93 cents of each dollar goes for direct relief. The national organization now has more than 400 branches with 40,000 members, has collected $1,367,863, and has sent warm clothing valued at $350,000. Recently the Allied Relief Fund consolidated with the British War Relief society. The new organization will continue to be known as the British War Relief society.

Unlocked Home With 588 Locks

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Paul Harter has 588 locks in his home but not one on its doors.

Harter collects locks. He has locks from China, Germany, France, and every corner of this country—big ones, little ones, old ones, and the latest models.

He makes friends with farmers, antique shop owners, locksmiths, and junk dealers to get them. And he also is on good terms with policemen; because they know the locksmiths in town.

Harter frequently takes trips to distant parts of the country and on these journeys he's always on the lookout for old and interesting locks.

He has one old padlock that requires two keys to open it—one for the top and one for the side. Another was carried through the Civil War by a member of Stonewall Jackson's brigade. A third has a small protective pad over the keyhole. Harter learned that when the lock was in use, in an old distillery, a small seal was placed under the pad and over the keyhole to show when the lock had been tampered with.

Reich Captive Of World War Makes Fortune

Flyer Gives Needed Wings to Jungles of Central America.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 20. (P)—Out of a German prison camp into the Central American jungles.

Shot and blinded in one eye.

A dim beginning for the success story of Lowell Yerex, World War flyer who ran nothing into a fortune.

There is no future in aviation, Yerex thought, so he quit.

Bumpy weather on the ground. Back in aviation. Sickening tailspins out of jobs.

His vision of the future began to take shape. He flew airplanes through the air with the greatest of ease over jungles where Indians had hauled them in tropical sweat by hand.

Yerex's friends say today he has made at least $2,000,000 as president and principal stockholder of an air transport company blanketing Central America with planes and landing fields nine years after he went there with $25 in his pocket.

Last year Yerex's company, officials say, carried 12,000 tons of freight, larger than any other airline in the world, in addition to mail, express, extra baggage and approximately 65,000 passengers.

Yerex, a middle-sized man, 45 years old, graying, with glasses, a compact body and good, strong hands, says little and the little he says he softens.

The start was ambitious enough but not new; at 16 in his Wellington, New Zealand, home he thought the United States was the place to make a fortune. So he came here to study and went to Valparaiso University in Indiana.

Five years later he graduated into the midst of World War No. 1.

"I was a British subject," he says. "So I enlisted in the Royal Flying Corps in Canada, got my training, was shipped across, was commissioned a lieutenant, shot down three Germans, was shot down twice myself."

The first time he went down behind his own lines, the second time 35 miles behind the German lines in Belgium. The armistice was six weeks old when the Germans released him from prison camp on the Danube. He returned to London on Christmas Eve, 1919, in rage.

Saves $1,500.

Nine months later he was mustered out of the service and picking up where he had left off on the fortune hunt, he came back to the United States with $1,500 he had saved from his lieutenant's salary.

That was the day of flying circus in America. Yerex barnstormed all over the west and at the end of five years, $10,000 to the good, he quit aviation and opened an automobile agency in Santa Fe, N. M.

In that year, 1924, aviation was at lowest ebb.

As an automobile dealer Yerex industriously lost the $10,000 he had made in aviation and, broke, had nowhere to turn except back to aviation.

The time was June, 1929. He flew for a transport company, became manager of one of its airports and in December was fired with other pilots because the stock market had taken its own famous tailspin.

Turned South.

Disgusted, he turned south from the promised land to Mexico and became operating manager for another transport line that folded up exactly 18 months later.

Out of a job again, with $25 in his pocket, the drift was still southward.

"It was in 1931," he says. "And then I got a chance to go to Honduras with three American boys going there to start a flying business with a small plane that could carry three passengers."

The boys couldn't pay Yerex salary and, in lieu of pay, he kept acquiring an interest in the plane until he owned it.

Within that first year after arriving in Honduras he owned three small planes and a tri-motor worth altogether $30,000. He built up to that figure ferrying passengers and freight all over the Central American jungle tops.

It was a good idea, paying dividends in that country where tortuous journeys that took two weeks by foot and mule over hazardous trails could be made now by Yerex' planes straight as a hawk flies in 45 minutes and for only half the price of the land journey.

For example: the 14-day trip from Guatemala City to Flores, center of the chicla industry, was by rail to Puerto Barrios, by launch to Belize, by launch to El Cayo, by mule to Flores. The minimum cost: $50.

Yerex' ships made the trip in 45 minutes for $20, eliminating the danger of the trail from man, beast and the malarial insects.

That was the first year. In 1932 came a revolution in Honduras. Yerex was friendly with the government. So was Guy Molony, former superintendent of New Orleans police. They decided to help the government.

On one expedition, with Yerex at the controls, they flew over rebel territory with Mr. Molony wanting to go lower. Yerex objected but went lower until a rebel bullet struck him in the eye. He lost the sight in it.

But his air-ferry service made money. He bought more planes, carried pianos, horses, cows, mules, machinery through the air to those remote and inaccessible places where hitherto all the refineries of life and industry had been hauled through the jungle by Indian labor.

He took time out to woo and win Maria Antonieta Rodriguez, beautiful daughter of Dr. Jesus Maria Rodriguez, Honduran minister of education, and eloped with her by plane to the United States. They have a daughter now.

Service Spread.

His air service spread through British Honduras and the five Central American republics of Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador, and Nicaragua.

Landing fields had to be made all over the territory he served with his planes that were now a fleet.

By 1935 his transport service was big business. He incorporated in under the name of Transportes Aereos Centro-Americanos (Taca) with himself as president owning 85 per cent of the stock.

By September, 1939, when Germany invaded Poland, he knew the United States would be looking to the defenses of the Western Hemisphere and thinking particularly of that string of Central American republics that link the northern and southern continents together.

He offered this government full information on the 22 landing fields used by his planes operated by 30 pilots, 25 of whom are Americans. Of the other five, three are British and two Central Americans.

In October, 1940, he moved into the big time, a recognized success at last in the United States where he had sought to make a fortune and failed.

The American Export Airlines made a deal with him to take over his company, he remaining as its president and at the same time making him a vice-president of the parent company with a large block of stock to boot.

This deal, of course, is subject to the approval of the civil aeronautics board which the American Export Airlines also asked for permission to inaugurate an air service from New Orleans clear down through Central America to the Panama Canal Zone.

Ann has appeared in more pictures recently than any other Warner Star—unless it is Brent, who handles important romantic roles.

Women Solons Believe They 'Can Take It'

Demonstrate During Hectic Session Their Ability To Carry On.

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Their ranks unbroken by elections and with a pioneer congresswoman headed back to join them, the nation's women lawmakers believe they have demonstrated that they can carry on in congress when the going gets tough.

This has been one of the longest sessions of congress in history and one which kept the women on the job to vote and speak on some of the most important legislation passed upon since the government settled down under the constitution.

Yet all five of the women who were candidates for re-election—two Democrats and three Republicans—were returned to their seats. They are Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey; Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Democrat, New York; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts; Mrs. Frances Bolton, Republican, Ohio, and Miss Jessie Sumner, Republican, Illinois. To join them comes Miss Jeannette Rankin as a Republican member from Montana. Twenty-odd years ago she was the first woman elected to congress.

Her coming will give eight seats to women at the outset of the next congress. Senator Hattie W. Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, was not up for re-election and Mrs. Margaret Smith, Republican, Maine, had already been elected. Mrs. Smith after serving out the unexpired term of her late husband. Two women who had been chosen to fill out the unexpired terms of their husbands were not candidates for re-election. They were Mrs. Clara G. McMillan, Democrat, South Carolina, and Mrs. Florence Gibbs, Democrat, Georgia.

Introduced Resolution. It was one of the women, Mrs. Rogers, who introduced last May into a congress that was restless on the eve of the national political conventions, a resolution that it stay in session because of upset world conditions.

Her resolution didn't come to a vote, but Mrs. Rogers says it focused attention on the matter—"and congressmen began getting letters from their constituents that it was a good idea."

Congress recessed during the conventions and after finishing its major work met twice a week until after election.

This session, the third of the 76th congress, assembled January 4 and during the winter, one of the coldest in Washington's history, the late spring, the capital's usual sticky summer and Indian summer, the legislators struggled with a complicated and broadening program for national defense.

The women were confronted with the problem of voting on a bill to send their sons and other mothers' sons into compulsory military training. They passed on measures to build battleships, big guns, tanks, airplanes.

They voted on legislation to embargo American ships from belligerent waters, listened to days of arguments and saw bitterness grow so intense on the conscription issue that two of their men colleagues let go with fists. They heard insults shouted.

The women sometimes crossed party lines to vote their convictions, but in these post-hectic legislative days there is not even a whisper that any woman congresswoman "isn't speaking" to a sister law-maker.

Repeated Terms. Repeated terms of service have increased the activities of three veterans, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey; Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Democrat, New York, and Mrs. Rogers—in accord with congressional tradition.

Mrs. Norton, the first Democratic woman elected to congress—she has been in office since 1924—is chairman of the important house labor committee. This is the first woman to head a major committee.

MISS JESSIE SUMNER.

ALL RE-ELECTED—All five women in the U. S. house of representatives were re-elected. Miss Jeannette Rankin won a seat from Montana. Twenty-odd years ago she was the first woman elected to congress. Senators Hattie Caraway and Margaret Smith were not up for re-election. Mrs. Florence Gibbs, Georgia, and Mrs. Clara G. McMillan, of South Carolina, who had been chosen to fill out terms of their husbands, were not candidates for re-election. They have taken an important part in the current session of congress.

MRS. CAROLINE O'DAY.

tee. Proposed revisions in the wage-hour law kept her committee busy.

Outside of congress, she is chairman of the New Jersey Democratic state committee—again the first woman to have such an office. She was chairman of the women's platform advisory committee that drafted planks women wanted incorporated into the present Democratic platform.

Mrs. O'Day, first elected in 1934, took the floor several times this session to promote social legislation. She warned once "that our social program is as much a part of national defense as our arms."

She entered politics in the first place because, interested in social improvements, she believes the practical way to get them is through legislation. Consistent with this idea was her bill this session to provide money for talking books for the blind.

Opposed Conscription. War to Mrs. O'Day is a horror humans should learn to avoid. This session presented to this long-time, ardent peace-worker many trials. Confronted with bills to build up this country's ramparts she voted "aye" but she opposed conscription. Ill in New York at the time of the final vote she was paired against it.

Among the busiest members of congress is Mrs. Rogers. As ranking minority member on the veterans' committee she keeps an eye on their interests. This session she has been urging more liberal legislation for the widows and dependents of World War veterans.

Her speeches on the floor this session fill a thick scrapbook. She has devoted many words to opposing the operations of a shoe corporation in Maryland. She has spoken in favor of national defense and civil service.

A member of congress since 1925, she is the only woman on the house foreign affairs committee. Five times this session she has introduced a resolution asking the President to let this committee in on what he might know is going on abroad. The committee, however, voted down the resolutions.

Unfailing Attendance. Senator Caraway, twice re-elected from Arkansas, says she believes one of her most important contributions has been her "unfailing attendance to the senate and to the committees." She is a member of several committees and chairman of that on enrolled bills.

Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. McMillan, first termers, and both with sons of military age, took the floor to speak their minds on the draft bill. Mrs. Bolton opposed it because she saw in it "more dictatorship than democracy." Mrs. McMillan favored it as a self-protecting training measure. Mrs. McMillan also spoke in favor of a program of national defense.

Miss Sumner, who came to congress from a judge's bench in her home town, is just past 40, a lawyer and trained in this country and at Oxford University. Being assigned to the committee on banking and currency didn't frighten her at all.

She introduced a resolution—not yet considered—that no part of the military or naval forces of this country shall be ordered to participate in any armed conflict outside this hemisphere or territorial possessions of the United States unless congress finds that the safety of the nation is endangered.

A Safety Fair Is Scheduled At Kansas City

Celebration of Outstanding Record Set for November 28 to 30.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20.—(UP)—A safety fair will be staged here November 28 to 30, celebrating the greatest all-around safety record ever made by an American city.

During the past year Kansas City has won six major safety awards.

C. M. Woodard, trade commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce and chairman of last year's safety fair, has been elected to head the fair committee this year. He plans a larger fair, and one with a military tone.

"Certainly it should be much better than our last year's fair," Woodard said. "We have far more to celebrate. Last year we didn't know whether we had won any major street safety award. Now we have won the grand award for cities of all sizes. In addition, the Kansas City fleets, the industrial plants, public service company, motor car drivers and pedestrians have won other major awards. No other American city has ever approached such a magnificent year for safety."

Woodard said he hoped the Army and Air Corps would enter exhibits in the show.

As plans for the fair are being pushed toward completion, leaders in various citywide safety programs are doubling their efforts to assure no lapse between now and the opening of the fair.

Students Noted For First Novels

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 20.—Selling first novels is nothing unusual for students of Professor Hudson Strode, who teaches creative writing at the University of Alabama.

Since January 1, 1938, four first novels have been accepted for publication by the first publishers to whom they were submitted.

Latest to contract for a first novel is Edward Kimbrough, 21-year-old graduate who will receive his master's degree next month. Kimbrough's novel, "From Hell to Breakfast," a satire on Mississippi politics, will be published in August.

Kimbrough received four times the amount usually paid authors of first novels, which will enable him to continue his creative writing another year before seeking a job.

In May, 1938, Harper's published Harriett Hassell's "Rachel's Children," and in March, 1940, the same house brought out Gerrie Thielens' "Awake! My Heart."

Hobby Garden Of Memories Delights Owner

Every Rock, Plant Has Personal Significance To Mrs. Clack.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

"Garden of Memories" is more than a song to Mrs. Annie B. Clack, of Atlanta, member of a pioneer Georgia family. For the garden in the rear of her home at 885 Ponce de Leon place, N. E., is a garden of memories in fact.

While some folks collect stamps, coins, matchboxes, or any of the scores of other articles cherished by hobbyists, Mrs. Clack has assembled during the past nine years a wide and varied collection of mementoes.

"I call it my memory garden because that is just what it is," said Mrs. Clack. "Every plant, tree, flower, shell or rock in it has a memory for me, is associated with some person, some place or some thing which has meaning and memory for me."

"It's a very personal garden for this reason, and gives me much more pleasure than it would otherwise. For, when I work in the garden, I see this plant or that flower, this shell or that rock, and it brings back to my mind a pleasant recollection of the past."

Mrs. Clack has not marked these mementoes. She knows them all by heart. Although, she said, she one day plans to put little markers on them to refresh her memory.

The memory garden idea came to her about nine years ago, Mrs. Clack said.

"Everywhere I have been since then," she went on, "I always bring back with me something for the garden. I love to travel, and have been from New York to the Pacific coast, from Florida to Canada. The garden has something in it from almost every state in the union."

There are stones from Mount Shasta, gathered during a trip to Portland and Seattle. There is another stone from the bottom of the Rio Grande river, given to Mrs. Clack by a friend who obtained the stone when the riverbed was dry. There is also a stone from Mount Lowe, in California.

When Mrs. Clack visited Catalina Island, off the coast of California, some years ago, part of her experience was going below on a glass-bottomed boat and watching a diver gather abalone shells from the depths of the sea.

One of these shells is in the garden.

There is also a conch shell from an island off the coast of Florida, about 30 miles from Nassau. This shell, made into a small, red Christmas light, was also given to her by a friend.

Mrs. Clack confesses a fondness for rocks and has samples of many found in the north Georgia mountain country.

As for plants and flowers, the garden contains a white wisteria vine, the gift of woman of her schoolgirl days, who now lives on a large estate near Greenville, S. C. This vine twines around a pink crepe myrtle bush from the old Wimbley place, near Griffin, Ga., the ancient ancestral estate of Mrs. Clack's grandfather.

Further family sentiment is seen in the white iris from the Wimbley place, first set out a long time ago by Mrs. Clack's grandmother. And there are many other plants and flowers from the old family place.

Fern From Canada.

There are ferns from Canada, souvenirs of a trip to Niagara Falls. Mrs. Clack said she walked a mile into a deep ravine to get these ferns and that there was considerable danger involved.

"But I just had to have them," she said, "and so I got them." While on the Niagara Falls trip, Mrs. Clack also obtained some shells from the bottom of the Whirlpool rapids.

Mementoes from Florida include a Japanese plum tree, which Mrs. Clack cultivated from a seed.

From Georgia, Mrs. Clack has mountain laurel and two wild honeysuckle bushes, recalling days with friends at Helen; a small holly tree and a small spruce pine, both from Neal Gap.

An automobile tour of the Great Smokies of Tennessee contributed a small dogwood tree. "And everything means something," said Mrs. Clack. "I relive my trips and converse again with my friends every time I am in my memory garden. And it gives me great joy."

Virus Use Urged In Defense Plan

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(UP)—The use of viruses, generally considered an enemy of mankind, has been suggested to aid in the national defense program.

It was pointed out that the virus which causes tobacco mosaic could be used in designing faster ships, attaining more accurate shellfire and speedier torpedoes. The virus itself is invisible, but in water has the strange faculty of making visible details of flow around an object.

The suggestion was made by Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research at Princeton, N. J., who presented a report on the properties of viruses at the University of Pennsylvania bicentennial conference at Philadelphia.

JAIL FLED: FOOD CAUSE. TOLLAND, Conn., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Brought back to jail after more than a week of freedom, police asked Wilfred Fortin why he escaped. Fortin told them frankly: "I didn't like the food."

Fatter Turkey To Be Carved Thanksgiving

33,138,000 Birds Are Awaiting the Holiday Hatchet.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—A fatter turkey will grace the average American table this Thanksgiving, the Department of Agriculture reports, with 33,138,000 birds awaiting the holiday hatchet.

The weight of toms this year averages 18.1 pounds, as compared to 17.9 last year, the department said, while hens reach an average weight of 12 pounds, as compared with 11.9 in 1939.

The total crop represents a 1 per cent increase over last year's 32,732,000 turkeys. The increase is accounted for by low prices received for turkeys since last December. Many flock owners held their 1939 crop for fall marketing this year.

TAX RECORD SET.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Revenue from Washington's sales and business taxes set a new all-time record in the fiscal year ended April 30, the state tax commission reported. Income was $29,935,773, compared to $23,294,561 the previous year. Heavier levies and improved business conditions accounted for the increase, the commission said.

Meteorite Boosts Museum's Visitors

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(UP)—A fragment from a meteorite which struck the earth centuries ago is boosting attendance at the Schenectady, N. Y., museum.

The piece was chipped from a huge meteorite which gouged a 500-foot crater near Canyon Diablo, Ariz. Indian legends speak of a flaming dragon which flew across the sky and thundered into the earth. Museum curators believe it was the meteorite to which the legend referred.

The crater dug by the falling body was believed at first to be an extinct volcano. The only craters comparable in size are those visible on the moon, scientists say.

Support Won For 'Bad Blood' Wagon in State

Georgians Who Had To Be Lured Now Demand Treatment.

BY HAROLD MARTIN, Staff Writer.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 20.—When the "bad blood" wagon first started making its way through the white sand roads of Glynn, McIntosh and Camden counties three years ago, the people who lived in the little cabins among the turpentine pines had to be lured to it with promises of pigs and turkeys and baskets of groceries.

The sawmill man who worked 100 hands had to be persuaded that it was worth his while to give these hands an hour or so off every week or two to walk to the crossroads where the "bad blood" wagon was waiting. The turpentine operator had to be shown where it was better for him if his boys and their wives, and the girls at home could get the treatment that cured them rather than letting them go on without it, to fall ill and die, or, resisting death, remain only half alive and unable to work.

Today if the "bad blood" wagon were to stop its daily cruises out of Brunswick, the howl could be heard throughout the three counties. The people who had to be lured to come by the promise of pigs three years ago now know enough to demand treatment they first had to be coaxed into taking. And, if back in the swamp somewhere there is a swamp worker with the bugs of syphilis in his veins who refuses to come, the boss will send and get him and haul him there, whether he wants to go or not.

Faithful Response.
So now they come, faithfully, to get the shot in the arm and the shot in the hip that is chasing the spirochetes of syphilis out of their blood and making what was one of the nation's worst rural syphilis areas into one that is swiftly becoming free of the disease.

They don't know what the figures show. They just know they feel better, work better. They just know that the babies who play around their cabins are healthier, stronger and don't die like babies used to die when they came into the world with the marks of congenital syphilis upon them.

It is the scientists, the syphilis fighters all over the country who are impressed by the figures that M. E. Winchester, the fat, bald, twinkling-eyed little doctor who bosses the blood wagon and supervises its work, has just made public.

They read them and say such things as "amazing" and "magnificent" and "incredible" and it is amazing, magnificent and incredible what three short years have done.

50 Per Cent Improvement.
When the "bad blood" wagon rolled out to its first clinic in September of 1937, a survey showed that in a certain age group, from roughly 20 to 40, 41 men and women out of every 100 had syphilis. A survey made last month, three years nearly to the day after that first one, showed that in this age group where syphilis is heaviest concentrated, only 20 out of every 100 now show the dread little spirochete in their blood, which to every man who knows the difficulty of fighting that terrible little rodlike bug, makes the exclamations of the syphilis fighters seem faint praise.

And this amazing success in the fight on syphilis has suggested something close to the merry little man who bosses Glynn county's public health. It has suggested to M. E. Winchester a way by which every Georgia county, no matter how poor, can have a public health service of its own, and the most efficient kind of public health service for a rural area.

"The first year we operated the trailer clinic," he says, "we devoted all of our time to the treatment of syphilis. But now, so gradually we hardly realize it, the wagon has become in reality a public health office on wheels. It goes far beyond its original function to give prenatal care, infant care and maternal hygiene instructions, immunization to the infectious diseases and all the other general public health services."

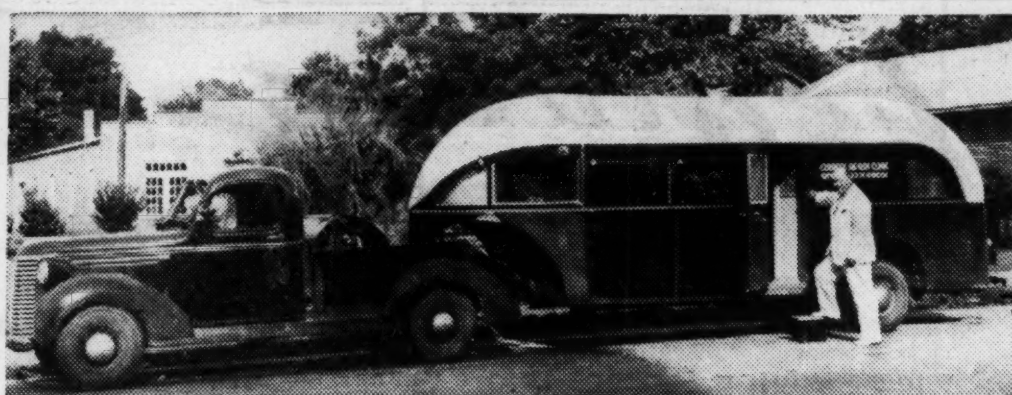

Efficient Service.
"It gives a service as efficient and as far-reaching as that given by any organized public health unit in any rural Georgia county." And he goes on to say that Glynn county, that sponsored the first county public health service in Georgia, may be pioneering again, pointing the way to better health in rural Georgia.

For, he says, "a public health unit does not perform its function until it takes its services to the people—up to the very door of their cabins if need be. The trailer unit is the best way to do this, as our experiences have proved."

"There are more than a hundred Georgia counties which have no public health service at all, beyond the services of an overburdened visiting nurse. There is no reason why these counties could not combine, two or three, or maybe four, together, to jointly operate a trailer clinic."

"If that were done, and if the story is told often enough, and well enough, it will be done, Georgia in a few years could point with genuine pride to as fine a record of rural health as any state in the Union."

The man who can lay a roof without "laying down" on the job is advertised in the Business Service column in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

"BAD BLOOD WAGON"—Here is Glynn county's famous traveling clinic which in three years has succeeded in materially reducing the rate of syphilis infection in Glynn, Camden and McIntosh counties. The clinic is now giving all the health services of a stationary clinic. In the doorway is Dr. M. E. Winchester, Glynn county health commissioner, who has earned nation-wide fame for his work in the public health field.

Russia Playing Shrewd Game In War Crises

Economic Agreements Manipulated With Nearly Dozen Countries.

By ROBERT MAGIDOFF.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(P)—Soviet Russia's complicated game in foreign affairs has been accompanied by a series of shrewdly manipulated economic agreements with nearly a dozen countries.

These agreements have been negotiated by one of Stalin's closest associates and foreign trade commissar, Anastas Ivanovich Mikoyan, who has complemented Premier Vyacheslav Molotov's efforts in pursuing the "Stalinist peace policy" by throwing into play Russia's economic weight.

By far the most important of the agreements signed by Mikoyan has been the trade pact with the Germans, who have been pressed hard for a maximum of oil and grain and other vital items.

The bargaining, however, ended—in the opinion of most foreign observers—in Mikoyan's signing away a minimum of these products, so badly needed by Russia herself. They include, according to unofficial estimates, a million tons of oil, and are being paid for by "ersatz" formulas, models of latest German bombers and other items of importance to the Russians.

Status Uncertain.
The present status of the much-publicized Soviet-German economic collaboration is uncertain. Mikoyan and the chief of the economic division of the German foreign office, Dr. Karl Schnurre, recently took stock of the first six months of trade, after which Schnurre left for Berlin to report, as well as to work out proposals for the future.

German circles in Moscow insist there is complete harmony between Moscow and Berlin, and that the next six months hold promise of expansion of Soviet-German trade. The Russians, however, adhere to their traditional silence, keeping the Germans and everyone else guessing.

Trade negotiations with Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Sweden, Denmark and other countries served to corroborate the impression among foreign observers in Moscow that Mikoyan, one of the youngest Soviet leaders, also is one of the ablest.

He was born on November 25, 1895, in Tiflis province, son of a poor Armenian worker. In 1915, he joined the Bolsheviks, and three years later helped defend the oil city of Baku against a joint German-Turkish army. He held the rank of brigade commissar.

Landed in Jail.

Toward the end of 1918, during the British intervention in Baku, he landed in jail along with 26 commissars of the short-lived Azerbaijan Soviet republic. These commissars were executed, but Mikoyan escaped with his life by sheer accident, and was released from prison in March, 1919, on the demand of the Baku workers, who had declared a general strike.

Mikoyan immediately joined the armed Red forces, fought through the civil war in Azerbaijan, and entered Baku on an armored train in 1920.

Then followed several years of active co-operation with Stalin in the struggle against Trotsky. Mikoyan was placed by Stalin at the head of the Communist party organization in Baku, later was switched to Korky, and still later to the capital of Trans-Caucasus, Rostov-on-Don.

In 1926 he was appointed people's commissar for trade and was elected member of the Politburo, consisting of 11 men who decide on all foreign and domestic policies of the U. S. S. R.

Named Vice Premier.

In 1937, Mikoyan was appointed vice premier, and in this capacity, it is generally believed, he controls the entire distribution system of his vast country, co-ordinating the work of providing supplies for the Red army and navy, fulfilling obligations to foreign countries, and meeting the demand of the enormous internal market.

In 1938, Mikoyan was appointed commissar for foreign trade, retaining his post as vice premier, member of the Politburo, and, of course, membership in the supreme council of the U. S. S. R. His executive abilities and strong position in the circle close to Stalin lead most observers to conclude that Mikoyan is the most logical successor to Molotov, should anything happen to the present head of the Soviet government.

Others, however, argue that Mikoyan is Andrei Zhdanov's most likely rival to the key post in the Soviet union, now held by Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party.

"IDEAL FRATERNITY MAN"—Georgia Tech's dean of men, Floyd Field, has been awarded the distinguished service medal of Theta Chi fraternity, presented only 49 times since 1856. The citation was made in the local chapter house by Alfred H. Aldridge, left, executive secretary of the national order. It honors Dean Field because "by precept and example he typifies the ideal fraternity man."

Georgia Laws Being Listed By WPA Unit

All Statutes Affecting Cities, Counties To Be Inventoried.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

What happens to the millions of laws on the statute books? In the case of Georgia, which also has millions—yes, millions—of laws, the answer is to be found on the second floor of an office building at the intersection of Ivy street and Edgewood avenue.

This office houses the WPA Historical Records Survey, under the direction of Dr. Frederick S. Hulse, state superintendent. This is a little-known-to-the-public, but an almost terrifyingly tremendous project for the benefit of present and future generations of citizens.

About two years ago, the task was begun of filing a transcript, or abstract, of all the laws affecting county and city governments in the state. The huge size of the task can be noted in the phrase "all the laws."

Millions of Laws.
For it must be remembered that there are 159 counties in Georgia and that the state's history goes back to colonial times.

And it must also be remembered that many state laws, which affected city and county governments, had to be included. Literally—and actually—millions of laws.

There were five divisions, as follows:

1. State.
2. County general, i. e., dealing with counties in general.
3. County local, i. e., dealing with one particular county.
4. Municipal general.
5. Municipal local.

Under these heads, the work went on, and is still in progress.

Like Study Hall.
It is a large room, reminiscent of a study-period hall in a high school, where the men and women engaged on this task sit at desks and patiently go about this gigantic job.

Adding to the hugeness of the task was the fact that 150 of the state's counties are governed by boards of commissioners, while only nine are governed by ordinaries as provided for in the constitution of 1868.

And while the workers were at it, they also completed a file of all the incorporated churches in Georgia, no mean feat in itself.

Grist to the mill were laws relating to the courts, the county officers, the county institutions, and in this connection it was pointed out that there was more county legislation on the books than any other kind.

Written By Hand.
In some counties, from the period between 1790 and 1830 laws pertinent to county or local government were written in pen and ink. These had to be laboriously copied from these ancient records.

To date, this particular project has progressed to a point where the laws from 1691 up to the present, that is, 1939, are in sequence and complete.

The survey has one of the best libraries on Georgia laws extant, made possible principally by contributions of the books by the counties and by individuals.

The purpose of the file? To record an inventory of the county archives of Georgia. In other words, a history of all of the counties from a legal viewpoint, recording the changes, growth, progress of the counties from their earliest beginnings down to the present day.

Tremendous Task.

The information includes data on defunct county offices. Thus it covers the evolution of county government from inception to the present day. Here, too, is a tremendous task, when one considers the old inferior courts, which went into the discard with the adoption of the constitution of 1868.

Students of political science, students of government, lawyers with scholarly minds, and any individuals interested in county and municipal government will one day bless the men and women engaged in this work, for it is they who will find this survey most valuable.

Five Books Complete.

Physical lists of every record are inventoried for the file. Five county books—the complete inventories, with index to the laws and the laws themselves—have been published so far. Several more are in final form. So the work moves inevitably toward its completion.

Interesting facts have come to light, the workers reveal. For instance, in the 1840's, divorces were difficult to obtain. They had to be granted by an act of the legislature.

And, in the early days of Georgia, inferior courts had exclusive jurisdiction of slaves in capital cases. In fact, these were the only tribunals that could try slaves. And there was no appeal from the decisions of these courts.

Soil in Gilmer Yields 125 Bu. Corn Per Acre

Production Is More Than 11 Times Average for Georgia.

By JACK TUBBS, State News Editor.

ELLIJAY, Ga., Nov. 20.—Even worn-out Georgia soil, if properly enriched and revived, is capable of producing more than 11 times the state's present per-acre yield of corn!

B. C. Logan, Ellijay businessman-planter, knows. He has done it.

Georgia's 1940 per-acre yield is an even 11 bushels.

Logan this year is harvesting what farm experts generally concede will be better than 125 bushels per acre. And that's well above four times the national average.

Georgia's 1929-36 corn yield was 10.1 bushels per acre. In 1939 it dropped to 8.5 bushels; this year the official estimate was 11 bushels.

National Average.
The national average in 1938 was 27.7 bushels per acre, and the 1940 figure is expected to remain close to that. During 1938, Iowa led the nation with a 45.5-bushel yield per acre, and last year Indiana reported a 50-bushel average.

Logan thus is harvesting this year a crop computed at more than twice the per-acre yield of the highest-averaging state. What's more, since he began planting corn on his Gilmer county farm a half mile north of here five years ago, he has made consistent year-to-year gains in per-acre production. His figures: In 1936, 500 bushels from 24 acres, or an average of 20.83 bushels; in 1937, 700 bushels from the same acreage, averaging 29.16 bushels; in 1938, 1,000 bushels on the same tract, averaging 41.66 bushels; and in 1939, 1,500 bushels on the same plot, with the average soaring to 61.66. This year he planted only 20 acres.

Secret of Success.

The secret, Logan believes, lies in proper soil building and enrichment, with adequate fertilization at planting and top-dressing times.

Five years ago, he said, "that land was so poor it wouldn't have raised a pea." Now, aside from the corn, it raises plenty of them, for peas are all a part of his soil-enriching program. Peas and vetch and a fertilizer especially adapted to his soil.

It was just plain tired, that land was, five years ago—tired and worn out from farming through many years. And something had to be done about it. Logan did it. He called in a fertilizer expert, had a special corn fertilizer "prescribed" for it, and then went to feeding the medicine to his land at the proper times. And from the very start of the treatment, the "patient" got better and better.

Logan Farm.

The Logan farm isn't excessively large. It's just a "comfortable" sort of place. There's a little home that sits beside the road, and there are two barns for stock and equipment and feed. There's enough acreage for corn and other planting, and ample pasturage for the stock.

When he took it over five years ago, Logan had no livestock. Now he has more than 100 head, all produced from high-grade cattle and hogs and work animals he since has acquired. He has a 1,550-perch Percheron stallion—11-year-old Bob—which only recently won top award at the Mountain Experiment Station showing at Blairsville. He has from 20 to 25 head of O. I. C. swine, including a boar, about 75 cattle, including 25 white-faced Herefords and the rest mixed Jerseys and other breeds; and 12 head of work stock, including a fine stud.

To feed these animals, he produces his own hay—and here again he has achieved an excellent per-acre yield record. In 1936, he planted 15 acres and produced 167 bales of hay. This year he estimates his production at 1,500 bales from 30 acres—a sizable increase.

"Live-at-Home" Program.

The Logan farm adheres strictly to the "live-at-home" plan, and produces virtually every one of its own needs, including meats, chickens, eggs, milk and vegetables. And there's plenty of meat and other products to be sold each year, to provide other needs.

But Logan's corn, now. Oldsters from throughout northwest Georgia have come miles to see it, and they frankly say they've never seen anything like it.

To help it along, Logan says he used 400 pounds of fertilizer to the acre—200 pounds at planting time and later top-dressing it with 200 more pounds to the acre. At "laying by" or "last working" time in late June or early July, he sows his corn patch in peas, and along in September he broadcasts vetch for winter.

This combination, Mr. Logan says, not only helps to build and enrich the soil year to year, but provides rich feed for winter grazing.

And that's where the livestock come in.

Official Survey Ends

Long-Standing Quarrel

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 20.—(UP)—The State Department of Conservation has determined the highest body of water in the state, bringing to an end an argument of long standing.

Resorters of the Little Summit Lake area, near L'Anse, have been firm in their belief their lake was the highest in the state. But natives in the vicinity of Big Summit Lake have been equally sure that they lived in a higher altitude.

Surveys recently completed by the conservation department show that Little Summit Lake is just 20 feet higher, lying at an altitude of 1,760 feet above sea level.

CHAMPIONSHIP CORN—Georgia corn fields this year, the Crop Reporting Service estimates, will produce an average of an even 11 bushels per acre. B. C. Logan, of Ellijay, is doing more than 11 times better this year. Those who have seen his fields estimate they'll yield better than 125 bushels per acre. Herbert Tabor (left) and Mr. Logan are shown as they inspected a corner of the field shortly after a windstorm.

Church Youths To Hold Fete Here Saturday

'Preacher's Kids' Club Will Entertain Methodist Visitors.

"Preachers' Kids," about fifty strong, will gather this week-end to make merry in a manner that proves all preacher's kids aren't the worst in the neighborhood—nor the biggest sticks, as some offspring of laymen are wont to say.

It all started when the sons and daughters of Methodist ministers in Atlanta realized that their fathers were organized and enjoying get-togethers, and so were their mothers, in an organization called "Dames' Club."

More than a year ago Edna and Hamby Barton, Jr., whose father is pastor of the Epworth Methodist church, organized the Atlanta "Preachers' Kids' club. And the four Hall girls, the four Few boys, the four Mackey boys and numerous other families, whose dads are Methodist preachers, joined up for occasional parties.

The rules are simple. You have to be unmarried and at least 16 years old. The boys of the club contend that the real purpose of the club is to let the girls know how nice looking the male members are. And if a "P. K." marries someone outside the club, his membership is immediately canceled. So far, the Atlanta members have not celebrated a wedding of two "P. K.'s," but they are still hoping.

At 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Imperial hotel the members will entertain the sons and daughters of the ministers who are attending the Methodist North Georgia Conference. Ernest Rogers, Atlanta newspaperman, and son of a Methodist minister himself, will be the guest speaker. Reservations may be made with Miss Elizabeth Jones, secretary, at 1037 Green Cove avenue, N. E.

Other officers are Claud Rogers, "bishop"; Hamby Barton, "vice bishop"; and actually Miss Jones is called the "district superintendent" instead of a secretary, just to keep up with the church hierarchy of their elder's organization.

Chief musicians are James Mackey and Lester Rumble, Jr., who with Barton, write most of the "P. K." lyrics which are sung to familiar tunes. One of their favorites is sung to "Over There" and ends with the boast that "the P. K.'s are movin' in, and we won't move out 'till the bishop says kin."

2 Communities Saving Money In Meat Curing

Co-operative Plant Proves Boon to Ivanhoe and Stilson.

By JACK WOOTEN.

Editor, Georgia Agricultural Extension Service.

The Ivanhoe community in Bulloch county has a co-operative community club which has received recognition throughout Georgia. But the major project that makes the chest of its members swell with pride is the co-operative meat-curing plant. This enterprise dates back to the infancy of the club—the early fall of 1932.

It was then that the farmers who make up the membership of the co-operative club began to worry about the coming meat-curing season. Hogs were selling for less than 3 cents a pound on foot, and the commercial curing plants were charging just about that much for a sugar cure. Something had to be done. It would hardly pay them to dispose of their live hogs. The farm homes were not equipped to cure the meat and there was one sure thing; they couldn't eat all the fresh pork before it would spoil.

It was then that the late John W. Davis came into the picture. The Georgia Agricultural Extension Service was called in to help, too. The county agent volunteered his services. The agricultural extension engineer and the swine specialist were asked for advice.

Through this co-operation with the agricultural agency, plans were drawn up for a community plant. Ivanhoe residents immediately subscribed enough money to build a small plant. Then the Ivanhoe folks invited the Stilson farmers in an adjoining community of the county to come in on the proposition. They accepted. It was decided to call the venture the Briar Patch meat curing plant.

Farmers co-operating with that project didn't get rich from their pork supply that season, but they did have the satisfaction of knowing they had plenty of cured meat safely tucked away in the community curing house. Besides, they received a much better price for the pork they did sell than they would have obtained by disposing of the hogs on foot.

Before the plant was built, farmers in the Ivanhoe and Stilson communities were paying about 3 cents a pound for a sugar cure and having to haul the meat several miles to a plant. The members now pay 2 cents a pound for a sugar cure in their own plant, so as to have it in their neighborhood who do not have an interest in the plant to take advantage of its convenience to the community. The stockholders get back the profits as a patronage dividend.

When the plant was started, the stockholders paid $25 a share. The machinery was then ordered, but before the equipment could be moved from the depot the bank in which all of the shareholders had their money closed its doors. And so each had to raise an additional $250 a share to get the machinery released.

But that is history. For several years now the stockholders have been getting some $5 per person back on their $25 investment.

The savings on shrinkage of the meat are nearly as great as the curing charges and a much better quality is obtained when it is cured under unvarying conditions. Then, too, meat cured under proper conditions can be sold for a more attractive price. The Briar Patch plant has another distinct advantage: The farmer member is sure to have an all-year supply of meat, and do not have to take chances on losing their meat while trying to cure it at home. For there was a time when loss from home-cured meat in Georgia ran into a staggering figure.

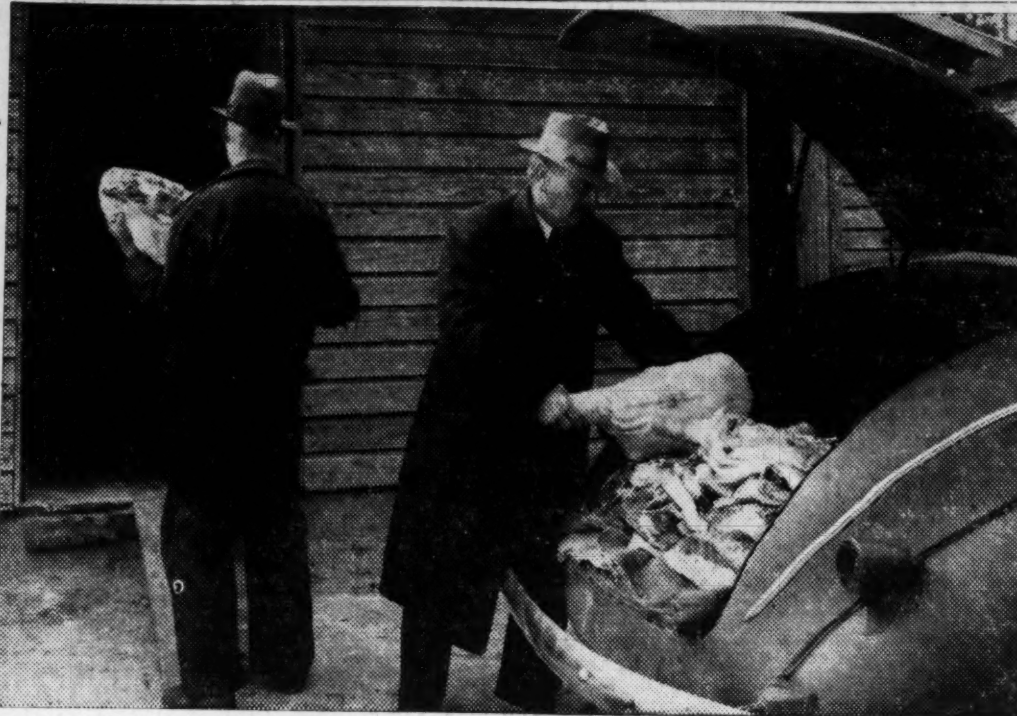

Members of this co-operative meat curing project do not have to wait for cold weather—and some years it takes a long time before frost comes on its first visit to south Georgia—but as early as October, when their hogs are fat and ready for the kill, they can go ahead and butcher. The availability of the curing plant makes it possible for these farmers not only to save feed by killing hogs in early fall, but it also enables them to utilize all their feed when hogs are not quite tops, and not have to kill when the first cool weather comes.

The time the meat is held in the curing plant depends upon its size and quality. Soft peanut meat will take salt more rapidly than firm corn-fed meat. However, as a usual rule, 30 days is the minimum time for good cure for small meat, while the time for larger meat runs from two and one-half to three days a pound.

The meat is removed from the Briar Patch plant just as soon as it is properly cured; that is, when the salt has stuck to the bone. To leave it longer would destroy all taste and make the meat too salty. While the pork is being cured it is taken down and resalted at least one time during the curing period. This insures higher quality and a sweet mild flavor.

The success of this plant has spread all over south Georgia, and during the past few years others have come into being and have proved their worth to farmers by enabling them to obtain larger profits for their meat.

And so, through this enterprise, the rural folks who are members of the Ivanhoe Community Co-operative Club have been a help not only to themselves, but to others throughout the state. The value of the meat curing plant well illustrates how they work together. The results they have obtained from this project is a mere sample of what a co-operative spirit and determination can do for the men who follow the plow, the women who tidy the homes, and the children who have become heirs to a thriving, healthy community that has its independence because its people have no desire to sit upon their individual thrones.

Planes Change Camouflaging, Barclay States

New Problems Created for Protection of Ships, He Declares.

By IRA WOLFERT.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The airplane, known for other wickedness, too, has changed the whole color of war as far as the camouflage experts are concerned, according to McClelland Barclay, the artist, who was himself a camouflager in the last war and is now once more engaged in that work for the United States Navy.

The tremendous advances made in the last war in giving ships particularly protective coloration have been wiped out by the plane, Mr. Barclay said, and little progress in solving the new problems has been revealed thus far. However, he believes the problems are not insuperable and that there exist tricks up many sleeves including some well-muscled ones quite near home. These tricks he declined to discuss.

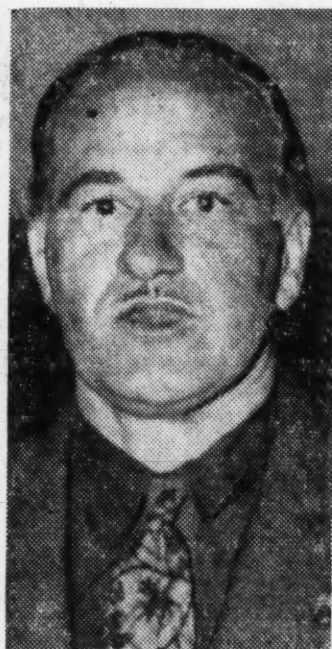

Mr. Barclay holds several camouflage patents. His best-known design was one which broke up the vertical line of a ship's funnel and made it trying for submarine range finders to focus with it. Range finders on submarines, like those on cameras, operate by bringing together a vertical line on the target and another on the finder itself. "When the two straight lines are in perfect alignment, with no overlap showing, the rigger is tripped and the target follows suit."

World War Success. "In the last war," Mr. Barclay said, "the whole process of dazzle camouflage was perfected to conceal the course of the ship. The lines of perspective were distorted by bright zig-zag streaks. From a distance, the stern looked very much like the bow and vice versa and it was easy to mistake which way the ship was going."

"There was ample evidence to indicate that dazzle camouflage on ships was indeed dazzling. For instance, there were several cases of enemy submarines popping directly ahead of the bow guns of their prey, evidently under the impression that they were coming up behind the ship for an easy pot shot. And there were many instances of torpedoes wasting their excellence on the empty sea behind the ship, the commander having judged his target's speed properly, but not its course."

"Also, ships in convoy found themselves unable to take their bearings on each other because they themselves were confused by camouflage."

"But dazzle camouflage was designed to function—or throw sea-going dust into the eyes of a periscope—at water level. The sky was the background.

Case of Airplane.

"In the case of the airplane, the water is the background and, if dazzle camouflage were used anyway to confuse the enemy in his submarine, the glaring zig-zag streaks would be as good as a neon light sign for the enemy in the air. You know, buoys are painted black and white, rather than red, because black and white is most visible against water."

"So, we see warships painted gray—a soot gray for those operating in the North sea where dull-colored air or misty winds are the rule; a light gray on the American Navy's ships which operate chiefly under tropical skies."

"These colors are good for decreasing visibility during most of the hours of the day, but, of course, they do not hide the ship's direction. Nothing is being used nowadays that can. What would you suggest, for instance, on a day of glassy sea when a ship's wake sticks out, from the air, like an arrow designed to point the way?"

Ground camouflage against airplane attack, Mr. Barclay declared, has made considerable progress, due to the fact that the problem has been largely removed from the hands of the painter and

Happy Memory Of Violin Lives In Milwaukee

Instrument Played at Hundreds of Weddings For 50 Years.

Charles Fink's violin rests in its net black case, the cherished possession of his children. There it will remain, its lilting music to be heard at Milwaukee Jewish weddings no longer.

Fink, who died recently at 79, played at hundreds of weddings during the half-century he lived in Milwaukee. Time was, in fact, when a Jewish wedding was incomplete if Fink was not there to play the traditional Russian, Polish and German folk tunes at the dance following the ceremony.

As a boy of 8, Fink began his musical career with a traveling choir in Rumania, Russia and Austria, where his father was a cantor. It was his father who gave him, when he was 10, the violin which he treasured for the rest of his life.

When Fink came to Milwaukee he was a cantor in a Jewish temple. For a time he led his own band. He was one of the first members of the Milwaukee Musicians' Association.

Illness last year prevented the silver-haired fiddler from keeping a promise of years' standing to play the wedding march at the marriage of his grandniece, Margie Axelrod. But at the time of the wedding, the strains of the "Lohengrin" march echoed softly through Fink's room as the old man, propped up on pillows, his fiddle under his chin, visualized the ceremony.

When Margie came to visit him after the wedding, he played the march again for her. Later he carefully placed his beloved instrument in its case. He had played it for the last time.

placed in the hands of the landscape architect and engineer.

"The British," he pointed out, "are concealing their factories from air observation by building fake villages—something like movie sets—on their flat roofs. In some cases, I am told, the villages are complete with streets and even trees."

"As far as I can learn, the Germans have concentrated on a program of placing their key industrial buildings underground. And, of course, there are the now well-known devices of breaking up the shadow patterns of guns with mesh nets so they cannot be spotted from the air and of hiding airports by scattering phony airports around them. The phony hangars and look like the real stuff, except for the important matter of combat planes."

Strange Drink Perfect Cure For Hangovers

Mexicans Find Concoction Works Wonders on a Blue Monday.

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Down in the Mexican quarter of old Tucson, a hangover is something to be cured, not endured. High-spirited Mexicans whose heads feel as big as washtubs after a week-end of celebration drink menudo, a strange concoction that works wonders on a blue Monday.

For many years menudo has been used by the Mexicans. As early as 4 a.m. on Sundays and Mondays vendors can be heard calling, "Menudo! menudo!"

It is a cooked mixture of hominy, tripe, marrow of a cow's leg bone, parsley, peppers and chopped onions.

The fame of menudo is spreading throughout the city, for businessmen and sportsmen, as well as Mexicans, are adopting it as a sure-fire remedy. The strange cure was concocted by Angelo Trejo.

Paul J. Cella, Jr., police magistrate, sentences inebriates who come before his bench to partake of the hot dish. It sobers them up so that they can almost immediately go to their jobs, he said.

Frieda Miller A 'Mother' To N. Y. Workers

Considers Those Who Object to Her as 'Misguided Children.'

By LON KAPFILL.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Mild-mannered Frieda S. Miller, successor to Frances Perkins as industrial commissioner in the Nation's most populous state, considers herself anything but "an over-anxious policeman."

"Mother" to four and a half million New York workers employed by 138,250 concerns, Miss Miller knows there are those who object to her activity. Most of them she considers misguided children.

"I don't shake a stick at anyone," she explains. "I do, however, love to listen and help people solve their problems arising from the perplexities of the industrial world."

Miss Miller has been listening and studying and talking and learning about employer-employee relations since she was a little girl in blond pigtails in La Crosse, Wis. She confesses to learning her first lessons there, at her grandfather's lumber mill.

"All the workers seemed to be happy," she recalls. "I remember once, when one of them complained about something, he went to grandfather, talked it over and ironed the problem out. There was never any trouble."

Ingenious Solution "In fact," she laughed, "when the workers' wives complained they couldn't get their men to appear for work Monday because of week-end binges, my grandfather changed paydays from Saturday to Monday and everyone was satisfied."

"It shows that, no matter what the situation, it usually can be settled to the mutual benefit of all."

This is the working philosophy of the woman appointed in 1938 to fill the job vacated a few years earlier by Miss Perkins, who became United States Secretary of Labor and first woman cabinet member.

Whether it's a stenographer asking what to do about "my boss who insists upon dating me after work" or a factory worker pleading for a job he lost "through no fault of my own," Miss Miller meets the type of complaint with the same purposeful tenacity.

Once she finds the existence of what she considers an "unjust condition" she wades into the situation and keeps hammering until something loosens.

The calm-appearing blue-eyed blonde, can, when occasion demands, become a virtual tempest of equitable enterprise.

For, she explains, a "satisfied employee is democracy's strongest bulwark against foreign invasion, and the American way of life."

Strong Vitality Today at 50, Miss Miller possesses a vim and vitality the envy of many women 20 years her junior. She can work 48 hours at a stretch—and has—yet appear as fresh looking as a schoolgirl.

She dislikes exercise of any form, and except for an occasional hike she regards physical exertion in itself a waste of time.

Outside of attending a play or concert or sports event, she has no hobby other than her work.

But that work includes flitting around the country by plane, train and automobile, covering hundreds of miles annually, observing labor conditions, attending court cases and addressing industrial leaders.

Miss Miller has a habit of appearing in unexpected places. She is known by almost every type of worker—from the coal miners of Pennsylvania to the mill hands in the south and the migrant laborers of California.

Before the outbreak of the European war she interspersed her national wanderings with frequent European junkets to study problems of the old world.

From these observations came her comparisons that "as a whole, New York employers are more conscious of their labor standards than are industrial leaders in most of the other states or countries."

Scorning personal credit, Miss Miller says "the majority of these relationships between employer and employees have been brought about by the groups themselves on agreed legislation."

"It's an axiom in today's industrial world that sweated industries, with payrolls barely meeting essentials, turn out poor production and in the long run wind up behind the eight ball."

However, when a recalcitrant employer continuously refuses to live up to law-prescribed labor standards, she drops in for a "chat to iron out the difficulty." It generally works.

Only in flagrant child-labor violations, which rarely come up, does she use the "stick of authority." Then she moves in like a tornado. Explaining, she says: "I can't stand seeing young children made into industrial pawns. I'm thankful we hardly ever have that violation in this state."

Another of her big headaches is caused by "fly-by-night outfits," organized in expectation of making a quick killing. They move into a town with a batch of rosy promises about creating jobs, run up a lot of debts and if things don't pan out, disappear in the night.

"Thanks to the men permanently in industry," she adds, "this type of human chisel is finding it hard to locate in communities which he can bleed."

Knows Both Sides. No textbook theoretician, Miss Miller knows both sides of industry and labor.

After graduation from Milwaukee-DuSable College, Milwaukee, in 1911, she migrated to the University of Chicago for post graduate work in labor subjects. She came east as research assistant in the department of social economy at Bryn Mawr College near Philadelphia and later became secretary of the Philadelphia Women's Trade Union League.

'NOT A POLICE WOMAN'—Frieda S. Miller is pictured at her desk where as successor to Frances Perkins as industrial commissioner of New York she considers herself as anything but "an over-anxious police woman." Her job is studying, listening, talking and ironing out employer-employee relations, a job that makes her "mother" to workers employed by 138,250 concerns.

She chucked the job in 1923 to attend the International Congress of Working Women at Vienna, and study labor conditions in England, Germany and Austria.

Returning to the United States, she became factory manager in New York City for the joint board of the Ladies' Garment Industry and kept moving up through various labor departments to her present post.

She predicts a bright future for America's working man, explaining "we have not yet used our full potential production capacity. We have enormous resources to improve the way of life for all Americans."

SURGERY FOR 14 YEARS.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Millard Brown, 29, Dallas, Ia., has had 48 operations in the past 14 years. Chronic osteomyelitis, a disease which causes abscesses on the bones, has brought him back to the university hospital here at least twice a year since 1926.

Noted New Mexico Road To Be Closed

SANTE FE, N. M., Nov. 20.—

(UP)—The Raton pass road, over whose twisting, climbing curves pioneers followed the Santa Fe trail south into New Mexico from Colorado, will be closed next spring after 120 years of use.

The route climbed steep grades and wound back and forth around the Raton mountains to the top of a 7,800-foot pass.

The new highway will be a more level route and will parallel the Santa Fe railroad tracks. It will eliminate the frequent switchbacks and steep grades over which adventurers, trappers, explorers, settlers and finally tourists have traveled since 1821.

Three Billions More in Pack Of U. S. Santa

Christmas Gifts Are Expected To Be Heaviest in a Decade.

By WILLIAM H. LOCHNER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(P)—Santa Claus' gift pack this season is expected to be heaped with the heaviest load he's had to carry in a decade.

This was the consensus today of Chicago's "Wholesale Row," center of gift and luxury trade for retail merchants throughout the country.

Americans will have approximately three billions more in their pockets to buy Christmas gifts, the Chicago Association of Commerce estimated.

Farm Income.

"Payrolls in the manufacturing industries have gone up 14 per cent. Farm cash income, with the crops all in, will reach the staggering total of nine and one-third billion dollars, up half billion dollars over 1939, and in the terms of purchasing power, the equal of 1929," the association reported.

The American Christmas, in sharp contrast to a gloomy holiday season in warring Europe, should approach a sales volume of two billion dollars, or approximately 10 per cent more than a year ago, if the measure of buying of holiday goods in Chicago is reflected in retail sales. This estimation made by the Association of Commerce was based on a survey of various wholesale markets which have been stimulated by better incomes of industrial workers.

In anticipation of this heavy business, retail merchants have added about one billion dollars worth of items to their holiday stocks, the survey showed.

Toys Are First.

The largest increase in Santa's load will be made up of toys. A survey of manufacturers by the merchandise mart indicates that their sales volume of toys had increased 50 per cent over a year ago. Sales of American-made dolls alone rose 75 per cent above a year ago, as a result of the cutting off of imported supplies. Sales of giftwares showed a gain of 25 per cent over 1939.

Retail merchants are expected to add millions of dollars to their payrolls during the holiday season. Last year some 250,000 found part-time employment, and this year the total in all probability will be larger, the association said.

Horseshoes Can Hardly Be Lucky to Mr. Sansom

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 20.

(UP)—Allie Sansom, city employee, moved into a new house a year ago. To be sure he would have luck there, he tacked a horse shoe over the door, then nailed a mule shoe under it.

Since then he has lost three pocketbooks containing a total of $90.70 and has been assaulted and severely beaten by a Negro.

If You Keep On Alert, You May Win $1

Identify Building and Write 25-Word Description of It.

Do you notice the buildings around you? Or do you take them for granted as just a part of the landscape?

The Constitution is publishing each day the portion of some well-known Atlanta building to help you learn more about your city. The reader who identifies the building correctly and writes the best 25-word description of its history and uses will receive a prize of $1.

Before you mail your identification, be sure you are positive about the location and its name. With this certain in your mind, speed the letter on to the Contest Editor.

More people failed to recognize the snapshot of the city hall, which ran in yesterday morning's paper, than in most of the other contests. R. A. Robinson, of 38 Capitol square, wrote more facts into his 25-word description than anyone else and therefore has been awarded the dollar prize.

Lithonian Tells Police He Was Brutally Beaten

Man Unable To Identify Any of Alleged Floggers.

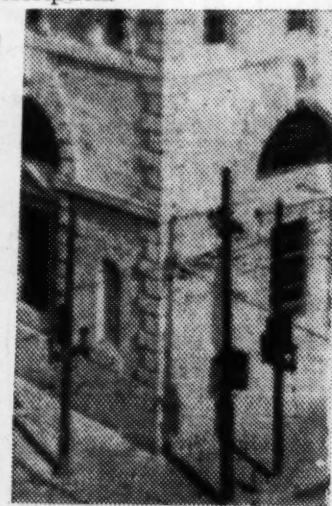

DeKalb county police are investigating a report made yesterday by Will Webb McDaniel, 25, of Lithonia, who said he was severely flogged late Monday night by six men, but was unable to identify any of them.

McDaniel said that two white men came to his home on the Rockbridge road about 10 o'clock and asked him to come out on the porch. When he did, McDaniel told officers, the men threw a sack over his head and strapped his arms to his sides.

Taking him about two miles into the country, the men along with four others allegedly beat and kicked McDaniel until he was unable to stand. McDaniel said that nobody spoke to him during the entire procedure.

McDaniel is an employee of the Consolidated Quarries at Rock Bridge. He is married and has two children. Detectives E. Griffin and John W. Jones have been assigned to check the assault.

Star Witness Of Prosecutor Cooks for Him

Andrews Accidentally Learns His Employee To Offer Testimony.

E. E. Andrews, assistant solicitor general, yesterday accidentally discovered that his cook, Annie Grogan, is the star witness in the case of the state against George Bailey, whom Andrews is to try on a robbery charge soon.

Andrews asked the cook to come early yesterday to help him pack for a hunting trip he was planning for Thanksgiving in South Georgia. She said she couldn't because she was a witness for the defense in a robbery case and had been subpoenaed.

When Andrews appeared at court, he discovered the case was one assigned to him for trial. However, it was postponed. Now he plans to use his cook as his star witness.

Willie Ross, jointly indicted with Bailey, yesterday entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to serve from two to three years by Judge E. E. Pomeroy. Ross and Bailey were indicted on charges of robbing Claude L. Mason of $17.15 after striking him over the head with a rock.

Southeastern Co-operatives To Be Listed

20 Per Cent of Georgia Farmers Belong to One of These Groups.

The Southeastern Co-operative Education Association, which met in Atlanta last week for a two-day conference, is now engaged in compiling the first directory of southeastern co-operatives, including credit unions, study clubs, buying clubs, co-operative stores, co-operative producers and marketing associations, co-operative filling stations, co-operative health, insurance and burial associations, rural electrification co-operatives, co-operative housing and recreation projects and many other kinds.

The directory is intended to help new co-operative ventures to get in touch with older ones and profit by their experience.

One of Five Farmers. Approximately one in every five farmers of Georgia has membership in a co-operative business activity or mutual company. The percentage of co-op membership is much higher in the country as a whole but Georgia's rate is growing, according to M. C. Puhrr, of Columbia, S. C., who points out that approximately half the paper-shell pecan crop of Georgia is marketed co-operatively each year.

Much of the cotton crop also goes to market the co-operative way. Dairy products are joining the procession, he says, with about 10 per cent of the milk and cream being marketed to co-operative factories.

Market Produce. Peaches, watermelons, potatoes and many other fruits and vegetables are marketed through co-ops. Georgia has around 80 farmers' marketing and purchasing co-operatives and mutual insurance companies.

There are about 100 credit unions in Georgia, about half of which are in Atlanta, set up on the principle of one vote per member regardless of the number of shares held and no voting by proxy. The credit union is set up by groups of employees in a single firm or by groups bound together by membership in some fraternal order or church. There are many teachers' credit unions. The purpose is to protect members from the loan shark and to promote thrift and small savings.

Third Cat Show To Open Here November 29

Felines Do Not Need Pedigrees To Enter Annual Exhibit.

The cats will stomp, preen, and parade to the music of their own meows when the third annual cat show, sponsored by the Cotton States Association, opens November 29, at 101 Cone street, corner of Poplar street. The two-day show will begin at 10 o'clock each morning and will close at 10 o'clock each evening.

Rules of the show will be those of the Cat Fancier's Association, and the contest will be judged by Mrs. J. H. Revington, Bristol, Virginia-Tennessee. Mrs. Revington, cat expert, has been breeding cats for 21 years and has won many honors in cat shows throughout the country.

There is no rule requiring a pedigree for cats entered in the show, and the classes include domestic cats or short hairs, which gives them a chance at the trophy list for their particular breed.

The ordinary house cat is also eligible for certain trophies and domestic cats may gain points for championship if they are solid colors or tabby types.

There is a large trophy list ready for the show, and here are classifications for entrants:

Kittens—On opening day, if a kitten is from 4 to 8 months old, it may compete in the kitten class. Junior kittens will be from 4 to 6 months old, and senior kittens from 6 to 8 months.

Novice—Cat that has never won a blue ribbon in any show.

Open—Cat which has won a blue ribbon. Both open and novice compete for blue, red and white ribbons as well as for special awards, or winner ribbon.

Champion cats will not compete except with champions, except for the best cat in show class and the best cat of color class. Entries have been received from numerous southern states and at least 100 breeder cats will be in a four-point show.

Mrs. Foster Prather, 450 Sterling street, N. E., is in charge, and entries must be in by Saturday.

POSTAL RECEIPTS SOAR. VIENNA, Ga., Nov. 20.—Receipts at the Vienna post office for October showed an increase of 33 per cent over those for the same period of last year, T. A. Adkins, postmaster, said.

FSA Families Observing Day Of Real Thanks

295 in Gwinnett County Achieving Security
'on Program.'

By DOYLE JONES JR.,
Farm Security Administration.
LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Nov.
21.—Substitute Georgia for Massachusetts, 1940 for 1621, 295
Gwinnett county Farm Security Administration families for a small band of Pilgrims, and with only the setting changed you have a Georgia Thanksgiving that in reverence and thankfulness, in joy and pride of achievement, rivals that first great occasion 319 years ago.

Just as the Pilgrims were pioneers in adventure, these Georgia farm families are pioneers in an agriculture they are learning for the first time. True, perhaps, their pioneering is less spectacular, for they crossed no ocean, fought no savage Indians, braved no trackless wastes, but just as these obstacles were met and conquered by those hardy first settlers of long ago then just as surely have these 295 families conquered the problems of land erosion, tenancy, land tenure, and the curse of a one-crop system.

Real Thanksgiving.

It is small wonder these FSA families will take time out Thanksgiving to count their recently-acquired blessings, which a few years ago seemed remote as the moon. Listen to what J. C.
Ellis, Gwinnett county FSA supervisor for six years, has to say.

"Conditions when I came here in 1934 were unbelievably bad.
Most of the families now on our program were living in tumbledown houses on farms long since worn out by a one-crop system of farming. These people had nothing—it was a rarity to find a family with a cow. All that most of them owned were a few household possessions, a poor, half-starved mule, perhaps a shoat and usually a large family. They knew nothing of modern farming practices and apparently cared less. Things looked hopeless, but we rolled up our sleeves and went to work. Six years later I can frankly say that the accomplishments speak for themselves."

Remarkable Contrast.

The evidence does speak elo-quently. In contrast to the poorly-fed, inadequately-housed, land-poor families of six years ago, today in Gwinnett county the 295
FSA borrowers have an average of two cows, two mules, 40 chickens, and three hogs with 230 quarts canned goods per family.
All have good gardens and on their land they raise food and feed enough for family and livestock needs and only journey to town for articles not to be produced on the farm. Houses and outbuildings have been repaired and still others constructed with the general appearance of the farms being improved nearly 100 per cent.

Twelve of the 295 families are

SEEKS OLD SOL—It's winter in Atlanta today, but somewhere the sun is shining—warmly enough to bask in. And that's exactly what slim Anne Nagel, of Hollywood, is doing, as she takes a day off from camera chores and gathers in a bit of Old Sol.

the Farm Security Administration and own their farms as the government has purchased the land and given them as long as 40 years to pay. Most of the 283 rehabilitated families have five-year leases and are assured of remaining on the same farm long enough to make material gain.

The cash income per family averages close to $400, five or six times greater than in 1934. Last year these 295 clients were loaned $40,000 and repaid 70 per cent of the matured loans, which shows financially they are keeping pace with their agricultural efforts.

Ellis this year is preaching three practical farming doctrines to his borrowers. He is stressing soil building, and attempting to solve the problems of land tenure, and the "march" of tenancy. Lespedeza, kudzu and numerous grains and hay are building up Gwinnett county soil and the five-year lease is slowing down moving at the end of the year.

So the year 1940 finds 295
Gwinnett families infinitely better off. Thanksgiving in 1934 was just another day, perhaps even ironical to them because there was so little for which to be thankful.
Today they number their blessings by the score. Improved health, homes, for the first time in their lives money in the bank, and last but not first, a chance to help themselves—all these are realities. They may not all eat turkey, perhaps their Thanksgiving meal will be far more humble.

But on that day with each mouthful of food that passes their lips a mighty song will swell in their hearts to their God, their government and themselves for safe direction and a courageous fight in perilous times. They have met adversity and won. They are thankful.

Ickes Renews His Feud With U. S. Publishers

Asks Comment on How Election Established Confidence in Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(UP) Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes today invited newspapers to comment on how re-election of President Roosevelt, with the support of "less than 23 percent of our press," strengthened "the popular confidence in the press that brings it the strength without which it cannot be free."

He renewed his long-standing feud with newspaper publishers in a statement issued through his office here.

"The statement marked another step in the running attack he instituted against newspapers on the whole prior to the election. He recently invited comment on his charge that the American press is suffering 'a progressively perilous decline in political prestige.' He said:

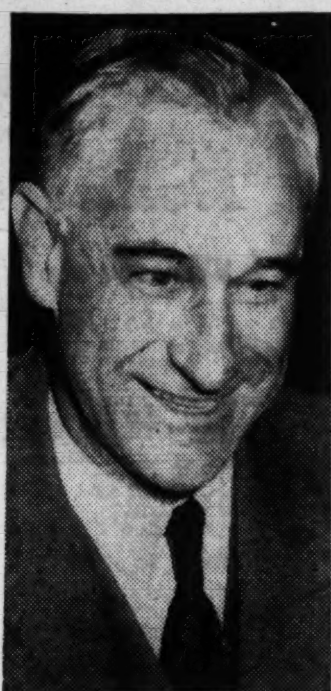

"Hundreds of publishers have graciously accepted my previous invitation and hundreds of editorials have appeared, offering hundreds of explanations on the press' handling of the recent campaign. In general, the conclusions of the publishers were that the press did a splendid, honest and praiseworthy job and that anybody thinking differently is a something-or-other who does not believe in the 'freedom of the press.'"

"Recalling recent statements to the effect that only those who have popular confidence can be strong and that only the strong can be free, I now, in friendly fashion, invited comment on how the recent election established the popular confidence in the press that brings it the strength without which it cannot be free."

Woman Loses Both Legs

WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 20.—(AP) Mrs. Joe Young had both legs severed when she was struck by a train at an uptown grade crossing here today. Her condition was described as critical at a local hospital.

Chief of Police Arthur Yawn said eyewitnesses told him Mrs. Young walked in front of the train, evidently not seeing it.

PRAISE—A. H. Lintz, field representative of the National Safety Council, yesterday announced that Atlanta ranked third in reduction of traffic fatalities in competition with 23 cities of the same population. He commended Atlanta's safety efforts.

City Ranks Third In Safety Record

In competition with 23 cities of the same population, Atlanta last year ranked third in reduction of traffic fatalities, A. H. Lintz, field representative of the National Safety Council, said here yesterday.

The city also ranked third in law enforcement, Lintz said, but was 18th on the list on a basis of traffic engineering—which means the elimination of natural traffic hazards.

Lintz will address a meeting of all Atlanta officials responsible for traffic safety development at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Press of U. S. Is Criticized by High Democrat

Publishers Against Third Term Suffered 'Shock,' Rosenblatt Says.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(AP) The American Federation of Labor convention today heard a vigorous criticism of American newspapers by a high Democratic party officer who charged that publishers opposing President Roosevelt's third term suffered a great "shock."

Sol A. Rosenblatt, general counsel of the Democratic national committee, told the assemblage that too many personalities "made" by the press, radio and movies "try to strut like Uncle Sam," and added "those who stand upon the principles of free speech and a free press must accept the responsibilities that go with those rights."

"It has been said," Rosenblatt declared, "that the greatest shock ever experienced by the newspapers of America was to wake up on the morning of November 4, 1936, and discover that they had no influence in the presidential election."

"A greater shock overtook them on November 6, 1940, when the great majority of American people gave their suffrages to President Roosevelt and returned him to the White House to continue his inspiring leadership of the nation."

"The newspapers this year were twice as solidly united against him as they were in the campaign of 1936."

"Those publishers who for years have been saying as Louis XIV said about the state, 'the public? We're the public,' are due for a great awakening."

The convention, in the first resolution approved, adopted unanimously a resolution advocating extension of social security coverage to state and local government employees not now covered.

Pledge to Canada.

Hemisphere defense came up for the first time when President William Green, responding to an address by Edward A. Jamieson, Canadian fraternal delegate, said:

"I declare that I know it is our purpose that if, for any unforeseen reason or in any unforeseen development, the dictator, the autocrat, the despot, the savage shall attempt to set his boot on Canadian soil, the United States will respond and will join with Canada in resisting any attempt to invade this continent."

DEDICATOR—Miss Jane Hurt, 16, youngest granddaughter of the late Joel Hurt, who Saturday will throw the switch turning on the large electrical fountain at the Joel Hurt Memorial Park, fronting the municipal auditorium.

Not only have all Atlantans been invited to witness the spectacle, but special invitations are being sent out to scores of persons to be honor guests of Hartsfield, city councilmen and members of the parks committee of council.

Descendants of Mr. Hurt, pioneer Atlanta builder, financier and philanthropist, will be special guests and will occupy a place of honor.

Architect to Speak.

Immediately after the band concert the mayor will take over. The Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, will deliver the invocation, and William C. Pauley, landscape architect, who laid out the park and directed its development, will explain the design and the reason for the shrubs and trees planted.

Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the board of trustees of the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation, will present the $15,000 fountain to the city, and Mayor Hartsfield then will accept it and immediately turn it over to George J. Simons, parks manager, and to Councilman Cecil Hester, chairman of council's parks committee.

The highlight of the event, however, will be the actual placing of the fountain into operation, the honor being reserved for Miss Hurt. A special electrical switch, installed at the platform, will be thrown by Miss Hurt.

The fountain, said to be one of the largest and most complete in the entire south, will blend water and color patterns, producing one of the most artistic outdoor shows many Atlantans have ever seen.

Atlanta has expended $42,000 in development of the site in addition to the $15,000 fountain outlay, by the foundation.

It will take 20 minutes for both the electrical and the water displays to complete their cycles, and the show is free.

After the dedication, the fountain will remain open each night, so that portion of Atlanta which could not attend the premiere show may see it.

Joel Hurt Park To Be Opened On Saturday

Girls' Band Will Play, Mayor To Preside at Ceremonies.

The new Joel Hurt Memorial Park, the only park area and civic beauty spot in Atlanta's downtown section, will be dedicated in ceremonies at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The exercises will mark the induction of the triangular plot into the city's park system and the first operations of the colorful electrical fountain.

Mayor Hartsfield will be master of ceremonies, and from the time the Georgia Girls' Military Band opens a half-hour concert, beginning at 4:30 o'clock, until Miss Jane Hurt, youngest granddaughter of the late Mr. Hurt, turns on the river of light at the fountain, the program will move with dispatch.

Not only have all Atlantans been invited to witness the spectacle, but special invitations are being sent out to scores of persons to be honor guests of Hartsfield, city councilmen and members of the parks committee of council.

Descendants of Mr. Hurt, pioneer Atlanta builder, financier and philanthropist, will be special guests and will occupy a place of honor.

Sidney Hillman Warns CIO of Foreign 'Isms'

Urges Delegates To 'Draft' Murray as Successor to Lewis.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Sidney Hillman, rejecting the suggestion of John L. Lewis that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers quit the CIO, warned the CIO convention today that Communists, Fascists and Nazis are a "menace" to the labor movement.

He pledged continued loyalty to the Congress of Industrial Organizations, urged labor unity and asked delegates to draft the reluctant Philip Murray, CIO vice president, to succeed Lewis as president.

Hillman, a member of the National Defense Commission, defended the New Deal and predicted the nation "will lick the unemployment problem within a year."

While calling on labor to cooperate in rearmament against attack by Europe's "human beasts," Hillman also revealed that he had conferred in New York yesterday with Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, and Vice President James Larkin, urging upon them the "need of accommodating" their labor policy with that of the defense commission.

Similar conferences, he said, have been scheduled with Ford Motor Co. officials. Both Ford and Bethlehem have been cited by the National Labor Relations Board for violating the Wagner Act in CIO labor disputes. Most CIO leaders contend that law violators should not receive defense contracts.

Hillman inferentially asked for a constitutional amendment to bar Communists, Nazis and Fascists from paid CIO offices, using as an argument the fact that Lewis' union, the United Mine Workers, has an old constitutional provision against Communists.

Prompt action is necessary in the Want Ad section of The Constitution.

Jackson Charges Are Nolle Prossed

A criminal assault indictment naming Graham Jackson, widely known Atlanta Negro musician, was nolle prossed by Judge John

D. Humphries yesterday in Fulton superior court at the request of the solicitor general. Eleven men of the jury had been selected when Quincy Arnold, assistant solicitor, told Judge Humphries that facts about the case which he had not known when the trial began had been brought to his attention.

He told the court he had been informed Judge Luther Z. Rosser Jr., in the civil court of Fulton county had sifted the charges against Jackson and dismissed the case. Also, he said, civil damage suits had been filed against Jackson and that the solicitor's office did not wish to prosecute a criminal case in support of civil suits.

U. S. Will Release 46 Giant Bombers to Britain

'Flying Forts,' Sperry Sights Part of Deal

Planes Have 3,000-Mile Range and Carry Four Tons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—The United States has released 26 huge bombers to Great Britain and may shortly augment them with 20 fully equipped "flying fortresses," the most deadly air weapon in existence, and carrying Sperry bombsights, Army Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall disclosed today.

He said that negotiations for the flying fortresses are progressing and that an official announcement is pending.

The bombers already released are 20-ton, four-engine ships produced by the Consolidated Aircraft Company, San Diego, Cal. Some of them are already in England, it was reported.

Exchanged for Motors.

In exchange for them, Marshall said, the U. S. Army Air Corps will receive enough motors, parts and as many as 200, to equip flying fortresses on which the Army has accepted delivery but which otherwise would be engineless until January 1.

The motors are Wright Cyclones, which the British have on order.

The consolidated bombers are similar to the flying fortress type but not so modern. Three of the 26 are scheduled for delivery this month, three in December and the remainder in January, Marshall said.

The flying fortress transaction, he said, envisages release of the aircraft fully equipped except for the Norden bombsight, most zealously guarded secret of the Army and Navy.

Carry Sperry Sight.

They will, however, carry the Sperry sight, which was recently released to Britain. It is considered very effective and as good as any devised by the Germans, but not quite as accurate as the Norden device.

The bomber-engine deal was announced on the heels of renewed British appeals for American aid against the Axis powers.

PLANES HAVE RANGE OF 3,000 MILES

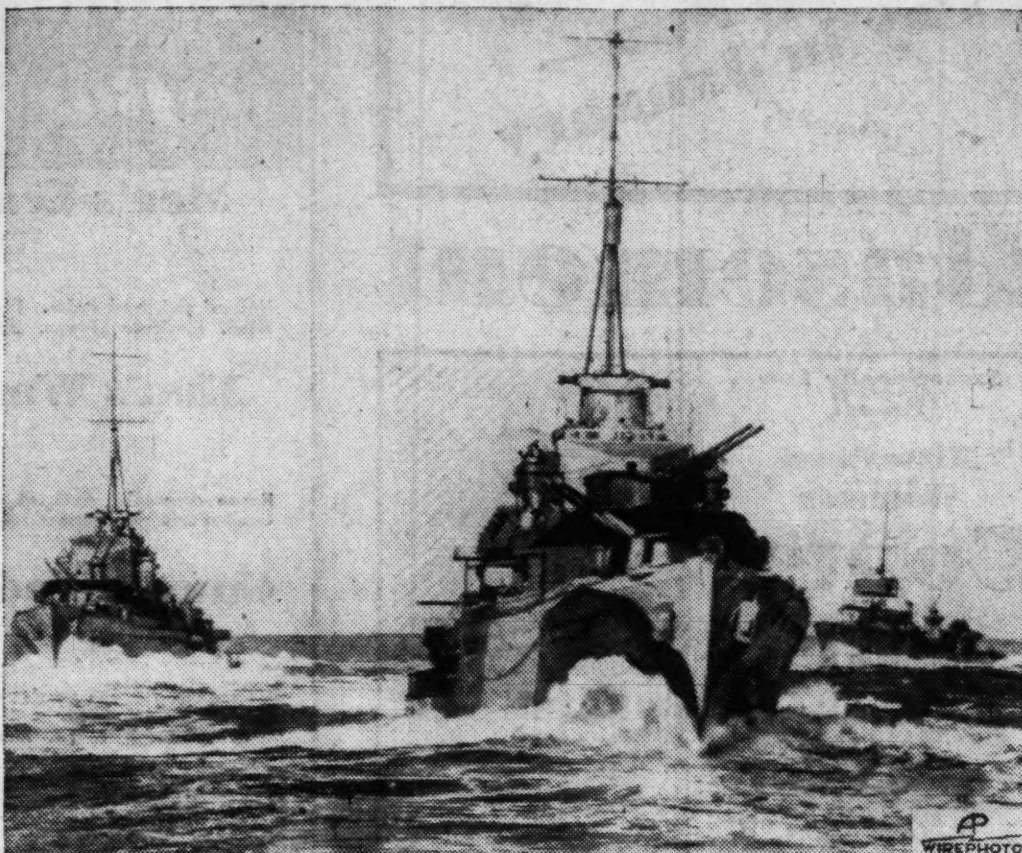

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The first of a fleet of huge four-motored long-range consolidated bombers, which the Army high command announced today had been released to Great Britain, received its initial tests here Nov. 2. The bomber, known as the B-24, weighs 20 tons, has a cruising radius of 3,000 miles and a speed of 300 miles an hour. On long-distance flights it carries a crew of nine, including three bombardiers and gunners, and four tons of demolition bombs.

SEADOGS ON PATROL—This flotilla of British destroyers, fast and dangerous hunters of the sea, sprays white water against the blue as they cut through the waves on high-speed patrol, always keeping a wary eye for any German raiders or U-Boats. All are in full war paint, ready for immediate action.

British Bombs Set Fire to Skoda Works

Czech Armament Plant Raided in 1,400-Mile Air Journey.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—In a flight over 1,400 miles of hostile air, including the return journey, British bombers were declared today to have set fire to the vast Skoda armament works in German-occupied Czechoslovakia.

The plant, in Pilsen, was the easternmost target reached in an overnight bombing campaign which extended also from the harbor of Barfleur, Norway, to Berlin.

A returning British pilot said specifically that he had seen flames spread over the factory and heard a subsequent violent explosion.

In the Berlin attack it was acknowledged that only small forces participated, but the air ministry said nevertheless that it had been an "effective" one in which "much damage" was believed to have been wrought to a big factory making German naval equipment.

A flier assigned to that job made a report that recalled the recent bombing of Munich while Hitler was there.

"We had one of the really big boys on board," he said, "a brother of the one I dropped at Munich a little time ago, and we let them have that first, followed by the rest of the heavy stuff, and then the incendiaries."

Munitions stores, said the ministry, were among the Berlin objectives bombed.

Hit, too, it added, were railway yards and junctions not only in Berlin, but in Bremen and Aurich and the important inland Rhine port of Duisburg-Ruhrort.

Lord Takes Stroll Over Time Bomb

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The street was unusually empty as Lord Trenchard, former commissioner of London's police, walked down it.

"When I got to the end," he recounted today, "a policeman saluted me and said: 'You walked over a time bomb, sir.'"

"Why didn't you stop me?" Lord Trenchard asked.

"Oh, we recognized you, sir," the policeman replied.

Cancel Neutrality With Nazis—White

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—William Allen White, Kansas editor and chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, vigorously denounced today what he termed America's "false neutrality with Germany."

"We can no longer hold ourselves aloof," he told the Union League Club. "We need not take up arms, but we must take sides. I believe the time has come when the United States should bring to a vote the cancellation of neutrality laws with Germany and the question of all aid to Great Britain."

White urged the introduction in congress of a "joint resolution which would give us freedom of action against an aggressor who broke all treaties."

Reserve Bank, Defense Group To Collaborate

Malcolm H. Bryan Will Be One of District's Zone Directors.

A new setup whereby the Federal Reserve Bank will act as a field agency for the National Defense Advisory Committee in this district was announced yesterday.

Ernest G. Draper will serve as general director of the entire reserve system's defense activities, and his office will collaborate with that of Donald Nelson, defense commission co-ordinator of purchases and director of small business activities.

In this district the zone directors will be Malcolm H. Bryan, Atlanta; Lewis M. Clarke, New Orleans; P. L. T. Beavers, Birmingham; Joel B. Fort Jr., Nashville; and T. A. Lanford, Jacksonville.

A circular letter was sent to 1,044 banking institutions in the district outlining the functions of the new machinery. They were described:

"To acquaint financial institutions with proper procedure in accepting assignments of claims against the government resulting from defense contracts."

"To assist business and banks in arranging the financing of defense supplies and facilities contracts and sub-contracts."

"To furnish business with information on the procedure and proper contacts to make relative to obtaining defense contracts; and generally to act as a local information center for the Defense Advisory Commission."

New Ambassador To Vichy Hinted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye said at the state department tonight that he expected a "pleasant" development in Franco-American relations in two or three days. There were indications that it might be the appointment of a new ambassador to Vichy.

Henry-Haye emerged smiling from the office of Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, and told newsmen that he could not disclose the purpose of his call.

The ambassador's call followed an earlier conference between William C. Bullitt, present ambassador to France, and President Roosevelt. Bullitt submitted his resignation on November 7, but said last week that the President had not accepted it.

Uniforms Asked For Home Guard

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Commanders and adjutants of the American Legion's 58 departments adopted a resolution today asking that the War Department provide a national uniform "for the purpose of equipping such state guard units as may be organized."

The resolution was presented at the closing session of the annual conference of the post commanders and adjutants and was referred to the Legion's national defense committee for further action.

Another resolution urged the federal government to issue in 1942 a commemorative stamp to mark the Legion's 25th anniversary.

Man, 77, Fatally Struck On Way to Hospital

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Lincoln Laughry, 77, struck down by a truck, was brought into the county hospital today.

"I was on my way over here anyway," he told doctors, "I'm to be operated on at 10 o'clock. But I didn't think I'd come in this way."

Laughry died a moment before he was scheduled to go on the operating table.

Fleeing Enemy Puts on Speed, Greeks Report

Greece Uses Cavalry To Catch Up With Fleeing Italians.

ATHENS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—The Italian base at Koritza, Albania, tonight was under Greek rifle fire from former Fascist defenses a mile outside the town while on the southern front the Greeks claimed Italians were retreating so fast that cavalry had to be used to keep up with them.

In a smashing drive at dawn, Grecian mountain fighters stormed the Italian defenses outside Koritza, drove the Fascists back into the town and took over the new line from which they fired into the town.

A war ministry communique said that Greek forces had crossed the heights in the Koritza region and now are advancing down the western slopes.

Two Divisions Destroyed. Of five Italian divisions defending the Koritza sector and the mountains surrounding the strategic Albanian town, at least two have been destroyed since the heavy fighting began several days ago, it was claimed.

Allied bombers, which this morning gave the Albanian capital of Tirana the heaviest bombing of the war, flew up and down the Argirocastro valley, turning the Italian retreat into panic, the Greeks said.

During the afternoon the Italian retreat was said to have been so rapid that only Greek cavalry could keep up with it.

Despite desperate Italian efforts to stem the Grecian advances by flying in fresh reinforcements, Greek shock troops reportedly smashed through the Italian lines on the southern front, making another wide hole near Metyni.

Best estimates are that the new gains netted 2,000 Italian prisoners, including high staff officers.

Rome dispatches expressed anxiety over the fate of Ettore Miti, 38, former secretary of the Fascist party and one of Italy's greatest war heroes, who is reported not to have returned to his air base after a bombing raid on Greece last Monday.

The Italians, falling back over the wide valley of the Argirocastro, left to the advancing Greeks 200 lorries, 10 heavy siege guns, four 3.7 anti-aircraft guns, hundreds of machineguns, large quantities of hand grenades, rifles, ammunition and motorcycles.

The Greeks were said to be abandoning attempts to storm Italian positions in the mountains and instead are surrounding them in order to cut off the Fascist forces from supplies.

Simultaneously, other Greek units are moving down the Koritza plain, advancing on the town itself.

Pierce fighting continues on part of the Morova heights where the Italians are holding positions toward the westward slope.

Prisoners arriving from the Argirocastro sector were reported to have said that the alleged Italian rout began in that region when Albanian natives revolted and shot some officers.

General Melee Follows.

The entire front began breaking and the Italians were said to have started falling back when machineguns were opened up at random in an effort to halt the panic. A general melee developed, it was said, as allied bombers and fighters appeared.

Military observers here are of the opinion that if the present Greek progress continues the Albanian port of Sante Quaranti itself will be threatened.

Unofficial estimates tonight were that the Greeks had captured 6,000 Italian prisoners and killed about 2,000 Fascist soldiers. Greek troops were reported advancing on all fronts despite bombing and strafing by as many as 400 Italian planes.

A communique said that eight Italian planes had been shot down by the Royal Air Force over Albania in the first major aerial battle of the war. The announcement did not give the exact location where the action occurred but it was believed that RAF planes were co-operating with Grecian troops smashing toward Koritza and elsewhere on the Greco-Albanian border.

Bayonet Battle. (A Greek radio broadcast, picked up in Budapest, said that British and Greek planes in a big battle on the northern front, had shot down nine Italian bombers and a pursuit plane. It added that one British plane was lost in the battle.)

In the Koritza sector, Grecian mountain fighters drove back Italian forces at bayonet-point from strong positions which were defended stubbornly, a Greek war communique said.

Fighting was said to be fierce in the Morova mountains, but the high command said that the Greek offensive action "continued with success."

Vichy Warned By de Gaulle On Reprisals

Threatens Death to 8 If Dakar Aides Are Doomed.

VICHY, France, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Vichy government announced tonight receipt of a telegram from General Charles de Gaulle—whom it has sentenced to death in absentia as a traitor—warning that "eight men of Vichy will pay with their lives for any attempt on the lives of free Frenchmen" held by Vichy authorities at Dakar, Senegal.

He said the reprisals would be carried out at Gabon, French Equatorial Africa, which is in the hands of the De Gaulleists.

The colonial ministry announced that no reply would be made and that the French government would apply its laws and render justice.

"Free French" adherents were taken prisoner in De Gaulle's recent abortive attempt to seize Dakar, chief port of French West Africa.

The message mentioned the names of eight officers who, "I hear," are to be court-martialed at Dakar and "are in danger of their lives."

De Gaulle added that he was holding at Gabon General Marcel Tetu, Vice Governor General of French Equatorial Africa, two colonels and a major.

"I propose an immediate exchange," De Gaulle wrote.

'Tea Time' in Memphis Leads to One Arrest

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 20.—(AP)—From a distance, it looked like tea and it was being poured from a tea pot into tea cups.

But a watching policeman was suspicious of so many straight tea drinkers.

He investigated and found it was not the stuff served at nice tea parties.

So he arrested a Negro waiter, charged with selling whiskey by the drink in violation of state laws.

Italians Posed As Greeks in Corfu Bombing

Last English Woman To Leave Island Tells of Terror.

(Editor's Note: The following dispatch, written exclusively for the United Press by Alma Godfrey, 28, native of Cornwall, England, who was employed as a governess at Corfu before the outbreak of the war, and who was the last English woman to leave the island, gives the first connected story of events on the heavily bombed island.)

By ALMA GODFREY.
(Copyright, 1940, by United Press)
ATHENS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—I have just come from the most bombed island in the Mediterranean after a nightmare journey of three days in a tiny motorboat through mine fields, torrential rains and submarine-infested waters.

The island paradise of Corfu has been turned into an island of terror by Italian bombers.

People flee to caves. Inhabitants are now living in the hills or caves to escape the showers of death which have not ceased from the skies for more than a fortnight.

The first indication of war we had at this peaceful, sun-bathed island was a visit from five monoplane flying the Greek colors of blue and white on November 2 at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

They bombed us and then went away and were followed by another relay of five bombers.

These bombers hovered around, dropped their loads and then flew off only to be followed by others which continued to arrive until nightfall.

First they confined their attacks to the town of Corfu, but after pounding the town daily for as much as eight or more hours they began extending their attacks through the whole island.

When I left they not only were bombing the town but villages, fields and isolated cottages.

Thought They Were Greek. In just over a fortnight of bombing they killed 75 people and wounded more than 400.

When the first group of bombers came over everyone thought they were Greek and cheered.

I was in the street looking up at them when, mechanically, slowly and seemingly without concern, they started to unload their cargoes of destruction and death.

The German consul's wife, Frau Spangler, caught my arm and screamed:

"Take cover, you fool!"

We darted into a near-by cellar where the thought swept my mind that if bombs did get me they would get an enemy subject with me, too.

The first bomb fell in the Jewish quarter, burying 17 persons alive in one house.

The German consul, after the first wave passed over, immediately hung out five Swastika flags, apparently hoping the Italian pilots would see them and leave him alone.

The first days of the intensive raids made many persons flee to the hills with the result that those of us who remained in town had only bread to eat.

200 in Catacombs. The people lived in the open, sleeping on blankets and with nothing to protect them from the rain. The poor people took shelter in the catacombs underneath the ancient fortress built by the Phoenicians.

About 700 persons live there now. Most of the occupants took folding cots or mattresses into the catacombs and they never move out because the raids are so incessant. They prepare their food and do their washing there.

After a day of terror, about 2 o'clock in the morning on November 3, I heard a noise which I thought was strong thunder.

One of the island corps watchmen, whose duty it is to guard the coast, rushed into my house yelling that the Italians were attempting a landing.

I scrambled out of bed, pulling on a few clothes. I could see a confused mass of warships which I took to be British, Greek and Italian.

Sees Ship Sink. The sky was lit up by flashes from the naval guns and explosions. I saw one ship hit—saw a terrific flare and then gigantic flames break out. The ship slowly sank beneath the waves, rearing high in the air from the stern.

I was told that the Italians attempted a landing at a later date, but I can not say there were such efforts. Anyway, no Italians landed on the island.

The second day the Italians attempted to dive-bomb the town

Greeks Using U. S. Style in Close Fighting

Soldiers Utilize Rocks and Trees for Shields in Advance.

SALONIKA, Greece, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Hundreds of Italian prisoners and wounded Greeks have been arriving here daily, showing an increased tempo in Greek-Italian fighting.

Greek and British air forces are reported to have taken the offensive against the Italians, bombing Albanian cities to disrupt the communications of the harassed invaders.

A soldier writing recently from the front said land fighting was in the World War style.

Italian positions in the mountains first are heavily shelled by artillery, he said.

Then Greek infantry charges up, "moving from rock to rock and tree to tree as the Americans used to fight." After an infantry advance, he said, artillery is laboriously pulled by hand or by mules to new positions and assaults begin on neighboring objectives.

Behind the lines, the government has ordered all property belonging to Italians to be surrendered and strengthened restrictions on travel. Both Greeks and foreigners are now required to obtain police permits to move from one city to another.

Despite the war, the American colony in Macedonia tomorrow will celebrate Thanksgiving Day at a turkey dinner at the American farm school, with Director Charles House.

Spectators Yield Guns At Trial in Kentucky

BEATTYVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Judge Charles L. Seale, presiding over a murder trial, told members of the courtroom audience today to check their shooting irons at the door.

Sheriff's deputies collected thirty pistols.

of Corfu. Six planes came roaring out of the sky with sirens wide open. Machine gun bullets spat-tered everywhere, sounding like a chorus on the river Thames.

They dived so steeply that it seemed impossible they could pull themselves out before crashing into the rooftops which they barely cleared as they dumped bombs of various sizes, including fire bombs.

I saw 20 bombs dropped in one garden alone.

Italian Officials Hide. British Consul Guy Clark, of Worthing, England, refused to leave the island. He is the only Briton there now. There are no Americans.

The police rounded up 1,500 Italians, placing Italian Consul Gloria and Italian Vice Consul Scapini under house arrest but later they were seen taking shelter along with the Greeks during the air raids.

Food supplies were quickly organized so we could obtain them daily, but Corfu became a town of the dead.

I left aboard a small motorboat manned by a Greek skipper, two men and a boy, none of whom spoke English. We left under cover of darkness and reached Lequais at 5 o'clock in the morning, where we had coffee and food. My, how good it tasted!

We remained until 5 o'clock in the afternoon and then left.

Inhabitants of the island pleaded with us not to leave, stating that we were throwing our lives away. But I felt since we had come so far we might just as well go on.

Pass Through Mines. We traveled always by night through drenching rains and rough weather. I lay on a plank covered by a single blanket. Several times I was pitched off because the weather was so rough. I vomited until I thought I must lose my entire insides.

Suddenly, I heard the captain yelling and joined him to see what was happening.

We were in a mine field, but we had no maps or charts since none of the Corfu fishermen use them, knowing their own waters like their own hands. We picked our way gingerly through the mine field.

We finally arrived at Patras more dead than alive. Did it seem good? Rather! All I wanted was a hot bath and a bed.

Nazis Hurl Bombs on Midlands at Rate of One Every Second

Hungary Joins Axis Alliance Dedicated to Britain's Defeat

Von Ribbentrop Declares New Pact 'a Challenge to All War Inciters and to Any Power Favoring Extension of the War.'

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—(P)—Adolf Hitler today announced the German-Italian-Japanese Axis which he thus converted into a four-power alliance dedicated to the defeat of Britain and to the totalitarian reorganization of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Without fanfare they affixed their signatures. While crowds of curious Viennese jammed the streets outside, the Hungarians issued a statement saying "Hungary joins the Berlin three-power pact with the intention now, and also in liquidation of the war, to contribute within the limits of her power toward a better and happier political and economic reorganization of southeastern Europe."

Hungary, the statement recalled, "thrown to the ground through the unjust, demoralizing Paris peace dictates," had turned to those powers "suffering from an equal fate" and, by German and Italian support, had regained territory from vanished Czechoslovakia and recovered from Rumania the Province of Transylvania "without spilling blood."

Von Ribbentrop declared the pact was "a challenge to all war inciters and to any power which is in favor of extension of the war."

'Total' Attack On Industrial Area Resumed

Raid Waged With Full Blitz Fury; Barrage Dulls New Offensive.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Thursday) (UP)—Sky raiders resumed the all-out attack on the Midlands last night and early today, striking fiercely at a town in the rich industrial area and dropping bombs at the rate of one a second.

The raid was waged with full blitzkrieg fury. It was concentrated in the early phase on one area, as was that which devastated Coventry last week and badly damaged another town in the West Midlands Tuesday night.

At the end of the first hour, during which terrific explosions had rocked the town in almost unbroken succession, the attack had lost none of its ferocity.

Spectacular Battles. The vanguard of the raiders swept over the town shortly after dusk. Dodging through the searchlight beams raking the sky, they breasted an intense anti-aircraft barrage to take their bombs over the city and drop them.

Observers on a hilltop overlooking the town watched one of the fiercest and most spectacular night battles between the invaders and British defenses that had been seen in that part of Britain. Raiders also were reported over other scattered sections, but early indications were that the main strength of the German air force again was focused on the Midlands.

(A terrific anti-aircraft barrage, however, dulled the edge of the new offensive, the Associated Press reported.) After an alarmless day the sirens sounded in the London area later than usual. In the early part of the alarm no gunfire was heard and no planes were audible in the cloudless sky.

Fly Through Barrage. As has been the case previously when the raiders were concentrating on some inland objective, most of the planes passed by London. Relays of raiders passed over the East Midlands, flying in a southerly direction and running a gauntlet of fierce anti-aircraft fire. Others tried to cross the southeast coast and met such a withering barrage that many turned back to sea without dropping bombs.

In addition to the main attack on the West Midlands town during the night, raiders admittedly struck telling blows at other parts of that section crowded with industries vital to Britain's war effort.

Second Coventry. The raids extended over a considerable area, including towns and rural districts. Many high explosives and incendiaries were dropped on a town near the one which suffered the primary assault.

(While British censorship forbade mention of the name of the town, Berlin reports told of a dusk-to-dawn attack on Birmingham, in which more than 1,000,000 pounds of bombs were dropped and the great industrial city became a "second Coventry.")

In one town a hospital was reported hit and set on fire, but its patients were evacuated without casualties. Elsewhere many scattered casualties were reported.

The morale of the citizens held firm, the Associated Press said. At dusk the queues before the shelters were larger than usual and one man said: "Wonder if hell will be on time tonight?"

Flares showered on a town in the east Midlands, heralding its most severe raid of the war. Casualties were heavy. Incendiaries started raging fires at several points. Business premises suffered heavily.

172 Victims Buried. At Coventry 172 victims of the last week's raid were buried in a common grave in a bomb-cratered cemetery. Authorities will erect a memorial later.

The air and home security ministries said an enemy bomber on reconnaissance patrol in the Midlands during the day was chased off by British fighter planes and shot down in the sea.

Little other air activity was reported in Britain. A few bombs fell in Kent, but they caused little damage and few casualties.

College Students Hear Mayor-Elect

A comparison between military preparedness and preparedness for life was drawn last night by Mayor-elect LeCraw in a talk at the homecoming banquet of Georgia Evening College. Himself a former student at the institution and a recently-retired major in the Georgia National Guard, LeCraw pointed out the similarity which exists between youths preparing for a "battle in life" and an army getting ready for an attack.

His talk followed the presentation of a $100 cash award to Harry Fenn, who last year made the highest average in the freshman class. The award was presented by Gordon B. Brooks.

THANKSGIVING EVE—AT COVENTRY—While anti-aircraft guns barked at a lone German raider over this town city yesterday, 172 of the persons killed in last Thursday's night-long air attack were buried in a common grave. Grim Britons filed past the flower-strewn, flag-covered trench in which coffins were laid three deep. Another mass funeral will be held today, but England "carries on," undaunted and unswerving.

Officials Deny Navy Stopped Foreign Ships

Knox Says Some of New Atlantic Bases Already in Use.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(P)—Denials by officials of the State and Navy Departments today that United States destroyers had interfered with shipping off the Mexican coast deepened the mystery over the reported halting and search of two ships outside Tampico on Monday.

Crews of the Mexican tanker Cerro-Azul and the Honduran freighter Celba were quoted in reports from Mexico City as saying that three American destroyers had stopped them and examined their papers and cargo. They were said to have identified the destroyers as the Broome, Gilder and Plunkett.

The incident was reported to have occurred in the vicinity where one German ship was scuttled last week.

Summer Welles, acting secretary of state, made the first denial today, asserting that no United States destroyers had at any time entered Mexican territorial waters, stopped or halted any vessels entering or leaving Tampico.

Secretary of the Navy Knox said later that American ships of the neutrality patrol had stayed at least ten miles from the Mexican coast. The commanders of all vessels operating in the western Gulf of Mexico, Knox said, had reported that at no time or place had they stopped or searched any foreign flag merchantmen.

"It seems a pity," Knox added, "that false statements mainly for the sake of propaganda have been given out in regard to American vessels now on neutrality patrol."

At the same time Secretary Knox disclosed that the Navy already is using some of its new Atlantic bases, recently acquired from the British, and expressed belief that development of all of them would go forward rapidly.

He said long-range planes on neutrality patrol now are stopping at Bermuda, St. Lucia and Trinidad and added he thought that some United States naval vessels probably are using the harbor at St. John's, Newfoundland. At St. John's he said the Navy has "a whole bunch of men" doing preliminary work on shore facilities.

Blasted British City 'Takes It' Nonchalantly

Bombers Wreak Havoc on Buildings But Few People Are Killed.

By HARRY L. PERCY. A WEST MIDLANDS TOWN, England, Nov. 20.—(UP)—German bombers blasted this town from dusk until dawn today, blasting it with unprecedented fury for this area, but today it was no more punch-drunk than London after one of the many bad nights the capital has endured.

The town has by no means been "Concentrated"—a new war word coined to express the annihilation the Germans wrought on Coventry last Thursday night.

(Censorship prohibited identification of the town. In Berlin the Germans said their dive bombers dropped over 1,000,000 pounds of bombs on Birmingham in a 10-hour "revenge" raid which turned it into a "second Coventry.")

Dawn was breaking as I reached the outskirts of the town from London. The all-clear was sounding the end of the raid. Everything looked normal at first glance and I wondered if I had come to the right place.

The familiar signs soon began to appear—rows of small shops with no windows and their goods exposed; here and there a gap in a row of buildings, smoking ruins at the bottom of it; firemen wearily winding up hoses.

A survey indicated that the damage was confined for the most part to stores, offices, houses. The shopping section suffered heavily. In some of the shopping streets scarcely a plate-glass window remained. Even those with protecting devices had been smashed. The sidewalks and gutters were filled with shattered glass.

Tailors' Dummies Corpses. Tailors' dummies, some of them nude, were the only "corpses" to be seen. Some were thrown about in grotesquely real attitudes. As far as could be ascertained, casualties were not heavy.

The scenes were so reminiscent of those in London that it aroused a momentary feeling that the trip had been in a circle.

There was the familiar tinkle of glass being swept up and traffic getting in tighter and tighter snarls as it detoured around cordoned areas.

But buses and trams were full of workers, and more thronged the sidewalks. Like Londoners, they had become too blasé to rubberneck at the damage.

Raiders criss-crossed the skies over the town after hour throughout the night, dropping incendiary and high-explosive bombs over a wide area.

The bombs wrecked more than 50 stores, a number of houses, and damaged additional buildings in many districts.

Nurse Enlists In Army for Year's Service

Miss Bresnahan Declares Men Better Patients Than Women.

By DEEZY SCOTT.
Nurse Bresnahan is in the Army now, and one of the reasons she signed up for a year's voluntary service is that men are easier to nurse than women—or so she says. Miss Margaret Bresnahan graduated from the nursing school of St. Joseph's Infirmary several years ago, and signed up as a Red Cross nurse, which any registered nurse may do if she passes certain Red Cross tests. And after that she started nursing private cases, mostly operative, and forgot all about being signed up with the Red Cross.

But about a month ago Miss Bresnahan received a letter from the War Department, as did most Red Cross nurses, asking her to volunteer, and she did, not knowing where she would be sent, what her duties would be, or anything else about army life for a woman. Last week her orders came: Report to Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., for duty. Being your own uniforms, the Army said, and prepare to work in an Army hospital for one year.

Considering her theory that men are better patients than women, mainly because men don't primp, and women do, even if they are dying," she left her with happy anticipation of working in an all-man hospital.

Several other Atlanta nurses have placed their faith in Uncle Sam and joined the Army, too. Among them are Miss Elyse Grier and Miss Agnes McGowan. They all agree that volunteering for Army duty is not a sacrificial move, and even though patriotism is a factor in helping the girls make up their minds.

Their pay is good, not so much as they make as private nurses, but the army gives them room and board besides. And, according to Nurse Bresnahan, the rigid discipline applied to soldiers, does not apply to nurses who expect to have as much freedom in the Army as in private practice.

State School Heads To Open Parley Here

Dr. John W. Studebaker Will Address Opening Session Tomorrow.

Fourteenth annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Administrators, formerly the Georgia Association of School Superintendents, will open tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel and continue through Saturday with L. D. Haskew, of Monroe, Ga., president, in charge of the program.

The opening meeting will be at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning with Dr. John W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, of Washington, D. C., as principal speaker. Governor Rivers will attend the session and J. L. Allman, president of the Georgia Education Association, will give the welcoming address. Superintendent C. C. Willis, of Greensboro, Ga., will give the response.

The theme of the convention will be "Better Public Relations for Better Schools." Members of the organization are county and city school superintendents in Georgia, State Department of Education members, and heads of all schools in the state. New officers will be inaugurated during the convention.

Other speakers at the morning meeting include Superintendent Ralph Newton, of Waycross, who will discuss "Let the People Know," and Captain Frank Spencer, chairman of the Board of Education of Chatham county, who will speak on "The Board of Education and the Public."

At 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, Dr. Karl W. Bigelow, director of the Teacher Education Commission of the American Council of Education, Washington, D. C., will speak on "The Teacher and the Public."

Dean Walter D. Cocking, of the University of Georgia, will speak at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning on "Educational Statesman and the Public," and following adjournment the group will be the guests of Dr. M. L. Brittain, of Georgia Tech, at the Tech-Florida football game.

Other officers of the organization, which has a membership of nearly 500, are Superintendent W. E. Knox, Gray, Ga., vice president; Superintendent Allen C. Smith, Quitman, Ga., secretary, and Harvey Cutts, Greenville, Ga.; Paul Calhoun, Mt. Vernon, Ga., and T. T. Benton, Jefferson, Ga., directors.

Eastern Air Lines Profit Shows Gain in 9 Months
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(P)—Eastern Air Lines, Inc., reported yesterday net profit for the September quarter of $58,295, or 10 cents a share, compared with $93,424, or 17 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, president, attributed the decline in earnings to adjustments in the federal income tax under the excess profits law, to the addition of new equipment in preparation for the coming winter season and to at least $75,000 added expense for a "strenuous training program" of ground and flying personnel.

Sally Forth SAYS

Students To Hold Reunion Today in Washington, D. C.

... WITH JUST ONE day off for Thanksgiving, Atlanta boys and girls who are away at distant schools were faced with the prospect of a lonely holiday, especially those who will be absent from the family table for the first time on "turkey day."

But not for long were they downhearted. For youth has an amazing way of overcoming obstacles. Even last summer, before they left for school, one group planned to get together on Thanksgiving Day to celebrate the all-too-brief holiday. You see, each member of this particular group is in school in or near Washington, and they plan to meet there today for a grand celebration. The celebration will take the form of a dinner party to be held at Shoreham hotel this evening, the affair to climax a grand day of shopping, sightseeing, etc.

But wait till you hear the personnel of the party. First there are the Mt. Vernon and National Park girls, who are already in Washington, of course. The group then includes Dorothy Giddings, Martha Blacklock, and Isabel Woolford at Mt. Vernon, and Jane Carmichael, Lucile Brewster and Harriett Callaway at National Park. Then there is Angelique de Golan, who is a student at Georgetown University. Joining this group from Sweet Briar College in Virginia, which is only a stone's throw from Washington, will be Catherine Tift and Alice Johnson.

The masculine contingent will include Alex Hitz Jr., who, as you know, is enrolled for his first year at his father's alma mater, the University of Virginia. He will be joined in Washington by Tyler Gresham, who is a student at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., and Bob Powers, who attends the University of North Carolina.

You can well imagine the gay time in store for these Atlantans who will spend the entire evening dining and dancing in the Shoreham's beautiful blue and silver dining room. Mrs. Glenville Giddings, who is in Washington to spend Thanksgiving with Dorothy, will chaperone the party.

Martha Blacklock, it seems, is in for a bit of trouble in making connection at all the places she is expected to appear during the holidays. Last evening she was among the visiting belles attending the hop at Annapolis, but she can be counted on to be back in time for tonight's party. And early tomorrow morning she will leave for New York to spend the remainder of the week. Which, according to Martha, will be her last fling before she arrives home on December 18 to spend the Christmas holidays.

Another gathering of youthful Atlantans in Washington today will be at the invitation of Laura Palmer, who moved to the national capital last summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Palmer. Laura has planned an Atlanta luncheon at her home, and special guests will be her classmates, Jane Carmichael and Lucile Brewster, who graduated with her from Washington Seminary last June.

... THE WORLD'S FAIR Anthology of Verse, published in New York city, pays special tribute to Kathryn Barnwell Dudley, in printing her poem entitled, "War." Kathryn, as you know, is a member of the society department of The Atlanta Constitution, and has an exceptional literary turn of mind.

In her timely and purposeful composition, she expresses the confusion, chaos, pain and fear so poignantly associated with war. The poem follows:

There is no love, there is no light
In all this God-forsaken night.
Confusion, chaos, pain and fear,
All are ever present here.
Machine guns rattle, cannons roar,
And overhead the bombers soar.
A flare of light, a siren's wail—
Even the dripping sky turns pale!

This I never can forget—
Oh, for a match, a cigarette!
A cry of warning from the street,
The muffled sound of marching feet.

Then a sudden breathless calm,
People tense, growing alarm.
Judgment's come! A bomber's shell
Has changed the world to fiery hell!

Our flag still waves its stripes of red,
But on the field are strewn the dead . . .

... MEMBERS OF THE Debutante Club had little trouble finding their places at the recent luncheon at which Mrs. Frank Tindall and Mrs. Furman Smith were hostesses honoring Martha Merritt, popular secretary of the club.

You see, the clever hostesses had produced pictures of the debs on each placecard. The pictures, incidentally, were those used recently in The Constitution.

Colorful decorations beautified the luncheon table and the plump molded chicken featured the honor guests' names outlined with red pimientos!

... IN SPITE OF AN amusing practical joke played upon them, the former Helen Redding and Gus Dozier were married on time last Saturday at the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church. The difficulty was in getting Judge Jeffries, ordinary of Fulton county, to issue the couple a marriage license because he had received previous orders to the contrary. The reason was the following letter:

"Dear Judge: Matilda says she overheard my boy, Gus Jr., say he was gonna go ahead and marry that gal. I told him he aint a gonna do nothing of the sort. After I done schooled him here he is trying to leave me in the lurch even afore he turns 21. Look a here, Judge, donta you go giving that child no license to wed. I'm warning you. Very significantly, Gus Dozier Sr. P. S. He probably will give the name W. A. Dozier."

When Gus appeared at the courthouse to purchase the all-important license, he was met with stern denial. But after a great deal of frantic explaining and a confession by the prankster, who turned out to be one of the groom's business associates, the license was issued posthaste!

... CONNIE DINKLER (Mrs. Carling Jr.) is noted for her unusual parties, and the one last Monday evening was no exception. Connie and Carling, you know, entertained at the Rainbow Roof for Isabel Vretman and Margaret Winship, two of the most popular members of the debutante set.

A feature of the party was the award of a big, fat turkey as a prize, and it goes without saying that the old gobbler created lots of excitement as he stepped out of the decorated box on the center of the table. Jack Jetton was the winner, and he presented the prize to his date, Emmakate Vretman, sister of the honor guest.

Tuesday morning when the maid arrived at the Vretman apartment, she was greeted by the turkey. It goes without saying the bird will reign in typical Thanksgiving style on the Vretman table today.

... PRETTY Betty Fitch Jones, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Clifford Jones, has received a signal honor in her selection to represent the state of Georgia at the Christmas celebration in Birmingham, which begins today.

Betty was appointed by Governor Rivers to be Princess of Georgia at the affair which will be featured by a round of social affairs planned for the visiting belles, including luncheons, cocktail parties, dinners and dances. Saturday afternoon, the Alabama-Vanderbilt football game will lend interest to the affair, as well as the parades headed by the King and Queen of the festival.

Mrs. Waldo Sowell Jr., whose marriage was an interesting event of last month, is the former Miss Jane Cothran Smith, lovely daughter of Mrs. Belle McEvoy Smith.

Green—Simpson.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Ruby Green, formerly of East Atlanta and now of Columbus, and Edward Simpson of the U. S. Marine of Parris Island, S. C., is of interest to a host of friends. The ceremony was performed November 10, while the popular young couple were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Simpson on Memorial drive, Atlanta.

Mr. Simpson left Monday to resume his duties and Mrs. Simpson returned to Columbus, where she will finish G. H. S.

Tech-Georgia Football Game To Inspire Round of Events

On November 30 when the annual football tilt between the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech teams is held in Athens, the tilt, which is the highlight of the football season, will assemble 30,000 fans in Sanford Stadium. A series of interesting affairs has been arranged for the entertainment of the guests for "homecoming," which is a gala occasion complimenting alumni of the University, and will also be celebrated at this time.

First on the calendar of events planned for the weekend will be the presentation on Thursday, November 30, of the Chekhov Theater Studio players in a matinee and evening performance, the former to be "The Cricket on the Hearth," and the latter, "Twelfth Night," both to be held in the Seney-Stovall theater.

On Friday evening Jan Savitt and his Top Hatters, nationally known dance orchestra, will play for the Pan-Hellenic Council, which will be the first of four dances to be held in Woodruff Hall over the weekend. The ballroom will be gaily decorated with balloons and streamers carrying out the colors of the schools, red and black, and gold and white.

Members of the Pan-Hellenic Council, who, with their dates will comprise the leadout, include: Ernest Vandiver, Phi Delta Theta, Lavonia; Scott Brown, Lambda Chi Alpha, Decatur; Bobby Brown, Chi Phi, Elberton; Bob Cassels, A. T. O., Atlanta; Harold Rambow, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Augusta; Philip Wilheit, Chi Psi, Augusta; Don Hamilton, Delta Tau Delta, Oil City, Pa.; Billy Crenshaw, Kappa Alpha, Atlanta; George Gaines, Kappa Sigma, Adairsville; Jim Owen, Phi Delta Theta, Griffin; John Plowden, Pi Kappa Alpha, Summerton, S. C.; Bill Bennett, Pi Kappa Phi, Birmingham, Ala.; Howell Hollis, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Columbus; Sidney Haskins, Tau Epsilon Phi, Macon; Verner Chaffin, Sigma Nu, Toccoa; Jimmie Hartford, Sigma Chi, Athens.

On Saturday preceding the game, Woodruff Hall will be the scene of a breakfast dance at 10 o'clock and after the game a tea dance will be held from 5 to 7 o'clock. Climaxing the events of the weekend will be the final dance on Saturday evening at 9 o'clock.

In addition to the aforementioned schedule of events fraternities and sororities will entertain at informal buffet suppers at their respective houses prior to and following the dances.

Adding color to the activities planned will be the homecoming decorations which will grace the dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses, a silver cup to be awarded the winner by the Bifid Club.

Miss Emmelyn Carter Bows To Society at Reception

One of the most brilliant and elaborate affairs of the Thanksgiving season was the reception given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Benjamin Tyler Carter, who entertained at her home on Rivers road, formally presenting to society her lovely debutante daughter, Miss Emmelyn Carter.

The affair, which highlighted the series of social affairs given in compliment to the young belle during her debut season, assembled several hundred fashionable members of society who called between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Carter and her daughter received in the living room of the home and stood before a beautiful arrangement of rich greenery including palms, ferns and tall pedestal baskets filled with colored flowers. Amid the greenery were large baskets of flowers, bouquets, trees of orchids and celophane boxes of gardenias, and many other floral tributes sent the lovely debutante, further attesting her popularity.

Miss Carter, who is a beautiful brunet, was never lovelier than in her exquisite gown of champagne net fashioned along the becoming buffout lines. The long full skirt was topped with a sweet waist made with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. The entire model was embroidered in white and gold, achieving a glistening effect. She carried a large bouquet of bronze orchids bordered with a small ruffle of bronze maline.

Mrs. Carter was handsomely gowned in a beautiful model of chartreuse chiffon made along becoming straight lines and completing her ensemble was a shoulder spray of orchids.

Throughout the lower floor of the home where the guests assembled were quantities of flowers carrying out the colorful autumnal shades. In the dining room the table was covered with a real lace cloth and was centered with a silver bowl filled with quantities of chrysanthemums and delphinium. On either side of the centerpiece were silver candelabra holding burning tapers. On the buffet silver wine coolers held quantities of fruit carrying out the harvest motif, and the same theme was used as the decorations on the punch tables which were placed on the porch.

During the afternoon a group of matrons assisted in entertaining the 20th anniversary of Carter Smith, Lindsey Hopkins Jr., Otis Barge, Henry Smith, Dan Bodin, Nesbit Tilley, Flewellyn Akers, N. D. Cubank, Lawton Miller, Fred Houser, Ruth Middlebrooks and James Allen Smith. Misses Julia Carter and Marguerite Emmert also assisted.

Nine O'Clocks Embark on Imaginary Cruise To Hawaii at Annual Thanksgiving Eve Ball

Members of the Nine o'Clocks took an imaginary cruise to the Hawaiian Islands last evening, at the colorful ball given by the social organization at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Green and gold predominated in the artistic decorations and palm trees, suggestive of the tropical isle nestling in the Pacific ocean, ranged the length of the long ballroom, where members danced and dined to lilting strains of music. Garlands of smilax and laurel festooned the walls, and coconuts were glimpsed in the foliage of the palm trees.

Swaying palm trees flanked the hand-painted beach scene stretched across the eastern end of the room, and the grass-thatched roof projecting over the painting, added a realistic and effective note to the romantic setting. A tropical moon shed its silvery luster upon the scene, and Hawaiian leis made of multi-colored blossoms were presented to those attending the festive event.

Pineapples and coconuts, posed upon plateaux of vivid hibiscus blossoms, beautified the tables, and a talented entertainer, wearing the traditional grass skirt of Hawaii, danced the hula to the lilting melody of "On the Beach at Waikiki," played by a native orchestra.

The Nine o'Clock emblem, a large clock with its hands pointing to the numeral "nine," was placed over the entrance to the ballroom.

Officers of the host organization are Jim Franklin, president, and Jack Adair, secretary-treasurer. Board members are W. C. Wardlaw Jr., Harvey Hill and Sam Dorsey.

The presence of a group of prominent visitors added a note of gaiety to the affair. Among the group were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walker Bagley, of Greenwich, Conn., and Sea Island, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Cox; Miss Lorraine Heaton, of New York city, the guest of Mrs. Frank Boland; Captain and Mrs. Troup Miller, of Montgomery, Ala., the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Barnett Jr.; Miss Anne Huddleston, of Nashville, Tenn., the guest of Mrs. Foster Hume Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Thurston Crawford, of Columbus, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gerdine; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rylander, of Americus, the guests of Cobb Torrance; Mr. and Mrs. Emile Zimmer, of Wilmington, Del., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson Jr.; Miss Flora Wright, of London, England; Roy Collier, of Birmingham, Ala., and others.

Hollywood Wonders If Chaplin's 'Dictator' Will Pay Off Its Cost

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.—Lucille Ball goes to Milwaukee for a Boy Scout rally, then travels to New York to see her favorite Boy Scout—Desi Arnaz. "Are you going to marry him?" I ask Lucille. She shakes her head, oh so sadly, and says, "No." Well, that makes it mutual. Desi also said "No" when the question was put to him. But a Hollywood negative sometimes becomes a "Yes" in New York. So cheer up, Lucille.

People here are wondering why Paulette Goddard went to San Francisco instead of attending the local $8-a-seat premiere of "The Great Dictator." She left town to avoid the embarrassment of appearing at the theater without Chaplin. The same reason, in reverse, kept Chaplin out of Hollywood. It will be interesting to see whether this two-million-dollar epic gets back its cost. I'm doubtful. . . . Here's Robert Preston's first remark to the press after his elopement with Kay Feltus (Catherine Craig): "When a guy says definitely that he's in love with a girl, I hope you'll believe him in the future!" Personally, I shall remain skeptical, if the said guy goes out with one girl (D. Lamour), no matter how definitely he says he's in love with another.

Joan Fontaine and Brian Aherne are back in Hollywood with talk of selling their house here and buying a farm in New England. This will bring the number of Hollywoodites owning property in New England to four. The others are Robert Montgomery (currently suffering with a sore throat), Bette Davis and Jimmy Cagney. It might be simpler to move the picture industry to New England. . . . Talking about Miss Fontaine reminds me of Sister Olivia De Havilland, who is getting mighty unpopular at the Warner studio. It's hard to understand Olivia these days. She used to be very co-operative and sweet, but now you hear that she is high-hat, difficult, and "posy." I wonder what caused it all?

Judy Garland gets $2,000 a week, but her mother still decides what clothes she shall wear. John Garfield assures me with his hand on his heart that the rumors of divorce from his pretty wife are untrue. "Never, never, never," he insists. . . . Errol Flynn can't make up his mind whether he was born in Ireland or Hobart, Tasmania (off the coast of Australia). His studio biography gives him to Ireland. But the records in Hobart claim his birth in that city on June 20, 1909. . . . Greta Garbo has gone Tyrolean. She was in the Lanz shop a couple of days ago buying an outfit that included a little feathered hat, a Tyrolean jacket, shorts, and long socks. She ought to be safe behind this disguise.

Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier were allowed 10 days between the finish of their Lady Hamilton-Lord Nelson picture and the start of retakes for the same. They are using the interval as a sort of farewell-to-America party. They departed alone in their car—probably to northern California—and will stay out of the limelight until they come back to Hollywood, finish the film. Then Olivier flies back to England accompanied by Boss Alexander Korda.

I hear R. K. O.-Radio studio is planning a new glamour build-up for Kay Francis. This, in my opinion, is a mistake, and I am sure that—for once—Miss Francis agrees with me. Kay's screen comeback is the result of forthright, down-to-earth roles. It would be silly to plunge her back into the sort of non-convincing publicity given her at Warners, where her personality was blown away in clouds of frothy adjectives.

Today, by proclamation and tradition, this nation will once again count its blessings and give thanks to a beneficent Providence. East and west, north and south, the families of the United States gratefully will sit down to tables beautifully set and bountifully laden for the Thanksgiving feast. Typical of such families is that of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Blalock, of Jonesboro, Ga. Mrs. Blalock is putting last-minute touches on her dinner table laid for eight, while left, Gaffney and Edgar Jr. watch "Mommy." The damask is pale pink, dinner plates are Wedgwood raspberry red, soup and bread and butter plates, Royal Doulton. The stemware is Duncan Miller's Arlington, silver and candelabra are French antique. A table set in this solid fashion impresses the family with the generous substance of the feast.

Those Graying Hairs— Vitamin B Complex And Iodine Ration

By Dr. William Brady.

Long before we heard of vitamin B complex in this column readers were reporting, from time to time, that they believed their prematurely graying hair was getting its original color back since they began taking the Iodin Ration.

Iodin Ration is my name for the regular practice of taking a wee bit of iodine in one form or another every day or every week in order to supplement the inadequate amount of iodine most people get in food and water. I advocate the Iodin Ration for every man, woman and child not under medical care or not in need of medical care. On receipt of your request, if you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll mail you a pamphlet giving instructions for taking an Iodin Ration.

Then a few years ago scientific investigators found that what was at first called vitamin B was not a single entity or factor but consisted of a group of several factors which naturally grow in combination, and to this natural combination of vitamin factors they gave the name vitamin B complex. It includes not only pure vitamin B (thiamin) or B1, but also nicotinic acid, pyridoxine or B6, folic acid, anti-gray hair factor, anti-dermatitis factor and probably several others as yet not scientifically identified.

Just which factor in the B complex is essential to prevent premature graying of the hair (of experimental animals) is not yet clearly established, but insufficient intake of vitamin B complex certainly causes the hair of animals kept on controlled feed to turn gray before their maturity, and as certainly restoration of vitamin B complex to the feed of such animals brings back the natural color to the hair.

It is never safe to apply animal experimentation directly to human practice. But there is just one thing I can say about the use of Iodin Ration and vitamin B complex by individuals whose hair is prematurely gray—neither can do anybody a mite of harm in any circumstances—and I am confident no medical authority will question this assurance.

I offer the suggestion in this way in the hope that many thousands of readers whose hair is inclined to become gray too early may try it out thoroughly and let us have the benefit of their experience.

Besides the Iodin Ration, which is a simple matter to take, say two or three times a week, all one need do is eat four or five ounces of fresh wheat germ daily, get a good daily ration of vitamin B complex, or if that is too much trouble, one may simply take two or three capsules (not capsules, but semi-hard pill-like globules) of vitamin B complex along with breakfast every morning. This regimen, of course, must be continued for several months if it is to have any appreciable effect.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Leucoplakia.

What treatment do you advise for leucoplakia in the mouth? Is smoking harmful? (J. S.)

Answer—Smoking must be stopped. If the white spot is circumscribed electrocoagulation is advisable. If it is more widespread, radium treatment is advisable. In some cases daily application of a saturated solution of methylene blue is helpful.

Oats.

Please tell me if oats (whole oats or rolled oats) is as good as wheat as a source of vitamin B. (P. M.)

Answer—Ounce for ounce it contains as much or more vitamin B complex than wheat.

Shame Your Husband When He Wanders Afield

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Just suppose your husband went by in his car, picked up his secretary, took her to the office, home again in the evening, every day same way, while her car stood in her garage? Suppose you told your husband that these trips made you unhappy and he laughed at you and said you were the most jealous, suspicious woman in the world, how would you feel and what would you do?

A WIFE.

ANSWER:

I can tell you how I'd feel because we women feel alike. I'd feel scared, hurt, mad as fire and determined to break up that transportation routine at any cost. Then I hope my wits would begin to work on a plan that had some sense to it.

Not holding any brief for a husband who persecutes his wife by co-opting with another woman, innocently or otherwise. Every woman knows that is a contemptible trick. But so long as a woman loves a man who is capable of turning contemptible tricks she's got to work from that point.

Terrible thought but true, a man can do anything to his wife but beat her, knock her down and step on her, with nobody to restrain him. What she calls her rights aren't worth a pinch of snuff unless he recognizes them. Yes, he's her husband but she doesn't own him body and soul.

He's a free agent and unless he loves his wife enough to give her power of attorney over his behavior, she has to take it and like it, or leave him. She can't coerce him beyond the point that his attention for her takes him.

Bearing all this in mind, the cagey thing for a wife to do is to get on better terms with that husband by the same methods she employed once upon a time when love was new. You see a lot of muddy water has gone over the matrimonial mill before a husband takes off down the big road and back again each day with his secretary, leaving his wife at home in tears or tantrums, maybe both. There's the wife's job to clear up the stream at the source.

Nobody can tell a wife how to get on good terms with her husband, except in a general way. She knows how to do it if she's willing to pay the price. The price is usually silence on the one subject she longs to discuss; a smooth surface of conversation when inside she's boiling, the most gaiety and laughter she can squeeze out; quick responses to his efforts at pleasantry and plenty of effort on her part to show herself a good comrade.

If all that doesn't shame him and show him what a fool he is, the time has come for the wife to harden her heart and wait for nature to take its course.

THESE WOMEN -- By d'Alessio

"NEXT Thursday, Matilda, put more chestnuts in the stuffing. Do you want to spoil BOTH my Thanksgivings?"

Learn To Hold an Audience When You Stand Up To Talk

The tea for new members, here chance to make a good impression. But, answering the chairman's welcome, all she can do is stammer. No one would guess she's really charming.

What a different story if she'd studied public speaking, parliamentary forms. Knowing the appropriate thing to say, how to address the chair, she could have replied graciously: "Thank you, Madam Chairman, fellow members. I hope I can show myself worthy of this honor."

You can so easily overcome stage fright, become a "somebody" in your club!

Instead of worrying about what people think of you, just remember that the average audience wants to like you, then concentrate on giving them the best you have. Throw your tones to the front of your mouth so everyone in the room can hear you. Open your lips so tight jaws and teeth won't muffle your words. A help in doing this is to practice tongue twisters at home—"She sells sea shells by the seashore."

To hold your audience, drive points home with specific terms, "hats and dresses," instead of vague sweeping terms like "women's apparel." Finally, don't let your voice trail off at the end of every sentence—a fault that sets audiences napping.

You soon got used to thinking and talking on your feet if—while doing the dishes, for instance—you practice brief speeches aloud. Then, of course, when you are sure of parliamentary rules you are much more at ease in any situation.

Step to the fore in club work, in church and business groups with the aid of our 40-page booklet, Self-Instruction in Public Speaking. Tells how to develop your voice, prepare and deliver speeches, win the liking of your audience. Gives parliamentary rules, sample speeches for many occasions—such as introductions, nominations. Advises radio speakers.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

CUPID'S TRADE BOOMS. WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Cupid is doing a pretty good business in Wilmington. There were more marriage licenses issued during the first 10 months of this year than during the years 1938 and 1939 combined.

JUSTICES WANT DIGNITY. MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 20. (UP)—The Alabama supreme court justices donned robes this fall for the first time in Alabama's history, to "add a greater degree of dignity and respect" to administration of the law.

Shop Early and Buy Dad His Pet Game for Christmas

By Ida Jean Kain.

There is no doubt about it, Christmas is a great day—for the kids and Santa Claus. But the thing that takes the merry out of Christmas for mother is the shopping, and for father, the bills.

There are ways to sidestep both. One is to get the shopping done beforehand. Now, wait a minute! In case you think I'm bringing up this whole subject unnecessarily early, remember that hectic week last year when you were rushing around, working against time and the crowds and thinking that, as far as you were concerned, Santa Claus could stay at the North Pole?

And it would certainly help to get around father with the bills to give him something he will really go for. He is probably counting on the perennial ties and socks, but this year, just for fun, add to the list something he doesn't need. What does he do after looking over his list? Well, he turns to Junior's punching bag Sonny how to make the train go around the track. So why not playthings for father?

If he bowls, you might give him his own special bowling kit. They tell me it is not quite the thing to carry your own ball when you go bowling! Or he might get more fun out of a set for the home. There is a sponge rubber set which can be played in the living room or hall, and a wooden set called "leisure breaks" guaranteed to put two lumps of plaster in the after-dinner coffee in the apartment below!

Anyone lucky enough to have a rumpus room can buy all kinds of playthings for it: Rubber-covered horseshoes for a little indoor barnyard golf; rope quoits, a table tennis set, shuffleboard, and any number of golf practice games. Of course, you could give this type of present to your friends and go over to their house and enjoy it.

Another present that's fun to give is a set of rumba, conga or tango instruction records—they're as good as six lessons from Madame La Zongola!

To get father out in the fresh air, there's the Australian boomerang, which was first adapted as a toy for kids—but the kids don't seem to get much chance at it.

Games are an excellent way for the tired businessman to get his much needed exercise, but there are some real exercise gadgets, too. The gym bar, which can be adjusted in the doorway, now comes with rings he can swing on and feel like a real athlete. Then there's the "tiger stretch" that is supposed to straighten one out and slim down the waist. The newest thing in scales tells the height—and it's surprising how many people don't know how tall they are. This scales not only settles that question but tells whether you've been careless with the calories. Finally, there are "hand grips" and dozens of chest expanders and rowing machines.

Don't put your shopping off too long or you'll grab anything that get it over with. Start shopping tomorrow and you'll have a Merry Christmas, too!

Today's Charm Tip

"Them things," "they was," "I seen" and "if I was you" out of the mouth of a pretty woman promptly destroys the bloom called charm.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "There may be hard times ahead, but I'm confident right will prevail if we do our part."

Daughter: "We're not afraid, are we, mamma?"

Mother: "I can't throw off this terrible feeling of depression. What is this world coming to?"

Daughter: "What's the matter, mamma?"

Depressed parents make depressed children.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. How many crippled children are there in the United States?

A. There were 248,627 on state registers as of August, 1940.

Q. How can musty odor be removed from trunks and dresser drawers?

A. Probably by putting an earthen bowl or deep plate filled with quicklime in them. The lime will absorb the dampness and also sweeten and disinfect the area. As often as the lime becomes slaked, throw it away. However, the best method, if convenient, is to place the trunks and dresser drawers outside on a dry day, where they will be exposed to air and sun.

Q. What is the best kind of book for a small child?

A. For the very young, picture books made of cloth are best. Washable window shades cut into pages and sewed together make excellent scrapbooks on which to paste pictures.

Q. How should apple juice be prepared?

A. Remove the blossom ends from the apples. Cut them in small pieces, but do not remove the cores and skins. To one pound of apples add the juice of one lemon and add cold water to cover. Cook the apples, covered, until they lose their shape, turn the mixture into a jelly bag and drain it without pressing the bag. Boil the juice for five minutes. If the juice is not to be used immediately, seal it in clean, hot jars for future use.

Q. What is pasteurized milk?

A. Pasteurization consists of heating the milk to a temperature high enough to kill all the germs that may usually be found in milk, without destroying any of the nutritional value.

Sterchi's READY FOR CHRISTMAS

South's Largest Department Store of Homefurnishings

Americans should really be thankful, this Thanksgiving. In the midst of a world torn with strife, the feeling of peace and security that Americans enjoy is really beginning to mean something. Americans have enjoyed "peace, prosperity and the pursuit of happiness" so much that many of us have come to look upon it as our birthright—something our country owes us! Let's make Thanksgiving Day not only a day of thanks for what has been bestowed upon us, but a day to firmly resolve to keep that inheritance.

When you give that new puppy for Christmas, give him the best of care by giving a good book on dog care, or one dealing with his particular breed.

Trotter-Ryan Rites Solemnized

Gordon Street Baptist church formed the setting Sunday at 5:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Lane Wynelle Trotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Trotter, to Forrest Peter Ryan, son of Mrs. Mildred Ryan, which was solemnized by Dr. Thomas F. Harvey. Music was presented by Miss Emilie Parmalee, organist, and Miss Minna Hecker, vocalist.

Groomsmen included Conyard W. Trotter and Crawford W. Trotter, brothers of the bride, and the ushers were George P. Foote, William Letson, Forrest Gee Jr., Charles Wallace and Robert Bonn.

Miss Llewellyn Ryan, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and the matron of honor was Mrs. J. Forrest Gee Jr. Both wore rose slipper satin. The bridesmaids, gowned in gold slipper satin, were Misses Doris Daldrip, Louise Allen, Selma Davis, Clydelle Webb, Mrs. M. G. Haskins and Mrs. J. E. Beasley. Their flowers were pink and yellow roses combined with bronze snapdragons in an arm bouquet.

The bride was given in marriage by Oscar F. Trotter, her father, and at the altar they met the groom and his best man, Garrett S. Trotter.

The bride's wedding gown and long train were fashion of Chantilly lace posed over ivory satin. She wore a veil of silk tulle forming a cap over the head and gathered with clusters of orange blossoms. This veil was first worn by Mrs. Forrest Gee Jr., the matron of honor, when she was married. The bride carried a white satin prayerbook covered with white orchids and valley lilies and her only ornaments were a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and a gold pin studded with rubies, an heirloom in the bride's family.

The bride's mother wore a black velvet gown and a shoulder cluster of gardenias.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of powder blue crepe and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

The bride's parents entertained at their home on Wellington street at a reception and were assisted by the bride's attendants.

For a wedding trip to Miami, Fla., the bride chose a three-piece traveling suit of brown wool worn with brown suede accessories and a luxuriant scarf of kolinsky. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will reside at 120 Wellington street.

Magic with Macaroni!

For Your Luncheon Today!

A few simple ingredients combined with the extra goodness of Mueller's Macaroni magically becomes a delicious-to-eat dish you'll be proud to serve.

MACARONI, PIQUANT

- 1 pkg. Mueller's Macaroni
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 cup sharp American cheese, grated
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 2 cans concentrated mushroom soup
- 3/4 teaspoon paprika
- Salt and pepper to taste

Cook Mueller's Macaroni as directed. Melt butter in saucepan; add flour, salt, pepper, paprika and mix well; add milk slowly, stirring constantly, and cook until thick and smooth. Add grated cheese; stir until melted. Combine mixture with macaroni and then stir in the eggs. Put in buttered loaf pan and set in shallow pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven 35 minutes—place on hot platter. Heat soup separately and serve as sauce. Serves 6.

Mueller's Macaroni, nourishing, easily digested—always gets a royal welcome. It's economical, too. A few "leftovers" become an appetizing dish with Mueller's Macaroni, as Mueller's delicate flavor combines perfectly with other ingredients. Add Mueller's to your shopping list today!

A charming likeness of Mrs. George D. Crawford is reflected in the oil portrait by which she stands. The portrait is by Miss Billy Richardson, well-known Atlanta portrait painter, and Mrs. Crawford posed by the picture for The Constitution photographer to make the unusual picture. Mrs. Crawford is the wife of Captain Crawford, of the U. S. Q. M. Corps.

Miss Wertz Weds M. A. Hornsby Jr. At Home Service

Miss Doris Louise Wertz, lovely daughter of Mrs. James Claude Wertz, and Marion Arthur Hornsby, Jr., son of Chief M. A. Hornsby and Mrs. Hornsby, were married yesterday afternoon at an impressive ceremony taking place at the home of the bride on De Soto avenue.

Rev. H. C. Hale, rector of the West End Church of Christ, officiated at 4 o'clock in the presence of a limited number of friends and members of the two families. An appropriate musical program was presented by Mrs. C. G. McCay, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Carl Reich.

An improvised altar was formed in the living room of the home amid a background of palms, ferns and tall pedestal baskets filled with white chrysanthemums. On either side were seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers.

The young couple entered together. The bride was beautifully gowned in a costume suit of cadet blue wool trimmed in velvet and worn with a wine-colored hat, gloves and matching accessories. Her flowers were white orchids and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony an informal reception was given by Mrs. Wertz for her daughter and Mr. Hornsby. Throughout the home a profusion of white pompon chrysanthemums were used as the decorations, being combined to effective advantage with white roses, wainsons, fern and smilax. Candelabra held tapered white candles and clusters of the small white flowers.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames J. Wilburn Allen, W. D. Crowe, Jr., C. D. Crowe and Misses Omie Hornsby and June Brewster.

Mrs. Wertz, the bride's mother, was beautifully gowned in a model of soldier blue with hat to match and black accessories. Her flowers were pink roses. Mrs. Hornsby, the groom's mother, was lovely in black velvet with black accessories. Her flowers were Talisman roses.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to an unannounced destination and upon their return will reside at 1469 De Soto avenue, S. W. The bride traveled in a model of soldier blue with black accessories and her flowers were pink roses.

Jones, Stanley Jones, state adjutant, attended, and the principal speaker was Captain Frank J. Kelly, of Little Rock. Allan, Drunk, Is Carried From Studio; Glory Is To Report for Work That Night

SYNOPSIS
Leaving Arthur Landis and the bridal party waiting at the church, Glory Stevens just catches a Los Angeles train on which she meets Helen Jamison, who, after a struggle, has won some recognition in Hollywood as a character actress. Since she was a child, Glory has wanted to be an actress like her mother who died when Glory was 13. Helen advises Glory to return home, then, calling herself a fool, suggests that she take a little apartment next to her. Glory makes the studio rounds daily. When her money is gone, Helen suggests to Scottie Weston, her own agent, that he discourage the girl and send her home. Instead, he gets her in the Sunset studio wardrobe department but the first day a pin in a jacket sleeve scratches Mona Green and that temperamental star has her discharged. Scottie sends her to dramatic school and takes her to important night spots where she attracts attention in gowns designed by William Van Liningham, Sunset's chief designer. Mark Spencer, Scottie's handsome young lawyer, is now with Glory constantly. Allan Rhodes, popular movie lover, plays with her in her screen test and they fall in love. She gets bit parts in two pictures and moves to a smart apartment. Allan leaves suddenly and Glory is distressed by his silence. He gives her an engagement ring, saying he went to Mexico to see Mona on location and tells her he loves Glory. Glory is heartbroken. Scottie gets Glory to lead in a new picture, co-starring with Allan, who says he can't divorce Mona but promises to Glory that he still loves her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.
She glanced at Mark, who appeared to be absorbed in the picture. Again Glory wondered what has come over him. Was he upset because of the way his sister had behaved? Was that all there was to it?

"He bores me. Let's go," she whispered.
Walking out in the middle of Allan's picture The thought of it amused her as they left the theater. She was glad to see that Mark was more cheerful. "Wasn't that a good idea of mine, was it?" he grinned.

When they arrived at the apartment, Glory asked him to come in. He refused but as he stood there in hand looking down at her Glory saw a strange expression in the gray eyes—an expression which for one mad moment made her think he was going to take her in his arms.

But he took her hand instead. "I'll see you tomorrow, Glory," he said. "I have something to tell you."

Glory could not sleep that night. Mark had said that he had something to tell her. What could it be? Glory was afraid to think that he might have fallen in love with her. His attitude had been so peculiar last night. He had been so morose, so ill at ease, so unlike the Mark she had always known. Taking her to see Allan's latest picture had added an even more mysterious note to his conduct. And then a terrible thought crept into Glory's mind. Perhaps he was in love with some one else! She threw back the covers and rose from her bed. Couldn't she ever learn to trust anyone? She had never had any reason to doubt Mark. Must she always suspect the worst just because Allan had let her down?

She went into the kitchen for a glass of milk and Helen appeared, yawning. "What goes on?" she asked.

"I can't sleep," Glory confessed. "I'm upset about Mark. He acted so funny tonight. But he said he wanted to see me again tomorrow. That he had something to tell me."

"I've always thought Mark was in love with you," Helen said frankly. "From the first time you met."

But Glory shook her head. "I used to think so but I've made such a fool of myself over Allan I don't think he cares any more. He's always so impersonal."

"Perhaps he thinks you're still in love with Allan," Helen said.

Glory seized eagerly upon her words. Perhaps that was why he had taken her to see Allan's picture. If such were the case there could be no doubt left in his mind as to her attitude toward Allan. She had been so bored with the "idol of a million women" that she had suggested they leave in the middle of his picture!

"Maybe you're right," she told Helen, new hope filling her heart.
Helen yawned. "Well, you won't have to wait long to find out. You'll know tomorrow night. But that conference with Mark Spencer did not take place. The next day was one which brought events of which Glory Stevens never dreamed as she set out for the studio."

She felt light-hearted and gay that morning—sure that Mark was about to confess his love. Perhaps now at last she would find happiness with the man she really loved! It was a gray day, cold and murky, threatening to rain. But the dull weather could not dampen Glory's spirits. She changed her slacks for the riding breeches she was to wear for the morning's scene. They were doing re-takes now and in a few more days the work would be finished.

Glory glanced around the tiny dressing room which had her name on the door. There were gay chintz curtains at the window, a long dressing table flanked by two mirrors and a comfortable though rather shabby couch. Some day she would have a portable dressing room! When this picture was released they would be forced to recognize her as a star.

There was a knock on the door and a messenger boy appeared with a florist's box. Thrilled, Glory opened it to find two dozen long-stemmed red roses. There was no card but she supposed they were from Mark. He had sent her red roses before on her birthday. Surely this was a good omen. What he had to reveal must be pleasant!

But when Glory appeared on the set in rare good humor, she found Allan Rhodes moodily smoking a cigarette.

"Good morning, Allan," she said cheerfully.

At the sound of her voice, he looked up. There were deep circles under his eyes. He looked haggard as he came toward her.

"Did you get my flowers?" he asked in a low voice.

Glory's heart sank. Her disappointment that Mark had not sent the roses made her voice sharp. "Why would you send me flowers?"

He seized her arm. "You've been drinking," she cried, annoyed.

"Sure," Allan admitted. "I've been drinking. So what? I've been thinking about you—that's why I've been drinking."

"You're in no condition to work," Glory told him. "I can always work," Allan boasted, "drunk or sober."

He pushed her down into a chair. "Now you're going to listen to me," he said, leaning against the table for support.

Other people on the set were watching, so Glory decided to sit still and let Allan rave.

"I know you love me," he was wailing before her. "You're just too proud to admit it."

"You don't know what you're saying!" she said in a low voice.

"Is that so?" Allan cried, taking hold of her arm. "You're too good for me now, that's it. You're a star now, so you're too good for me. But you weren't once. Don't ever forget that!"

Tears of rage stood in Glory's eyes. "You let me alone!" she cried hysterically.

Max Cavell approached. "What's going on here?" he demanded. "He's been drinking again. He would have to pull this today," the director said in disgust.

"If we can get him to go to bed, we'll have to shoot this scene tonight."

"You mean I'll have to work tonight?" Glory asked.

"We've got to get this picture cleaned up," Max reminded her. "Every day we hold up production is costing the studio real money. We could have been through today if this hadn't happened."

Glory watched in disgust as Allan was helped from the set.

"Now we'll take some close-ups of you, Glory," the director said.

And so she was forced to work all day with the unpleasant prospect of doing another scene with Allan that night. Yet she felt no sense of impending disaster. Thank heaven, this picture was finished! In the face of Allan's actions today, working together much longer would be impossible.

At 6 o'clock Glory took two hours off for dinner. She found Mark waiting at her apartment, but when she told him she had to go back to work he suggested that he pick her up at the studio later and postpone their talk until then.

Glory was relieved. She was too upset to discuss anything now. It would be impossible for her to relax until the ordeal with Allan was over.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) Previous to 12:14 noon favors private and public affairs, educational matters, finances, legal and professional ideas, and for buying and selling, both wholesale and retail. Between 12:14 noon and 9:30 p. m. should be most profitable and pleasing in social matters. However, a tendency toward overdoing should be avoided.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) The entire day is most auspicious for conservative matters, dealings with those who are stable, real estate transactions, artistic ideas and for general business. The best aspects of the day operate before 3 p. m.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) Today will be more favorable to retrench and not to undertake affairs that are of a vital significance to you. Disappointments may come by expecting too much of yourself or from others.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) Conditions seem to have a tendency to be fast and furious before 3:46 p. m. and a peculiar or unexpected shift of values may be presented to you; therefore the period does not especially favor new beginnings and caution should be the keyword. After 3:46 p. m. favors new beginnings.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO) Work that requires courage and physical vitality are strongly favored in the hours previous to 1:30 p. m., but do not be too trusting of promises given and use care in travel and those things that require your signature. After 1:30 p. m. favors the beginning of new things that you want to mature slowly.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day is favorable for aggressiveness, but not for sudden changes. The day favors seeking favors, contacting people who are at the head of affairs, advancing your personal interests and general business activities.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The day favors the beginning of those things that you wish to mature at once, for dealings in affairs pertaining to land, with older people and use care in health matters. This is a day to continue things already started.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Extravagance in financial matters should not be undertaken before 8:48 a. m. as you may be too optimistic and therefore undertake too heavy obligations, or spend more than is wise. After 8:48 a. m. favors communications, sociability and mechanical and industrial works.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 8:32 a. m. favors affairs that require cordial relations and happy contacts. Travel should result pleasantly. The entire day favors minor activities or continuing along lines already established.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and until 10:36 p. m. favors accomplishments of a stable nature and those things that call for a righting of a difference of opinion. Quick action, creative work, contracts, commercial transactions are favored.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—With the exception of the period prior to 8:32 a. m. your sphere of influence may be broadened through the entire day in business activities, literary endeavor, financial deals, works concerning women, art, beautification, and works should go forward with good speed. Your energies and activities should be under favorable control. Before 8:32 a. m. use special caution in travel.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—An especially favorable day for beginning new endeavors. The best aspect of the day operates previous to 5:14 p. m. The evening hours favor social activities.

Group of Debs To Be Honored At Open House

Among the interesting parties planned for members of the debutante coterie to enliven the Christmas calendar is the open house at which Miss Peggy Dutton and her brother, Wilmer C. Dutton Jr., will entertain on December 26. The affair will be held at the Dutton home on Seventeenth street and will be a lovely complimentary gesture to a quintet of popular debutantes, including Misses Helen McDuffie, Helen Randall, Elsa McCall, Margaret Winship and Isabel Vrethman.

The hosts will be assisted in entertaining by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Dutton, and their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hunt.

Wilmer C. Dutton Jr. will return on December 21 from Hanover, N. H., where he is a junior at Dartmouth College, to spend the holidays with his parents.

Atlanta Native Rescued Movie Short Subjects

Jack Chertok Kept Studio From Abandoning Brief Movies.

This time a year ago there was a short subject called "How to Carve a Turkey" making the rounds of motion picture theaters. Many a head of the family got a practical demonstration which will be of great use today—if he hasn't forgotten. And if he remembers, he can thank an Atlanta boy for the lesson, and the 10 minutes' screen entertainment.

Jack Chertok produced that film—just as he has produced the "Crime Does Not Pay" series, the "Soldiers of Peace" stories, and many more. He's had many an idea since 1935 that has meant enjoyment for moviegoers.

Born in Atlanta.

And Jack was born right here in Atlanta, went to school at Boy's High and dreamed up his first theatrical innovation in a barnyard near his home, where in a big barn he produced his own shows using gunny sacks for screens and candles for lights.

That is, Jack produced shows until the effects got together and the barn burned.

But he had imagination and a love for the theater. Today he is the executive producer in charge of short subject production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Sixty-seven of the 92 shorts which M-G-M produces annually are produced by Chertok.

Saved the Shorts.
It was Jack Chertok who saved the short subject field from being abandoned when the double features crowded them off film programs. It was Jack Chertok, the boy who grew up in Peachtree street's shadow, that started Robert Benchley on the way to making these "How To" shorts. He's also made Pete Smith a box office favorite—and personality.

When Jack was running around Atlanta, his uncle, Dr. Louis C. Houghlin, well-known Atlanta physician, sought to interest him in the medical profession, but Jack went to New York and got a job as an usher in a theater. Then he heard jobs might be better—at least the future was—on the west coast where movies are made.

'SHORT' MAN—Jack Chertok is the former Atlanta boy who makes a good portion of all the short subjects you see at your film theaters.

He literally talked himself into a job with M-G-M and he's been talking ever since—always to a better job.

Worked Hard.
In 1935 he was just a script clerk. Then he was a second assistant director. Three months later he was an assistant director. He worked hard there. Here he got the basic training for his present job.

"I early learned that without a good story, it is next to impossible to make a good picture," he said. "I haunted the script department, borrowing scripts and studying the stories. At the same time I familiarized myself with settings, movements of story and dialogue."

When he thought he had a working knowledge of directing, he turned to music and musical pictures. He got a job in the music department. Two years here and he looked for new angles to conquer.

About that time the short subject field was at lowest ebb. Double features were crowding them off the screen. Chertok had a solution. If short subjects were made with showmanship, given enough real production, theaters would have to play them. In 1935 he persisted until he was made producer in charge of all short subjects for M-G-M. and with a good contract.

Did Fast Work.
Chertok put his ideas into practice fast. He geared short-subject production to parallel that given major films. Today, because of his continuous talking, one and two-reel shorts are given the same production which goes into feature pictures. The same sets, cameramen, properties, research and story facilities are made available to a 10-minute short, that are given super-specials.

To combat the double feature, he stopped making two-reel shorts, cut them down to a reel. Today only 12 two-reel shorts are made at M-G-M. and six of these are "Crime Does Not Pay" films while the others are miniature musicals. He reasoned—and correctly it proved—that any show could find a spot for a 10-minute short if the short was worth showing.

Chertok has found the public can be entertained by shorts if said shorts are informative, factual, dramatized to real-life believability, or are controversial.

Gave Him Idea.
That controversy angle gave Chertok the idea for the 10 historical mysteries based on recently discovered information tending to cast doubt on the veracity of history's pages.

Miniature musicals were also Chertok's idea. He felt that, with musicals sweeping a steady stream of admissions into the nation's box office, there was room for capsule editions of the same type.

Jack proudly boasts that when he was a script boy everybody called him "Jack" and that now as a producer everybody still calls him "Jack."

Seen Revolution.

Theatergoers have witnessed a revolution in the short subject field and have come to appreciate these little stories which add to the enjoyment of an evening at the movies. They have come to know the names Pete Smith, Robert Benchley, Carey Wilson and others of the short subject stars. But the man behind them all—the man that saved the short subject field and made worthwhile entertainment out of it—is still an Atlanta boy at heart. Jack Chertok is happy in his work and in Culver City, but he longs occasionally for a look at Peachtree—even as you and I.

East Point Bonds Sold To Build Waterworks

East Point's $250,000 worth of bonds have been sold to a group of 10 Atlanta houses at a price that breaks all previous records for municipal bond sales in Georgia.

They will be used to finance a waterworks system for the community, construction of which is expected to begin within two months. WPA is supplying additional funds. The bonds are par value, with a premium of $3,250, and carry 2-1/2 per cent interest, maturing in 30 years.

College Girls Prefer War Mechanics Training

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Russell Sage college girls participating in a defense training program for women favor the everyday mechanic's job.

When registration was conducted for the college's training program, 143 girls chose the division of everyday mechanics. The second choice was emergency nursing, with 133 girls enrolling.

Other courses and enrollments included: Clerical training, 108; feeding and nutrition, 83; relief work, 77; forum technique, 73; teaching skills, 31; censorship and military intelligence, 19; clothing, 16, and scientific techniques, eight.

Students in agreement with the faculty eliminated 15 of their usual extra-curricular activities in order to inaugurate defense training.

Miss Dempsey, a former patient at the Warm Springs Foundation, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Dempsey, of 256 Memorial drive, S. W. Her prize-winning short story was entitled "The Angel of the Woods."

Small Homes Are Favored For Orphans

Presbyterians Turning From Large, 'Monument' Buildings.

It isn't always true that good orphans don't cry. In fact, it might be better if orphans cried more—that is, the orphans that live in large institutions. "The reason they don't cry," according to Miss Elizabeth Lynch, Atlanta representative of the Presbyterian News Service, "is that they have had very little opportunity to cry where it will do any good."

Throughout the Presbyterian jurisdiction there is a trend away from large orphanage buildings toward the smaller, cottage type, where each child can receive treatment as a definite individual in an atmosphere more nearly like that of a real home.

Widespread Trend.
"This trend," said Miss Lynch, "is widespread, but one Presbyterian orphanage superintendent believes that we here in the south are particularly fortunate in being able to carry it out more effectively than possibly any other section of the United States."
"He believes that the mild weather, shrubbery, grass, flowers and trees growing abundantly with the least bit of encouragement and the fact that the children can get almost their entire recreation out of doors is making the change to the rather scattered grouping of small units particularly applicable to orphanages in the south."

"From time immemorial the policy in orphanage work has been to build a lot of monuments in the form of buildings," he says.
Apparently the idea is that the bigger the monument, the better. He says he is glad to see the trend changing.

Have Own Duties.
"At many Presbyterian orphanages the children have an enviable happy and wholesome balance of work, play and study. Every boy and girl learns the fun and satisfaction of working well with his comrades for the benefit it brings not to himself alone but to the whole group. The boys work in the dairy, print shop, farm, poultry yard, wood shop, or the plumbing and electrical departments."

"The girls take turns in the kitchen, dining hall, sewing room, serving room, house cleaning, clerical work in the office and many other tasks. Both boys and girls are rotated each month from one task to another so that monotony is relieved and each child learns to do many kinds of useful tasks. Besides having high educational value for the children, this 'everybody-work-plan' makes the running expenses of orphanages relatively low."

"But if work is emphasized at Presbyterian orphanages, so is play. Each child has regular hours for leisure during the week and they all have Saturday afternoons free. There is a carefully planned program of wholesome, character-building recreation."

HER LARDER IS FULL.
Mrs. Bert E. Towler, of Littleton, N. H., canned 883 quarts of produce this season. During the hunting season she expects to add 100 quarts of meat.

LIGHTSHIP RETIRED.
The last wooden lightship on the Atlantic coast, Relief No. 49, has been towed to Chelsea, Mass., from Woods Hole to be dismantled.

Health Group Devises Plan To Kill Foxes

90-Day Quarantine of
All Dogs Will Be First Action.

Hunting men down in Burke and other southeast Georgia counties are on the scent of the little wild foxes again—this time on a mission of health and protection rather than recreation.

For ten years the fox hunting has been bad. And now suddenly the wild foxes are so numerous that the hounds leave the pack formation, each dog on the trail of a different fox.

Therein is the catch. The hounds have developed rabies after these little individual scenting parties. And the livestock, too, became infected.

Doctors from the state department of health investigated and Dr. T. F. Sellers, director of the laboratory, division, reported a large percentage of these new abundant packs of fox were infected with rabies. They were biting the dogs in fights and were attacking livestock.

First Noticed in Spring. Hunters began noticing the return of Sir Reynard to southeast Georgia in large numbers last spring. A few weeks later the rabies were discovered. Rabies among wild foxes in Georgia previously had not been known.

This put a damper on the returning sport of fox hunting. But the state department of health has come to the hunters' aid. It devised a plan recently for killing out the foxes and the hunters can enter into the work. Dr. Sellers says a county-wide quarantine of all dogs for a period of 90 days will be invoked by county commissioners in counties where the rabid foxes have been found. State and federal wildlife officers will aid in the enforcement. This will eliminate one of the principal sources of rabies transmission. Then dogs will be immunized with antirabic vaccine.

After all this has been done, the hunters and all others who wish to join in will begin an intensive application of all known methods of destroying the foxes and other predatory animals by trapping, chasing down and killing foxes using the immunized fox hounds to help.

Counties Named. Counties where the wild foxes are now being found with rabies are Burke, Jefferson, Washington, Jenkins, Bullock, Richmond, Columbia, Emanuel, Glascock and some across the border in South Carolina, Dr. Sellers said.

The doctor says 250 foxes have been examined in the state laboratory and of this number rabies has been found in about 90 per cent.

The foxes are spreading and wherever they go so go the rabies, Dr. Sellers declared. In the past two months it has subsided a little as compared with the outbreak last spring, but the health department wants to take no chance on the disease dying a natural death. It wants to help it die.

Dr. Sellers further reported that agents of the U. S. wildlife and fish service say the fox population is increasing throughout the south, and unless a concerted effort is made to thin out this population rabies can gain a foothold and become widespread menace to livestock, game and more important still, to mankind.

Marvelous Power. "This, of course, might never happen," Dr. Sellers pointed out, "since nature has a marvelous power of balancing and counterbalancing in due time all forms of animal and plant life."

The plan to thin the ranks of the fox, which the hunters can join in if they wish, has no precedent. It was devised by health department doctors, U. S. wildlife and state wildlife commissioners, the state veterinarian and county health departments all working together.

And the hunters can help if they work with health officers, because Dr. Sellers said, "At present the chief difficulty encountered in carrying out this plan to kill out rabies has been financial. Already state and federal funds have been exhausted."

Injunction Delays Work on Highway

Although paving of the new Marietta highway has been approved by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, the project is now temporarily held up because of a restraining order preventing the highway department from making any further contractual expenditures, highway officials have disclosed.

The bid of M. J. Carroll, of Ocala, Fla., low bidder on the project, was sent to Washington, approved and returned for his signature. But the injunction order became effective before members of the board signed the contract.

A hearing on the temporary order has been set for November 30 at Carrollton.

Atlantans Invited To Attend Institute

Atlanta has been invited to send a delegation of governmental officials to the Southern Institute of Local Government tomorrow and Saturday in Knoxville, Tenn. Dr. Thomas H. Reed, of New York, who made a study of city and county governments in Atlanta, will be one of the principal speakers.

The institute is expected to attract city and county officials from throughout the south. It is sponsored by the University of Tennessee College of Liberal Arts and its alumni.

Friends and associates of Roy Marion (Mose) George, assistant solicitor of the Fulton criminal court, were taken by surprise yesterday when they learned George and Miss Esther Swann Bird, former deputy clerk of the county tax receiver, were married Tuesday night.

We Are Thankful for Freedom And Peace—Mrs. Roosevelt

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Another Thanksgiving Day has come to us. In almost every country in the world, after the harvest is taken in, they have some kind of thanksgiving festival. Our own feast was connected with the safe harvesting of a food supply by our Pilgrim Fathers, but they gave thanks also that they had escaped the attacks of Indians, the cold of winter, and that ships had reached them with supplies from far-away England. From their day to ours, this custom has come to be observed in every part of our Union, and at different times we have given thanks for many and varied things.

Today as a nation we give thanks first and foremost for the fact that we are at peace. All of life is a struggle; at least, it should be a constant and unending struggle to make the world a better place in which to live. The struggle goes on constantly against our baser natures, but we, as individuals, are able to carry it on today without being weighed down by the knowledge that, in order even to exist ourselves, we must try to destroy our fellow human beings—people who live in some other bit of land and speak some other language, who claim some other nationality and yet who have the same needs and the same desires we have ourselves, and whom we could love and understand if it were not for this thing called war.

Next in our category of national thanks, I think, comes the knowledge that as a nation we are growing steadily in the understanding of what democracy means to us. We are free to register our will politically, to worship God as we see fit, to insist that even those with whom we disagree shall have the right to express their opinions, and that all men shall come before the bar of justice with the presumption that they are innocent until they are proved guilty, and with the right to defend their beliefs and their actions.

We are thankful for our natural resources, for the productivity of our land, for the resourcefulness and ingenuity of our people, for their character and their courage which gives to our leaders the courage to look ahead and visualize a brighter day in the future.

As an individual, I am grateful for health and strength, the love of family and friends, for the power to enjoy so many things, for the ability to see the humor of life which softens the bitterness, and, above all else, for the ability and the opportunity to give a helping hand in one way or another to some of those who need it temporarily.

I can easily forgive my enemies for I so greatly value my friends, and on this Thanksgiving Day my wish for all of you who read this column is that life may give you a chance to be grateful for what you receive because you love the giver, and that you may have the joy of giving of yourself to those whom you may love.

Police Lineup Plea Denied by Court

Arresting officers may compel suspects to get in a line-up at police station for identification purposes under a ruling yesterday of the Georgia court of appeals. The ruling was in the case of Jim Merriweather, who appealed four robbery convictions on the grounds that his constitutional rights had been violated when he was lined up for identification. Merriweather quoted federal statutes in his plea, but the court held they did not hold in state cases.

TURKEY ON THE WING—High in the air, one of the 40 turkey participants in Villa Rica's seventh annual turkey trot yesterday, was caught as if flapped frantic wings in an effort to escape. It soon tired and came to earth, to be captured by someone in the crowd of 3,000 spectators. Races and a luncheon preceded the "trot."

Villa Rica Folk Free Turkeys At Annual Trot

40 Fat Birds Caught by Eager Hands; 3,000
Attend Fete.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VILLA RICA, Ga., Nov. 20.—Forty families knew tonight that they'd have turkey for tomorrow's Thanksgiving dinner. They caught their own during the highlighting event of Villa Rica's seventh annual turkey trot.

Overcast skies and uncompleted harvesting cut the crowd to an estimated 3,000, but it was a jubilant crowd, in full carnival spirit, which followed the "trot" up and down the street as 40 fat turkeys, one by one, were released from the top of a boxcar. Even the big birds seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion, and gave the crowd some of the best flights in the history of the local event. Several flew two blocks or more.

Catches Bird at Door. W. B. Edge, a cotton warehouseman, caught one of the turkeys in the door of his warehouse. Another flew over the top of the city hall. Others soared over the crowd and were caught on the wing as they came to earth.

The "trot" didn't provide all the thrills of the day. During a scheduled horse race just before noon, Ray Tyson, young stock exhibitor, was spooked at the end of a two-bloody race as he came under the wire a winner. He was uninjured. Harry Phillips was winner in an exciting mule race.

Luncheon for Visitors. Approximately 100 visitors and local backers of the day's events were guests at a luncheon at midday in the Civitan hall. Featured addresses were made by Captain Frank Simmons, of the State Highway Patrol; Major Homer Watkins, judge of Rockmart city court, and C. D. Redwine, of Fayetteville, former president of the state senate. S. C. Connolly, president of the Civitan Club, presided, and the city's greetings were extended the visitors by Mayor Frank S. Pope.

Federal Policy Of Balancing Budget Urged

Should Obtain Revenue To Meet Regular Expenses—Doughton.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A policy of balancing the federal budget on all "normal expenses" was advocated today by Representative Robert L. Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, after conferring with President Roosevelt.

Doughton, who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said:

"Outside of increased national defense costs, it is my individual opinion that, after effecting every proper and reasonable economy, we should raise sufficient additional revenue at least to meet the regular expenses of government."

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau recently appealed for new revenues and an increase in the federal debt limit. Doughton indicated that part of the new policy might be to make substantial savings on non-military expenses. The defense program, he said, ought to reduce unemployment sufficiently to bring relief expenditures substantially below the $1,400,000,000 which WPA is expected to cost during the present fiscal year. Fast Driving Is Overlooked On New Road

Legal Technicality of $70,000,000 Pennsylvania Not Tested.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—(UP) The legal technicality which officially imposes a 50-mile speed limit on Pennsylvania's new $70,000,000 super-highway, covering 160 miles between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, has not been tested.

One motorist covered the 160-mile, seven-tunnel route in one hour and 59 minutes, and other motorists are reported driving from 55 to 85 miles an hour without reprimand from the 50 special state motor police detailed to the highway.

The official 50-mile speed limit was set before the road was opened by Gov. Arthur H. James. The Governor, Attorney General Claude T. Reno, Colonel Lynn G. Adams, state motor police commissioner, agreed the road was a part of the state highway system and subject to the speed restrictions of the motor code.

State police officials say their duty is to stop careless or reckless driving rather than speeders. Turnpike officials make no mention of the speed limit, but privately advise "speed within reason" is permissible.

On the super-highway there are few signs reminding of the 50-mile limit and the "rules of the road" printed on through tickets do not mention speeding.

It is expected the legislators will raise the limit on the highway at the January session.

Suspect in Girl Shooting Indicted by Grand Jury

Emmanuel Robinson has been indicted by the Fulton grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to murder Miss Bessie Nissenbaum, of 365 Forrest avenue, November 10.

Investigators said Robinson fired a shot at Miss Nissenbaum at close range. Robinson was attempting to rob Miss Nissenbaum, officers said.

Grand Coulee Area May Be Artillery Grounds

Grand Coulee businessmen are preparing information for the War Department to show the Coulee area provides facilities for the training of long-range artillery units.

The information has been gathered following a suggestion of Lieutenant Colonel William H. Nelson, War Department advisor on occupational department.

Nelson believes the region provides "wonderful facilities" for the training of heavy artillery and urged that Grand Coulee Dam, Wash., official take the matter up with the War Department.

EXPERT CARVING

With only a pocket knife as a tool, Walter MacLaughlin, of East Holden, Me., carved a miniature of Napoleon's imperial coach. The coach has 500 separate pieces, 28 watch springs and 44 spokes and measures 18 inches from the rear wheel to the end of the pole.

Thanksgiving Day, Again

The annual national Thanksgiving Day has come once more. Today we pause in our affairs and render thanks to the Divine Providence that has brought us safely through another year, that has given bountiful harvests and showered blessings upon us every minute of every day of the year now gone.

Today we dine on plenty, dinners all over the land symbolic of the gratitude we feel for material things of earth. The entire nation stands before the groaning dinner table and says a sincere blessing, a heartfelt thanks to the Giver of all things good.

This year, as rarely before, the nation has added cause for voicing gratitude. For, while in other lands people such as us are living under the fearful stress of constant war, in our land no bombs are dropping; there is no call for the stretcher bearer or the ambulance; we do not face nights of dreary waiting in deep and dark shelters underground. We have no blackouts and our children may go, daily, to school without the haunting fear we shall never see them again.

Cause for giving thanks, yes. But, at the same time, we must be careful not to adopt that sentiment of the Pharisee and pray falsely to our God, thanks that we are not as other men are. Rather, let us be thankful, but at the same time pitiful for those in less happy plight.

Nor must we permit our own abundance to make us forget the hunger that stalks over many lands today. Let us pray that we may be led to act wisely, not primarily for our own good but for the greatest good of all mankind.

Let us pray that custom shall not harden our hearts and that repetition of horror shall not make calloused our sympathies for men and women who, overseas, are dying to rescue from oblivion the freedom we enjoy here.

Let us not forget, in our thanks for our own immunity, that the fight over there is, after all, our fight, too. That, regardless of how earnestly we hold ourselves aloof, British lads and British girls are dying today that not only Britain but the whole world may remain free.

Remembering these things, and praying that we shall not, in the crucial days to come, play the role of either hypocrite or coward, we can sincerely give our thanks today that our lives have been placed in pleasant places and that all, so far, is well with this America we hold so dear.

What Cornell Won

It is not likely that the moving picture camera will be used as a medium of deciding questionable football games—in spite of what happened in the Dartmouth-Cornell game.

Cornell graciously gave the game back to Dartmouth when the pictures clearly showed the unbeaten and untied Raiders had scored the winning touchdown on an illegal fifth-down play, with less than a second to play.

Surely it ranks as one of the greatest bits of sportsmanship the game of football has known. There is no rule of the game that could have made Cornell take this action. Usually, in the past, an offending team found it much simpler just to apologize.

So the sportsmanship involved is exemplary. Cornell held the playing of the game above winning and losing, denied itself a perfect season.

And yet, as pointed out, it is not likely the moving picture camera will ever decide football results generally. This method will remain with the horse-racing people.

Football has been played for a long time. Movies of games have been taken for many years. And yet it remained for Cornell to set aside precedent and give up a victory that could have been kept. The result of many another game could have been changed—if schools had so willed it.

It might mean that Cornell, by its unparalleled sportsmanship, will lose a possible Rose Bowl bid. The Red Raiders were being given serious consideration and still are listed among the eligibles.

But Cornell has gained a far greater thing—the respect of football followers from coast to coast. It is not worth, in cold cash, $100,000, and yet it is something that money can't buy. Schools that wilfully or otherwise achieve victory at any cost might give this a thought.

We don't know about Harmon, of Michigan, for the All-America. Anyone can pronounce Harmon.

REA and Defense

How electricity in rural areas is making an important contribution to the national defense program is dramatically told in the first history of rural electrification to be written—"Rural America Lights Up," by Harry Slattery, head of the Rural Electrification Administration, published by the National Home Library Foundation at Washington, D. C.

The author traces the phenomenal growth of electrical development from 1910 to the present, and shows how in the past five years more American farms have been electrified than during the previous 50 years.

"Rural America Lights Up" tells how rural electrification now supplies power to 115 different industries engaged in the defense program throughout the country; also, how it has helped introduce labor-saving equipment to all the sections it serves.

The author writes that 90 per cent of REA self-liquidating loans are made to co-operatives or other nonprofit organizations, and that as of October 1, 1940, loans had totaled $321,306,114.

Farm electric rates have been reduced from an over-all average rate of 18 cents per kwh. in the period from 1910 to 1923 to nine cents per kwh. during the second period from 1923 to 1935 to 4 1-2 cents per kwh. at present. Lower costs of all materials used in rural distribution lines made possible by large purchases and improved engineering processes are credited with being the determining factor in bringing costs of energy down.

Further lowering of costs is made possible by "self-help" co-operatives whose members, at their own option, supply much of the labor, under proper supervision, for building the lines. In some instances these members cut the poles from native timber and treat them in their own plants. The money thus earned by the co-operative members is used for wiring their homes and purchasing appliances. These members, too, make group purchases of appliances, resulting in savings of from 25 to 40 per cent.

Pointing out how "REA demonstrates the functioning of the democratic process," Mr. Slattery writes:

"The very method by which electric co-operatives are organized and managed manifests true democracy at work and stimulates the courage to make it work. Millions of men, women and young people are being educated and trained in the application of democratic principles to industry and finance. REA has its part to play in arresting rural decline and restoring farm life to the vigor it possessed when the nation was young."

As the trend to the miniature persists, we look for some absent-minded accordionist to pick up a small piano and squeeze.

The Seals of Christmas

This week thousands of letters, addressed to Atlantans, are being placed in the mails. The letters are from the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association and each one contains a supply of Christmas seals, to be placed on Christmas envelopes and packages.

Other seals will go on sale, in the near future, at prominent downtown locations. Everyone who can spare something, no matter how little, is urged to buy a few seals and thus help one of the greatest causes of humanity.

The fight against tuberculosis, the "great white plague," goes on year after year, without too much fanfare but with a record of steady progress. The reduction in the tubercular death rate is a vivid demonstration of what can be done by continued and intelligent effort, well organized.

The fight, however, is far from won. There are too many tubercular deaths in Atlanta, and in Georgia. There is need, great need, for education which will bring each afflicted individual to the clinics before it is too late for cure. There is need for better food and more milk for adults and for children exposed to the disease. For tuberculosis is a disease that wreaks havoc among the undernourished, the inadequately fed and clothed and housed.

Buy your Christmas seals, all you can, at once. And thus continue your part in sustaining an organization vitally essential to the future health and wellbeing of every individual in city and state.

The policy of Hitler, as regards feeding the occupied land, is now clear. Let the poor support the poor, with whose troubles they are doubtless familiar.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GENERAL, CORPORAL AND PRIVATE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20.—In view of the President's responsiveness to the change of human decoration at the White House has real significance. It is a big change. Few of the old habits—the New Dealers—are any longer to be seen darting busily through the back entrance to the White House offices. The widely celebrated palace guard appears to be reduced to a corps of one, in which Harry L. Hopkins is general, colonel, adjutant, corporal and private all at once.

Hopkins has been the President's most constant companion ever since his recovery last winter from his long illness. He has directly participated in many important matters, sitting in on the White House conferences at which the present national defense setup was devised, running many of the errands that used to be intrusted to Thomas G. Corcoran, and otherwise making himself useful. During the campaign, although he stayed in the background for political reasons, he regularly joined the "human amusements," Judge Samuel Rosenman, of New York, and the President's secretary, Stephen Early, in their work on campaign speeches. He also accompanied the President on campaign trips, and was with him on his vacation cruise on the Potomac.

Being a man of small means, Hopkins cannot remain forever at leisure. But whether he is given a secure at the Roosevelt Memorial Library at Hyde Park, or is offered a small position by some of the President's friends, or takes a part-time private position, his real job will probably continue to be with his chief at the White House. And although he was once a leading New Dealer himself, his very presence there will mitigate against any return of the former predominance of the New Deal group.

WITHOUT A CATALYST The truth is, Hopkins was always on a different footing from the other New Dealers. Where the group chiefly functioned as a hot-bed of ideas and policies, Hopkins himself was content that his relationship to the President should be primarily personal rather than political. Other New Dealers often tell the story of the time when Hopkins was raised to a frenzy of crusading enthusiasm and sent to sell the President on a grand point of policy, only to return an hour later ready to crusade equally zealously for precisely the opposite view. In short, he tends less to influence Roosevelt than to be influenced by him.

Furthermore, besides having an ancient, very bitter feud with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Hopkins is not also at odds with Tom Corcoran. As soon as Hopkins was installed as a regular White House inmate, Corcoran's White House visits began to grow less frequent. During the campaign, instead of serving as the President's leading speech-writer, as he did in 1936, Corcoran was assigned to labor in a much more remote vineyard, as vice-chairman of the independent voters for Roosevelt. Now there is no indication that he will be restored to his former status and he is seriously considering going into private law practice in New York.

Corcoran was the catalyst and co-ordinator of the New Dealers. Without him, the group itself can hardly retain the coherence and unity which used to give it such power. Many changes are already apparent in it. Defense Commissioner Leon Henderson has broken with his old friends. The status of Harold Ickes has been affected by Hopkins' turn. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, though still close to the President, appears to be less and less interested in general policy, and more and more preoccupied with his department. He is expected to be named to the first supreme court vacancy, just as SEC Chairman Jerome N. Frank, already far less conspicuous than in the past, is also thought to be slated for a place on the federal bench. In fact, the New Deal group, as a group, is in a fairly advanced stage of dissolution. Before long, unless the trend changes, the only remaining traces of the group will be the innumerable young men faithful to its ideas for whom Corcoran and other New Dealers found subordinate government posts.

MEN AROUND THE PRESIDENT Essentially, the campaign is the key to this change in the Washington scene. The New Dealers led the rout for the years following the 1936 campaign, as Ray Moley, Rex Tugwell and the brain-trusters did in the years after 1932. Both crowds began as the President's campaign assistants.

In 1940, the men who worked most closely with the President during the campaign were the trio, Hopkins, Early and Rosenman. Early went to France with the President, and contributed to the President's speeches. For example, Stalin was the "European dictator" mentioned by Roosevelt as not caring to undertake the presidency, and the story originated in Bullitt's celebrated first interview with the Soviet despot. Then Corcoran's partner, Benjamin V. Cohen, who always kept his distance from the White House and has thus avoided the conflicts of personality there, headed the small research staff got together for the last three weeks of intensive campaigning.

There were also others, but taken all together, the men of 1940 are too miscellaneous to provide anything but a negative indication for the future. This indication is that no one group will predominate at the White House, as in the past. Instead the President seems more likely to rely increasingly on the regular officials of the State, War and Navy Departments, the defense commission, and the other agencies directly involved in the work which almost wholly pre-occupies him—the formulation of foreign policy and the organization of national defense.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Masculine Irritations.

Yesterday this column vented its irritation with certain habits of the feminine sex.

Turn about is but fair play, so this morning we'll try to pick faults with the menfolk. Though, being a man, it will be awfully difficult for this writer to find much fault with his own sex, even now.

However, always striving to be fair and to balance one criticism with another, the effort will be made and there'll be a special struggle not to palliate the fault-finding with apologies.

Here goes: There are the fellows who like to idle along an important thoroughfare at 15 miles per hour and take unholy delight in blocking every attempt of those behind to pass them.

You've seen 'em. Driving right behind, with plenty of clear street ahead of the rascal in front of you. But he won't hurry. Seems to take delight in seeing how slowly his car will move. The only time he moves quickly is when he swerves to block you, and then he tries to pass him. He's not going to let you pass if he has to swerve all over the street. Confound him! And you late and in desperate hurry!

The Risk Taker.

There's that other fellow, maybe the same one all the time, who drives past me, in my car, while I'm waiting for a traffic light to change. He drives past me on the wrong side of the road, and then he turns right and gains a good half block, to say nothing of the very real danger of a smash because of his wrong-side passage. If the light had changed at the crucial moment and I'd started to turn, across his illegal route. Two smashed cars, at least, and probably skulls or bones.

Why are men, executives in office jobs, so inconsiderate about their women employees that they'll waste time playing pinball machine or telling off-color jokes to other men? "In conference," for half the day, and then dictate a dozen letters just before office closing time and calmly instruct they must be put in the mail that night? Necessitating the secretary who had struggled to kill time all day, to stay an hour late, eat a cold supper at home and, maybe, mess up a very important date.

Why do men sit and argue at a restaurant table for an hour after they've finished lunch, although a score of would-be patrons are waiting patiently for a vacant chair in the place?

Careless Shoppers.

Why do men fuss at their women folk for spending too much and then go into a store and tell the clerk, "I want a suit of clothes, blue," or "a hat," or a "pair of shoes," and never think to inquire the price until after the purchase is concluded. And then haven't the nerve to call it off and look for something more reasonable, regardless of how high the price may be?

Why do men make their wives skimp on the family budget for months in order that debts may be paid, and then on a moment's impulse buy a new car and add a pile of monthly payments to the debt column?

Why does a married man fuss if his wife is ten minutes late at an appointment to meet him, and then bring a total stranger home for dinner, without advance warning, 30 minutes after the regular dinner hour?

Why does a man pretend to scorn women's interest in fashions, and then when he's out with the wife who is wearing a last year coat, for his financial sake, spend half his time giving the eye to the hot blonde number wearing the most startling new fashion outfit the most costly stores can provide?

Why do men adopt an attitude of natural superiority when in the presence of women and why do they, at the same time, lard their conversation with a lot of blarneying compliments that are not sincere and that the women know are not sincere?

Why, in short, are men so blame conceived and on what grounds do they assume, even though secretly, that theirs is the superior sex?

And why do men expect their women folk to regard them with awed admiration and do so durn well to deserve it?

Pretty punk bunch, we men, after all, aren't we?

Shelter Awaits Digger.

Lindbergh Drive

Named for a Hero.

Change It? Why?

Brownsville, a town in Texas, down by the border, has changed the name of Lindbergh avenue to Corriegan avenue, presumably after the wrong-way flyer—who seems to have relapsed into what Theodore Roosevelt termed "innocuous desuetude."

Years ago, after Lindbergh's spectacular flight across the Atlantic, the name of the paved cross road—and an important one—between Peachtree road and Piedmont avenue—was changed from Mayson to Lindbergh drive. It honored a hero and it helped reduce confusion, because "Mayson" designated several streets and roads.

After Colonel Lindbergh's recent radio talk: there was chat in town about taking his name off the sign posts and putting something else thereon. The idea seems to have died in childbirth, for which I am glad.

I think it a mistake to erect a monument or dedicate a public building or name a street in honor of any hero until he has passed to the great beyond and isn't likely to spoil his reputation. There are few names, raised on bronze tablets, on several Atlanta structures upon which nobly desires to comment. Any more than we like to take visitors to Stone Mountain and explain why and wherefore about that colossal memorial and what became of the man.

But I don't want to change the name of Lindbergh drive.

Still, He Did It!

Warned it for a daring young man who started something and finished it. He provided inspiration which has made overseas flying a routine. Seats on the Yankee Clipper must be reserved far in advance.

I'm not fond of the Lindbergh who came back and acquired an attack of swell head in dealing with the press. But he was too young to be tactful.

And I do not agree with Colonel Lindbergh's views about what this country's relations should be with Europe.

But that the heck! He was invited to talk "on the air," wasn't he? This is a free country, isn't it? A country of free speech? A country where a man who is assumed to know "something" and have thoughts about things can express them?

So why all this uprisings and resentment against Lindbergh?

You have your own ideas and don't hesitate to give them voice. So has he.

You can listen to him or tune him off and get Fred Allen. You don't have to agree with him.

But we named Lindbergh drive for a stalwart young hero who really was a hero.

So why not let it go at that? Years ago we dedicated, with elaborate ceremonies and a river of champagne, a monument in Piedmont Park in the name of war peace. And the next year all hell burst out in Europe.

Have I heard a voice saying we should tear down that monument? No? Then I move we adjourn.

Those Noises.

Otis Brumby's Cobb, County Times of Marietta—gee, that's a long credit line, but it doesn't have to go on a marquee in electric lights—is kicking about unnecessary noises. Maybe Editor Chess Abernathy sleeps or tries to on a main street. I happen to know Otis' slumbers in a "shack" away out on Rottenwood creek and puts up most excellent sausage about this time of year. Which is by no means a hint. But I do like sausage.

Anyway, the paper says all this honking of automobile horns at all hours of the night merely indicates bad manners or impatience and gets nobody anywhere. The writer wants peace and quiet. In which I'm with him, regardless of his national or state politics, if any. I don't remember.

In this connection, as the feller says, I wonder why engineers on the Southern railway, entering or emerging from this fair city of Atlanta, feel impelled to sound their mournful whistles somewhere between Oglethorpe University and the Peachtree station in the wee small hours. Are there grade crossings? I don't know any. Are there cows on the track? I know no wandering bovines.

Not in my mind, personally. But Ding, my pup, has a sensitive ear. And when that whistle blows he howls. In unison, or as nearly as he can make it. And I don't mind that, either. Or not much. But I'm afraid the neighbors will. They may not understand a dog's innate musical instinct which impels him to add a bit of harmony.

"What's become of that mechanical cotton picker that was going to put the Negro out of business?" inquires a postcard without signature.

Checking up on that I discover the share-cropper or tenant needn't go jump in the river this winter.

Biggest agricultural machinery company in the country hasn't got it right yet. Its vice president says they've been playing with the idea for 30 years and have made a lot of progress. But still the darn thing won't pick cotton—satisfactorily.

Mexico Battle Marked

Commemorating the Battle of Molino del Rey (King's Mill), between invading Americans and Mexicans in 1848, civic ceremonies were held recently at the historic old mill in Chapultepec Park, Mexico City, where a monument has been erected to the Mexicans who lost their lives in the engagement.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THANKSGIVING DAY LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—There ought to be a piece today about Thanksgiving. I am a little troubled because this is being written in Louisville and there is a heavy schedule ahead before I get the plane for home. In all likelihood I will be asleep at the table before the second helping of turkey is served.

I do not know why it is, but when newspapermen get together they talk. They are the greatest talkers in the world. They talk shop. They like to hear shop talked and that is why they often are a clammy lot. They like to talk and they like to listen to one another.

Here at Louisville, where newspapermen from Associated Press papers have been in convention, there has been very little sleeping. There has been much clinic work, so to speak, with photographers, picture editors, news editors and all sorts of newspaper persons talking especially about their own jobs.

Some amazing things have been developed and are but a year or so away from newspapers. The Associated Press photographers have developed a gadget which screws into the back of a speed camera and which will synchronize the shutter with the flash, thereby utilizing all the light for the full exposure. We long have had the synchronization of trigger and flash, but this relatively simple gadget arranges for the shutter, or curtain of the camera, to move with the light. Great improvement in pictures results. A new color camera, invention of a Louisville photographer, was exhibited. There are amazing things ahead in wirephoto. Pet theories about makeup, pictures and captions, and other features of the business were discussed.

Then, at night, came dinner and talk. The talk goes on until finally there are but two left. By then it is early morning. By the time one gets to sleep the Louisville street cars, which cross corners with a sound of garbage cans filled with bricks being dropped from a great height, start sounding off. As a result, the delegates all are somewhat heavily lidded and Thanksgiving Day will find most of them snoring homeward on trains.

TOM WALLACE One of the talks here was by Tom Wallace, the veteran editor of The Louisville Times. He talked on the duty of newspapers. It was an excellent reply to Mr. Harold Ickes and also an excellent reply to those few publishers who foul their own nests by regarding freedom of the press as their own personal property.

"Freedom of the press means freedom of expression," he said. And it does.

"The duty of the press is to lead, not to mirror the opinions of the readers," he said. And that is true. Its news columns must present the news and its editorial pages must make a stand on public issues, not merely try to reflect other persons' opinions as Mr. Harold Ickes said.

"Mr. Ickes," he said, "does not quite understand what is meant by freedom."

Newspapermen generally know they did the finest job ever done by the American press on the past election. They also know a very few newspapers did their worst. But it is ridiculous to say that because most of the newspapers supported the losing candidate they were not and are not free.

Newspapermen generally do not believe the press is to come in for any attack on its freedom by the President. Some few Washington men believe it, but they are in a minority among correspondents there. That the army and navy properly will place restrictions on some of their own news is to be expected. But to say the freedom of the American press is in danger or that it is not free, is to ignore the truth.

"Honest Harold" Ickes has one of those complexes about newspapers. He was fired off a newspaper because he was too incompetent to hold a newspaper job. Since that time he has been a constant and carping critic.

I'D GET OUT Some days ago I wrote a column along this line of thought, putting down my honest convictions. There were a number of letters pro and con. Only one disturbed me. It was from a south Georgia city and, while anonymous, purported to be from a newspaperman or newspapermen. I had said that in 20 years of newspaper work, I had never known of an instance where an advertiser had sought to influence an editorial course of a newspaper. This was perfectly true. But this was the part the anonymous writer or writers chose. Under it they wrote: "Whose bread I eat his song I sing." Well, I felt rather sorry about them. Obviously they felt that way about themselves. If I felt as they do I'd get out of it and try something else. I've been lucky. I've worked always for honest publishers who have let me have my say, so I don't understand the sort of thing which troubled the anonymous writers. I'm sorry for them.

Well, it is Thanksgiving Day. I am thankful, among other things, for being a newspaperman in a profession which has fewer knaves in it than most. And I think I can stay awake all the way through the pumpkin pie.

The Only Safe Time to Cage a Tiger Is While It Remains a Kitten

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to purchase at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death."

Those history-making words, familiar to every school child in free America, might have been spoken today, if this generation had produced a statesman of equal eloquence. And they might have been spoken, somewhere in the world, during every generation since history began. For the struggle against power is endless.

Before history began, when primitive man first stepped into the dim focus of mythology, families had assembled in tribes and each tribe had a chief. The struggle had already begun.

The strongest or most cunning man, having become chief, enjoyed many privileges and dignities not shared by his followers. He liked his job.

Most of his followers liked the arrangement, also. The timid and humble and those without self-confidence have always been content as followers. They prefer taking orders.

But the strong and arrogant and able, considering themselves no less competent than the chief, and unable to share the awe of the humble, have always rebelled against authority, either openly or in their secret hearts, and through the centuries have fought and schemed to win greater freedom.

The chief has always fought back—not with sweet reasonableness, but with force. He has banished or tortured or hanged the rebels. He has oppressed and suppressed with greater rigor, and thus invited more bitter rebellion.

It is the nature of power to increase itself—either to make itself more secure, or else prompted by love of power. There is no sweeter music to the human ear than the sound of clapping hands and approving cheers. Once it is heard, vanity can never be happy without it.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Atlanta is honored to have been chosen again as the meeting place for the annual sessions of the North Georgia Methodist Conference, this being the 74th session. Bishop Arthur J. Moore is presiding. All of the sessions are being held at the Wesley Memorial Church in downtown Atlanta.

There are 10 districts in the North Georgia Conference, as follows: Athens-Elberton, Atlanta, Augusta, Dalton, Decatur-Oxford, Gainesville, Griffin, LaGrange, Marietta and Rome. The total membership of the conference, as given in the 1939 annual, is 156,188. Dr. Waights G. Henry, superintendent of the Atlanta district, tells me that there will be an increase in professions of faith in his district this year of at least 15 per cent over last year, and a like increase by certificate. Dr. Henry goes on to emphasize the fine progress of the Methodists friends of his district in retiring indebtedness on church buildings, improvement of their physical properties, increased gifts to missions and benevolences, and a general advance all along the line.

Dr. Thomas M. Elliott, pastor of the Lakewood Heights Church in Atlanta, and one of the best newspaper men I know, tells me that there will be an equally fine report by the other district superintendents, both in the matter of gifts for local church support and for missions and benevolences, and he estimates that there will be not less than 6,000 new members by profession of faith reported this year. Dr. Elliott tells me that The Wesleyan Christian Advocate, the Methodist weekly newspaper for Georgia, has trebled its circulation in the last three years, and will report approximately 23,000 subscribers at the conference this week. That is one of the finest evidences of the progress among our Methodist brethren.

"The spirit of harmony and cooperation in the conference is one of the outstanding facts which I am glad to report," said Dr. Elliott. He told of having talked with Bishop Moore today (Tuesday) and of the Bishop's comment that the same spirit of unity prevailed in the South Georgia Conference, over which Bishop Moore presided only a few days ago. Every Christian in Georgia will rejoice over this fine word from our Methodist friends.

Dr. Merton S. Rise, pastor of the great Metropolitan Methodist Church, Detroit, is in Atlanta for at least three sermons to the conference. I look forward with much joy to seeing and hearing this great preacher, whose books I highly cherish.

My Day

HENDERSON, N. C., Tuesday.—We changed trains this morning in Washington. Because our typewriter seemed to go to pieces during the last few days of travel, the White House car came down to the station to bring us another typewriter, and to take back a bag we felt we could dispense with on this trip.

It was nice to see the smiling familiar faces and we almost wished that we did not have to get on another train. However, once on board, we enjoyed our breakfast and I must say that the sun shining on the familiar Virginia landscape was very attractive.

We worked all the way down to Lynchburg, Va. It seemed curious after so many cold days to find the sun almost too warm as it shone through the windows. At Lynchburg we were met by the mayor of Henderson, N. C., and several ladies from the Business and Professional Women's Club of Henderson. They took us to lunch in a very attractive hotel and we found ourselves sharing the dining room with the Rotary Club. The club members offered to sing any song I wished, but, unfortunately, I had to leave before they fulfilled their promise.

The most beautiful looking Smithfield ham was presented to me in the lobby of the hotel. I hated to part with it, even to have it mailed back to Washington, but I realized that I had no place to pack a ham done up in cellophane. They promised to mail it special delivery today, so we could take it to Hyde Park for my mother-in-law to use at her Thanksgiving dinner.

The drive from Lynchburg to Henderson is through country which reminds me very much of what one sees around Warm Springs, Ga. The pines are everywhere. There is a reddish tinge to the earth and cotton and tobacco seem to be the main crops.

The genuine southern atmosphere exists here. A feeling of leisure and kindness and contentment envelopes one. There is no rushing to catch a subway train here and knocking down anyone in your path. There is always time to remember your manners.

We are now in a little hotel in Henderson writing this column, signing mail and resting before the evening lecture. The hotel proprietor's little daughter, who looks like Little Lord Fauntleroy, a story I used to love in my childhood, led us to our room. She never spoke a word, but was sweetly solemn and completely self-possessed. At 1:40 a. m. we shall take a train back to Washington and this trip will be a thing of the past.

The only thing I have not told you about is the dinner we attended last night in Chicago which was given for the benefit of the American Art Federation. They are doing such a wonderful work giving young people a chance for vocational training and are still functioning in Europe, where many other organizations have had to cease doing any work.

Lawyer Hunted By Deputies in Support Case

John Vismor Accused of Failure To Provide for Minor.

John Vismor, 31, Atlanta lawyer, scheduled to face Judge John S. McClelland on a charge of failing to support a minor child, was being sought yesterday by deputies of the sheriff.

Vismor was given a 12-month suspended sentence in 1935 on conviction of abandonment and probation officers said he had failed to make a payment for support of a minor child since last February.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued October 4 but officers could not locate him until they discovered he had a case scheduled for trial before Judge Virlyn B. Moore in domestic relations court. When he appeared to represent his client there, officers took him in custody and carried him before Judge McClelland, where probation officers asked that the suspended sentence be revoked.

Vismor requested Judge McClelland to allow him to finish his case in Judge Moore's court before taking action in his own case. McClelland consented. Vismor went to try his divorce case but did not return to criminal court, Judge McClelland said.

Quiet Prevails at Dam

After Labor Strife

ANDREWS, N. C., Nov. 20.—(P)

Quiet prevailed at the site of the Nantahala dam project today after two days and a night of disturbances attributed by a union labor official to an effort by native labor to drive northern workmen from the $6,500,000 job.

Construction operations remained at a standstill for the second straight day. The Utah Construction Company, which is building the dam for a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, made no statement but there was an expectation that work would be resumed Friday.

More than 700 men are employed on the job. A considerable number were said to have left for their homes in the north after being paid off early this week.

Hundreds are coming to town to work and live, need used furniture and have CASH to pay for it. Advertise yours in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Free Ride To Town

by Street Car or Bus
Friday---9 to 10 a.m.

Here's the biggest bargain of Atlanta's After-Thanksgiving Sales Carnival—free transportation to town on any city street car, bus or trackless trolley line, as well as the Tenth Street and Ball Park Shoppers Specials.

There are no strings to this offer; you don't have to buy anything or do anything to get this free transportation. To take best advantage of the Sales Carnival just board the car or bus between 9 and 10 a. m. Friday and ride to town. When you are ready to return later in the day get on your regular car and pay the usual token (or cash) fare.

This extra-special bargain transportation is designed to give shoppers an added inducement to visit the Sales Carnival at the downtown stores and will be good only on inbound trips on cars and buses operating to the central business section from residential areas (but not on interurban lines). On outbound cars and on inbound cars within the business section—bounded by Baker street on the north; Washington-Courtland street on the east; Mitchell street on the south, and Spring street on the west—regular fares will be in effect during this period. No transfers will be given with free rides.

If you are not in the habit of shopping by street car or bus, leave your automobile at home Friday and see how convenient and satisfactory your transit service really is.

No parking difficulties.
No driving in heavy traffic.
No long walks to and from inconvenient parking places.

SHOT and shell—moans of the wounded and dying—ravages of war on home, industry and agriculture—innocent children torn from the arms of loving parents—piteous appeals of the ill-clad and starving—ruthlessness—betrayal—treachery—despotism—

Who can sum this total of the lands across the seas?

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

With hearts full of gratitude—with upraised arms or on bended knee—never has the cycle of the years brought us a Thanksgiving Day wherein every American man or woman could more soulfully breathe the thought—

"We have so much for which to be thankful. Grant only that we may continue to enjoy the blessings of peace."

Economic problems pale into insignificance—dollars and material wealth become empty symbols when we contrast them with a single shot that might snuff out the life of one American boy. True, our lads are donning the khaki and blue of military and naval uniforms. Guns and sabres and airplane controls are replacing the tools of business and agriculture for thousands. Yet as we prepare against the possible aggression of men gone mad with lust for power—the words still echo in every heart:

"We are thankful for the blessings of peace. May all the freedom of this land of liberty continue. May all the days ahead be Thanksgiving Days for America."

The entire staff of our bank wishes you and yours a contented and peaceful Thanksgiving Day. For the confidence and trust reposed in us by thousands of fine men and women, we are likewise deeply thankful.

FIERY SCARLETT TO RETURN—Vivien Leigh, heroine of "Gone With the Wind," will return to Atlanta in early December for an "anniversary world premiere" of the movie version of Margaret Mitchell's story. The premiere will again be held at the Grand.

'G.W.T.W.' Epic Returns Here December 12

Film Stars Coming: All Proceeds Go to British War Relief.

"Gone With the Wind," David O. Selznick's movie version of Margaret Mitchell's story of the Southland, will return to Atlanta on December 12 for an "anniversary world premiere" at Loew's Grand, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced last night.

Proceeds of the premiere will go for British war relief and all ticket sales will be in charge of the Atlanta unit of the war relief fund under the direction of Mrs. James D. Robinson, Sr.

Vivien Leigh Coming.

Vivien Leigh, who plays the role of Scarlett O'Hara, will be here in person. She will arrive at least a day before the premiere in a chartered plane with other stars, and her husband, Laurence Olivier. Others who definitely have announced their intentions to be in Atlanta for the anniversary showing are Producer David O. Selznick and Hattie MacDaniel, who played the role of Scarlett's Negro "mammy."

Mrs. Robinson, who is chairman of the British Relief Ways and Means Committee, last night expressed her gratitude to Selznick and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer "for their generous aid to British relief."

"They have done a fine thing for our committee and for the city of Atlanta," Mrs. Robinson said. "Since an anniversary premiere is hitherto unknown in the movies, this will bring national and international publicity to Atlanta and keep our city before the eyes of the world."

Mrs. Robinson also called attention to the difficulties people had in obtaining seats for last year's premiere and urged they do not delay in buying seats this time.

Ticket Sale.

She reported tickets will be on sale at the Loew's Grand box office and at a headquarters to be set up by members of her committee. Out-of-town mail orders will be given immediate attention, she said.

Already, the fullest co-operation of the city in making this year's premiere a gala event approaching in enthusiasm if not in magnitude last year's show, has been promised by Mayor Hartsfield and members of council, Mrs. Robinson said.

Again, as last year, to lend atmosphere to the event, Loew's Grand will be transformed by the magic of a Hollywood "front." It will not be the same columned Tara of last year and just what it will be has not yet been announced, but Metro officials promise it will be something different.

As one of the features of the anniversary premiere, Miss Leigh and her "mammy," Hattie MacDaniel, will re-enact on the stage one of the film's most famous scenes. Replicas of the original sets used in filming "Gone With the Wind" will be erected on Loew's Grand theater for the occasion.

BY LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Thanksgiving dinner can be topped off in excellent fashion at Atlanta's theaters today. The film fare is above average.

Two technicolor films are offered—"Northwest Mounted Police" at the Fox and "Bitter Sweet" at the Grand. "Hit Parade of 1941" plays the Rialto and Carole Lombard's venture with Charles Laughton, "They Knew What They Wanted" is at the Paramount.

The Capitol is holding over the Fox feature of last week, "Arise My Love," and the Roxy still is featuring the Andrews Sisters and Bunny Berigan, "Wyoming" has moved to the Rhodes for a second week.

Loew's.

The Motion Picture Daily this week says: "The airwaves will again be featuring 'I'll See You Again, 'Dear Little Cafe' and 'Zigeuner,' judging from the audience reaction to the Noel Coward music from 'Bitter Sweet' at the picture's preview."

This Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald film version of this musical will open today at Loew's Grand theater.

In the supporting roles are George Sanders, Felix Bressart, Lynn Carver, Ian Hunter, Edward Ashley, Diana Lewis, Fay Holden, Sig Ruman and Herman Bing. The story recounts the life of an English girl who undergoes poverty and privation in the Vienna of the bright 1890s for love of her husband, formerly her music teacher. Their reward comes to her alone when he is killed in a duel just as his opera was to receive a hearing.

Fox.

Cecil B. DeMille's two-year achievement, "Northwest Mounted Police," will open at the Fox theater today. Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Paulette Goddard, Robert Preston, Preston Foster, Lynne Overman and Akim Tamiroff are all in the cast.

The story tells of the civil war in Canada—when the half-breeds rebelled and the rebellion was put down by a handful of valiant, unafraid mounted police. Cooper plays a Texas ranger headed to the north country to capture an escaped murderer—George Bancroft. The mounties want him, too, since he is the leader in the rebellion. Love triangle is formed by the affair between Mountie Sergeant Foster, Miss Carroll and Cooper. Another love affair is between Miss Goddard and Preston. There is action and beautiful scenery plus a comic touch in this historical background story.

Paramount.

Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton are starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," R. K. O. film opening at the Paramount theater today.

They appear as husband and wife, with Miss Lombard in love

The band has 12 musicians and a girl singer, divided as three tenor saxophones, one trombone, two trumpets, drums, bass and guitar. Vocalists with the band are Little Dottie Lee, George Owen, Cliff Jackson and Peters himself. Bobby is first, last and always a salesman; hailed as one of America's outstanding young showmen. with the hired man, but bound to Laughton whom she detests. The story is very dramatic with many incidents solved—the movie way—which arise in every-day life. Trade magazines have given this picture high praise as interesting entertainment, uniting two of Filmland's best motion picture players.

Rhodes.
"Wyoming," starring Wallace Beery, is now playing a hold-over engagement at the Rhodes theater.

Wallace Beery plays Reb Harkness, former desperado who, to protect a young girl and small child, becomes champion of law and order in a primitive wilderness, breaking up a gang of desperadoes, aiding General Custer fighting Indians. He plays comical court to Marjorie Main, as the "lady blacksmith" of the town and engages in other comedy with Leo Carrillo. Some of the finest scenes are between Beery and little Bobs Watson, who plays the orphan Beery protects.

"Arise, My Love," is being held over for three days, and moved from the Fox to the Capitol. Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland are starred.

In the midst of the drama of today. It is a story which starts in high gear with Claudette, an audacious newspaper woman, aiding Flyer Ray Millard in his escape from Spain. It has a warm, light-hearted interlude of love in Paris, and then, mounting tension as the lovers face the danger of a world war.

Their attempt to escape to safe America is frustrated. They return to fight on through the battle of France, and to be rejoined in the determination to carry their fight back to America.

Walter Abel, Dick Purcell, Dennis O'Keefe and Esther Dale are among the featured players in the cast of this production, which was directed by Mitchell Leisen.

Rialto.

A musical romance, replete with comedy, songs and comely girls, opens today at the Rialto theater for a week's engagement. It is "The Hit Parade of 1941," with Kenny Baker, Ann Miller, Frances Langford, Hugh Herbert, Mary Boland, Patsy Kelly, Phil Silvers, Sterling Holloway and Franklin Pangborn.

Also, in the song and music department, are "Six Hits and a Miss" and the famous Borrah Minevitch and his Harmonica Rascals.

This musical hit show possesses what many others of its type have lacked, a fascinating and coherent plot. It is concerned with a struggling radio station, saved from bankruptcy by the advent of television and with all sorts of complications when a girl, favored by the sponsor but who can't sing, is given the voice of another girl for the television broadcasts, by the tricks of double recording.

There are at least four songs which have already jumped into the hit class. They are "In the Cool of the Evening," "Make Yourself at Home," "Who Am I?" and "Swing Low, Sweet Rhythm."

STAR-STRUCK—Betty Dickson, Agnes Scott freshman, thinks she is the No. 1 Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald fan in the nation. She travels about the south to attend their concerts and she has seen all their films a minimum of 13 times each.

Scott Freshman Is No. 1 Eddy-MacDonald Fan

Betty Dickson Has 25 Scrapbooks With Pictures of Stars.

When Miss Betty Dickson, of 24 Park Lane, a freshman at Agnes Scott, just thinks about Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, she gets starry-eyed.

When she sees them in a movie, she is filled with rapture which she describes as "heavenly." When she sees one of them in person, at a concert she feels like she is going to swoon, she is so filled with ecstasy.

Miss Dickson does not know for sure, but she thinks she is probably the nation's No. 1 Eddy-MacDonald fan. She has 25 scrapbooks filled with their pictures. She has seen "Naughty Marietta" 14 times; "Sweethearts," 25 times; "Balalaika," 13 times; "Rose Marie," 16 times, and "New Moon," 33 times.

In addition she travels all over the South to hear one of them sing in a concert.

She goes to the movies when they open in the morning and she stays all day, until hunger drives her home late in the afternoon for supper. Then she comes back at night. And she repeats this performance as long as the picture is in town.

She doesn't know how many times she will see "Bitter-Sweet," which comes here this week. But she will see it as many times as she can.

Variety Motorcade Set November 30

Approximately the entire membership of the Atlanta Variety Club is planning to participate in the "Us on a Bus" motorcade to Athens for the Tech-Georgia football game Saturday, November 30.

This will probably prove to be the most unique caravan ever to leave the city inasmuch as de luxe buses are being engaged instead of having the members drive their own cars. Reservations for the trip are being received by Property Master E. E. Whitaker, etc., at 12:23, 2:38, 4:53, 7:08 and 9:23.

The idea of having a bus motorcade from Atlanta to Athens was mentioned at the last club meeting by Chief Barker William K. Jenkins, and there was an instantaneous rush for reservations.

RIDING THE CIRCUIT AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

BY THOS. M. ELLIOTT

Several years ago the late Clark Howell asked me how many years I'd been writing Methodist news for The Constitution. When I told him that 25 years of that kind of work had passed through my hands, he replied, "Well, I hope you live to make it even 100."

Here I go again, on my 33d round of circuit riding. There are many interesting happenings to record, and some of them are rather exciting, as well as rare and racy.

Pegasus, my old horse, is champing at the bit, and rearing to go. Giddy-up, Pegasus. Scuse our dust. I've been told the first 100 years are the hardest.

Three Deaths This Year.

The conference is saddened because three of the faithful pastors have passed on to their reward since the last meeting. The Rev. A. J. Sears, of Chamblee, died last November 30, after a conference career of 43 years. The Rev. L. P. Hucksby, of Atlanta, died February 27, after 33 years as a Methodist itinerant preacher, and the Rev. W. B. Mills, of Holy Springs, died May 25, having served 26 years as a Methodist minister.

Local preachers who died during the year were the Rev. W. F. Dailey, of Tunnel Hill; the Rev. T. L. Noble, of Yorkville, and the Rev. H. J. Penn, of Atlanta.

Widows of deceased pastors and wives of living ministers who passed away during the year were Mrs. A. M. Sprayberry, of Atlanta; Mrs. John F. Davis, of Carrollton; Mrs. C. C. Jarrell, of Augusta, and Mrs. J. K. Brown, of Blue Ridge.

Special memorial services will be held during the conference week.

Ministers' Wives.

Among the 303 lay members of the conference this week, seven of the 56 laywomen are wives of active ministers. They are Mrs. L. S. Baugh, of Mayfield; Mrs. T. C. Ford, of Adairsville; Mrs. B. N. McHan, of Monroe; Mrs. J. W. Chidsey, of Gainesville; Mrs. T. W. Holbrook, of Inman; Mrs. S. A. Dailey, of Mountville and Mrs. D. H. Maxey, of Cave Spring.

Speedy Runner.

The members of the Atlanta St. Mark Methodist church may not know that their beloved pastor is a swift runner, and might not even suspect it. But it's a fact just the same. That man Rumble could give Nurni and Owens dots on how really to put 'em down and take 'em up fast. The fact is Dr. Rumble ran a half-mile in nothing flat, and had several seconds to spare.

It all came about this way: Between Atlanta and Macon is a small village named Smarns. It was there that Dr. Rumble spent his boyhood days. Among his chores was that of going for the cows late each afternoon. About one-half mile from the Rumble homestead was a Negro church, where on one occasion a big two-day meeting was held.

Some of the Negroes attending the meeting preferred to go to a pine thicket nearby, and have a game of crap-shooting. Late that afternoon the Rumble lad was searching for his cows, which had wandered into that selfsame pine thicket. The Rumble lad found the cows and the Negro gamblers at the same instant, and that was just when the Negroes' social activities had reached the place where razors were brought into play.

Instantly the Rumble lad turned on his heels and began to pick 'em up and put 'em down. He ran that half-mile in nothing flat. It was said that he reached home sometime before his feet got there. Yes, sir, Dr. Rumble is a speedy runner when sufficiently urged.

Street Car Puzzle.

A year ago your humble servant was appointed pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church here in Fulton county. That meant that he would have to use Mr. Arkwright's electric buggies in getting around town. Some things about the electric vehicles were puzzling. For instance, why should one take a West End car to go to East Point?

Then the fares were a problem, also. Some days I could ride for a nickel, while on other days it was 7-1-2 cents, and again it was a dime.

I never did manage to catch a car when I could ride for nothing.

Shaves a Pig.

You will hardly believe it, but it's a fact. Dr. Waights G. Henry, the dignified and erudite district superintendent of the Atlanta district, one time engaged in the unheard-of thing of shaving a pig.

It came about this way: Away back in the days of yore, when Dr. Henry was a young minister in his first pastorate in Mississippi, he and his Epworth Leaguers decided to help Bishop Candler in his mission work in Cuba by having a barbecue. When the dead pig was plunged into the hot water the water was only hot enough to set the hair. That hair wouldn't come off, so the young preacher got razors and proceeded to shave that pig from snout to tail. They made a profit of $9 at the barbecue, and sent it on to Bishop Candler. The bishop said the $9 "helped much."

Seventeen for One.

A little more than a year ago Bishop Arthur J. Moore, who at that time was in charge of Methodist mission work in the Far East, made a tour of Southern Methodist territory and appealed for help for the stricken Chinese Christians. Southern Methodists gave him $212,000 for that purpose. Bishop Moore said the rate of exchange at that time was such that on American dollar was worth 17 Chinese dollars. The $212,000 was therefore multiplied 17 times. In other words, if a man gave one dollar to help the stricken Chinese Christians, that dollar amounted to 17 dollars in Chinese coin.

The 'Gator Growl

There is a new spirit at Florida. Coach Tom Lieb has done a remarkable job in a short time. Not only has he brought out the best in the 'Gators offensively, along with a stout defense, but he has won over the most hard-bitten supporters.

Frank Wright, writing of Florida, Tech's opponent Saturday at Grant Field, says—

"The University of Florida's scoring sprees in its last two games, against Georgia and Miami, have revived memories of Florida teams of a decade ago.

"When the 'Gators trounced Miami, 46-6, Saturday night, they ran up the highest score a Florida team has made since that memorable 1930 afternoon when Florida whipped Georgia Tech, 55-7 in Atlanta.

"Against Georgia the Saturday before, when the 'Gators chalked up an 19-13 victory, it was the largest score Florida had run up against the Bulldogs since 1929's 18-6 victory in Jacksonville. Only once since that contest has the Florida score against Georgia been in double figures, and that was in 1932 when Georgia won, 33-12."

Wright is right. The Florida team is good. It was good last year, lacking only a co-ordinated offense. The 'Gators had one of the best defensive records in the country last season.

Coach Lieb started out in September changing the 'Gators over from the Pitt to the Notre Dame. And the results have been amazing. The 'Gators have been transferred into a high-scoring unit. They might, conceivably, offer Tech strong opposition.

Freshies Tangle

There'll be a little head-butting out at Grant Field this afternoon when the freshmen of Tech and Georgia collide.

The spirit of revenge is strong in the Baby Jackets. Georgia's point-a-minute freshmen won last year, 33 to 0.

Long ago it became unnecessary to drum on the charitable angles—the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children collects the entire proceeds—because the game sold itself as a game.

No one hardly knows what to expect today. Tech has a lot of fine backs, as Georgia had last year. And Tech has what is thought to be a better line than the Bullpup forward wall of a year ago.

It is a highly interesting clash because no one really knows what's going to happen. Just how good are the Georgia freshmen? The only back who has had any publicity at all is Gus Letchas, from Thomasville. Little is known of the line.

As pointed out many times, the game is merely a smaller edition of the clash between the Tech and Georgia varsities. And it always is interesting to followers of the schools to obtain a preview of future varsity stars.

Championship

In no wise to be construed as a counter-attraction, Morris Brown, moving steadily ahead to a southern colored championship, takes on Clark at Ponce de Leon park this afternoon.

Morris Brown always plays on Thanksgiving Day. And there will be a great Thanksgiving if the Wolverines overcome Clark. This one victory is all that's needed for the southern title.

The Wolverines enter the game as a favorite and no doubt are cognizant of the numerous upsets the BATTLIN' BULLPUPS—The big question of this Thanksgiving Day is, "Can this Georgia freshman eleven stop the great Tech yearling backs in the annual Scottish

BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE BIG CHANGE

As Jimmy Crowley, of Fordham, and several other noted coaches pointed out some time back, there is a vast difference between October and November football, especially when traditional foes land together on the same field. The underdog is in an emotional mood that is easy to churn up. The expected winner isn't.

Once in a while teams come along, such as Minnesota, Texas A. & M., Stanford, Boston College and Tennessee, which can hold about the same pace all year. But not very often. And even these are not entirely safe—certainly no safer than Cornell looked to be against Dartmouth or Duke looked to be against North Carolina.

Last Saturday against Alabama Georgia Tech fans got an idea of just how valuable Big Red Muerth is to their team. For it was then the big red-headed tackle from Chattanooga got back into the lineup following a two weeks' lay-off because of an injured knee.

Muerth was lost for the Duke game. And Tech was defeated, 41-7. Red didn't play in the Kentucky game. And the Jackets lost again, 26-7. But he did play against the Crimson Tide and Tech lost again, but only by a single point, 14-13.

Now Muerth is all set to play against Florida Saturday and judging from his work in the scrimmage yesterday he is ready to play the best game of his career.

TOUGH ON FROSH. The 200-pound left tackle started the scrimmage against the Freshmen and while he was in there life was extremely unkind to the yearlings and their Florida offense. He rushed passers. He spilled ball carriers behind the line time after time. In short and as Line Coach Tharpe remarked, "He played it as it ought to be played."

However, there was little else about the drill to please coaches. Vax Jordan turned in a good job at his guard position, but that was about all. The rest of the team appeared a bit sluggish. The backs were weak against passes and large holes were opened in the line by opposing red-shirts.

Coach Bill Alexander interrupted the scrimmage twice to give his backs instructions on how to stop the Florida aerial attack. The tosses of the freshmen were well thrown and the receivers were in the open on a lot of plays which, if they had been thrown by the 'Gators, would have meant touchdowns.

Stress Pass Defense. Realizing that the 'Gators will be shooting the works for the game in an effort to beat both Georgia and Tech the same year, Coach Alex is expecting them to fire plenty of passes and therefore he plans to devote a lot of this morning's workout to that phase of the game.

Because of the Tech-Georgia freshman battle this afternoon, the varsity will drill this morning and then attend the fresh classic in the afternoon.

Friday's workout will be light with nothing more than signal drills and some punting on schedule.

The Jackets are in fine condition for the battle. Big Jim Wright, who was hurt in the Alabama game, returned to practice and took part in the rough work.

And George Webb, who suffered a sprained ankle in Tuesday's scrimmage, was back at his right end position, feeling none the worse from his taped ankle.

Every man on the squad will be ready for service if necessary. Jack Hancock, wingback, got a lick on his leg and left the scrimmage but he will be ready to go by Saturday.

'Gators Rain Passes, Sharpen Defense. GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Passes, passes and more passes were thrown by the Florida 'Gators here this afternoon as they sharpened their weapons for a football duel with Georgia Tech at Atlanta Saturday.

Red Harrison and Sophomore Fendren Mitchell, Florida's No. 1 passing combination, played pitch and catch a good part of the afternoon. Coach Tom Lieb ended the workout with a defensive drill against Georgia Tech plays as run by freshmen.

The team physician said Deal was not in condition to play after an injured arm bothered him after a workout yesterday. Deal, one of the South's finest fullbacks, suffered a pained elbow tendon in the Georgia Tech game several weeks ago.

After a light scrimmage this afternoon, Auburn's Tigers, 35 of them, entrained for Boston and their clash with the Boston College Eagles Saturday.

Included in the 35 were Chester Bulger, rugged 220 pound tackle. He has been ailing since the Mississippi State game because of Bril's disease while Deal pulled a tendon in his left arm in the Georgia Tech game.

Bulger is definitely expected to see action against the Eagles. Dick McGowan, star Tiger left halfback, showed good form in today's workout, running and passing well.

Cornell and Pennsylvania I ran into a flock of football coaches who were discussing the coming Pennsylvania-Cornell game.

The main argument was this—"Will the Dartmouth game lift

Tech Frosh Backfield To Test Georgia Line

Crowd of 25,000 Expected To See Colorful Charity Struggle at Grant Field.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

A spectacular running attack against a stubborn defense is expected today when Georgia Tech and Georgia meet on Grant Field at 2:30 o'clock in the annual freshman football classic of the nation.

Boasting a host of great backfield material, the Baby Jackets are heavily favored to win the battle and even up the series at four games all. If the weather is good, a crowd of nearly 25,000 is expected to watch the classic, played every year for the sole benefit of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

But a real battle is promised. It's always a dogfight when the two schools get together in any sport and the freshmen always give their best to bring victory to their team.

In the seven-year history of the classic only one game has been a runaway and that was last year when the Bullpups rode back to Atlanta with a 33-0 victory on the flying feet of Frankie Sinkwich, Brookier Blanton and a host of other brilliant backs.

LARGEST MARGIN. Up until that time the largest margin of victory was 13 points and that came back in 1933, the first game, which Georgia won, 13-0. Otherwise, the contests have been thrillers, most of them decided by a touchdown or less.

However, this year's Tech squad is anxious to erase the unpleasant memories of 1939 and will do everything possible to score as impressive a victory as possible.

Pat McHugh, a rapid runner from Notre Dame prep; Little Davey Eldredge, one of the most publicized high school backs in the country last year at Miami High, and Atlanta's Bullet Bill Paschal, 190-pound tailback from Tech High, will lead the Baby Jacket offense against the tough Bullpup line.

These three boys are as good as any three the point-a-minute lads of Athens had last year. In addition there are Al Faulkner, a blocking back from Jacksonville; Ben Cogburn, of Tech High, and Alvin McDonald, of Marist.

But the backfield is by no means all of the Tech team. The line is big and fast. It is led by Ed Ryckley, 200-pound, 10-second guard from Marist; Jack Jordan, another guard from Boys' High; Preston West, All-State tackle from Tech High, and Mutt Man-

Vols Drill Hard, Fear 'Cat Jinx Which Ruined 3 Perfect Years

By DON WHITEHEAD.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 20. (AP)—That old gridiron ghost, gaunt and battered, is walking again up in the Blue Grass land where the sun shines bright and the young folks roll on the little cabin floor.

It's the famed Kentucky jinx that rises each November to haunt Tennessee's glowing hopes of an undefeated, untied football season and a Bowl bid.

And once again, come Saturday, it will be the Kentucky Wildcats and their jinx against Tennessee's terrific Volunteers, striving toward their third successive undefeated, untied season.

The Volunteers bared the jinx last year under a 19-to-0 victory and went on the Rose Bowl—but no loyal Tennessee fan can forget the times the Kentuckians have spoiled the Volunteers' record.

The Wildcats did it in 1928, 1929 and 1931, playing the highly favored Vols to a tie in each contest to ruin perfect campaigns.

COLORFUL SPECTACLE.

The game is a razzle-dazzle, colorful spectacle each year, one of those Hatfield-McCoy feuds that packs 'em in by the thousands. Saturday's game will be no exception. A crowd of more than 20,000 is expected.

Ab Kirwan's Blue Grass lads are better than average this year and pack a steeper running attack to go with the bullet passing of little Ernie Allen, a fugitive from Tennessee who completed 13 out of 18 passes against the Vols last year.

Major Bob Neyland, never one to underestimate a foe, drilled his orange-clad warriors in a defense designed to stop the Kentucky attack both by land and air.

ONE-TWO PUNCH.

If he follows his usual procedure, he will throw the old one-two punch at the invaders, giving them Bob Fox and the first team in the first quarter, and then little Johnny Butler and the No. 2 team in the second.

Eight opponents have fallen before the versatile, crushing Vol attack this season and the Kentuckians are rated to be the ninth, leaving only off-beaten Vanderbilt in the path of the Vols' victory march.

The Fox-Butler combination has been the potent pay-off factor in the Tennessee drive along the front-line power contributed by those able guards, Bob Sufferidge and Ed Molinski. Tackle Abe Shires and End Ed Cifers.

Tennessee was rated a "sure thing" against Kentucky, but football upsets are a dime-a-dozen these days and the old jinx may be in there working for the Wildcats once again.

'BIM' ARRIVES.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Bimelech, ranked by many as the outstanding horse of 1940, was brought to Miami today. Colonel E. R. Bradley is expected to enter Bimelech in the $50,000 Widener Challenge trophy race to be run at Hialeah Park March 1.

DOUBLE DEFEAT.

GREENSBORO, Ga., Nov. 20.—The Union Point High school Blue Devils basketball team opened their 1940-41 cage season Tuesday night by dropping two games to the strong Eatonton High school squads. The girls lost, 18-15, and the boys, 32-13.

Record Crowd Expected For G. M. C. Game Today

Cadets, Belmont Abbey Will Play for Southeastern Junior College Crown at Milledgeville.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 20.—Injuries and illness, plague of all football coaches, descended on the camp of the Georgia Military College Bulldogs in abundance yesterday and definitely placed the Cadets in the underdog position for their battle here Thursday with the powerful Abbey Crusaders, of Belmont, N. C., for the southeastern junior college title. A record crowd is expected to see the contest.

Coach Graham Batchelor announced that Johnny Jones, plunging fullback; Billy Russell, stellar halfback; Earl Bergen, huge tackle, and Braden, reserve guard, will probably be lost for the battle.

Jones Definitely Out

Jones, a powerhouse on offense, is definitely out of the title go. He is in a local hospital suffering with an infected throat and will be unable to even view the game from the sidelines.

Russell, one of the best backs seen here in many years, is expected to see little service. He has never fully recovered from a severe siege of influenza several weeks ago and whether he gets into the game depends upon the decision of the college physician.

Bergen and Braden are suffering with injuries and are doubtful participants.

Batchelor Worried

"I am plenty worried about this game," Coach Batchelor said after practice. "Even with my team intact, it would be a hard job to handle Belmont Abbey. With four of my best players on the ailing list anything can happen and probably will."

Cantrell, hard-working reserve center, is scheduled to replace Jones in the Cadet backfield.

Despite the gloomy outlook of Coach Batchelor, local enthusiasm is running high. Elaborate preparations have been made to care for an anticipated record crowd. Tick-

Phi Delta Thetas Debate Grid Tilt

A debate on who is going to win the Tech-Florida game will be the feature of the Phi Delta Theta Alumni Club's meeting at the Tavern tearoom Friday night.

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock.

ets have been on sale in Milledgeville and Macon since Monday.

Crusaders Drill

Headed by Coach Howard Wheeler, the Crusaders arrived today and went through a light workout. Thirty-three players made the trip.

Coach Wheeler announced that four Augusta young ladies will serve as sponsors for the Crusaders at the game. They are Misses Dorothy Boyle, Clara Cotter, Miriam Arthur and Anne Cotter.

GMC sponsors will be Misses Lawanda Curry and Anne Pennington.

Tickets will go on sale at four windows at Davenport field at 1:15 p. m. Thursday. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. (E.S.T.).

ARMY-NAVY.

WEST POINT, Nov. 20. (AP)—Maybe it's because of the team's none too impressive records or it may be because loyal graduates are scattered more than ever in far-flung army posts or with the fleet on the high seas—but anyway tickets are still available for the Army-Navy Philadelphia game at Philadelphia, November 30.

Duke officials said Tennessee would be played here next year, but that the Aggies would take the Volunteers' spot on the 1942 card.

Friesell Asked To Work Next Cornell-Dartmouth Contest

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 20. (AP)—Coach Carl Snively, of Cornell, today wired W. H. (Red) Friesell Jr. that Cornell athletic officials had asked that he be assigned to officiate in the Cornell-Dartmouth 1941 football game.

"Perhaps you would be pleased to know that Cornell wholeheartedly approved your acknowledgment of error and retains even higher regard for your competency and integrity as an official. Have requested the central office to assign you to Cornell-Dartmouth 1941 game if possible," wired Snively.

Friesell Monday admitted he erred in permitting Cornell to have a fifth down in Saturday's game with Dartmouth.

Hard-Luck Vandy Due for Break Against Tide, Vols

Passing by Sinkwich Features Bulldog Drill

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 20.—Frankie Sinkwich's deadly passing and Woodrow Brown's receiving featured today's football practice at the University of Georgia.

Coach Wallace Butts sent his boys through a long drill that was void of rough work, taking advantage of the layout Saturday to spend a long time on fundamentals.

Winding up with a passing drill against the Red Devils, the Bulldogs looked considerably improved over Tuesday's sluggish scrimmage. Sinkwich was throwing the ball better than at any time this year.

Tommy Green and George Poschner, regular tackle and end, respectively, watched the practice from the sideline, and Walter Ruark, scheduled to be a first-string man since he was shifted from left to right guard, spent the afternoon in the training room. Otherwise, the entire squad was in full regalia and got in some work.

Green has a pulled tendon in his ankle and Poschner a sprained knee, but both will be ready to go by early next week and are sure to see plenty of service in the Tech game providing they suffer no further reversals.

Ruark pulled several muscles in his side in a defensive scrimmage Tuesday, but he too will be okay by the first of the week.

Coach Butts planned a very light drill for his charges Thanksgiving Day, with only a few calisthenics and brief drills on passing and punting being planned.

Hard work will be resumed Friday, but after that there will be no further rough drills before the Tech battle.

Only Tech Won Real Edge Over Sanders' Team

Commodores Gave Rebels, Princeton, Kentucky Hard Fight.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 20.—(AP)—If it's that kind of a fight known as Luck distributes her favors, those Southeastern Conference football titans, Alabama and Tennessee, might well be concerned at the utter disregard with which she has treated Coach Red Sanders and his Vanderbilt team this year.

For the Crimson Tide and the Vols will furnish the last two chances for the lady to act more kindly toward the slight, soft-spoken Commodore skipper, who but for a few faithful "ifs" might have had at this time the surprise team of the south.

The reserve-scanty Vanderbilt squad could ill afford to lose any men at any time this season, yet Sanders has seen at least one of his players, a number of them key regulars, carried to the hospital at one time or another.

He himself had a hospital siege when an appendectomy laid him low two days before the Kentucky game.

BAD WEATHER.

All this on top of an unsatisfactory spring practice, delayed and hampered by a change of coaching personnel and bad weather.

The Commodores have done all expected of them. At the start of his first season as head coach for his Alma Mater, the youthful Sanders predicted his charges would win only three games—from Washington and Lee, Sewanee and Tennessee Tech.

This they did handsily—but it was when Vandy was on the verge of doing the unexpected that Lady Luck ignored them.

Only Georgia Tech outplayed Sanders' lads decisively, winning by three touchdowns. Against Princeton, Kentucky and Mississippi all rated in advance as probable two-to-four touchdown winners, the Commodores performed in a manner that caused some observers to take them as Vanderbilt's pluckiest team in history.

LEG WEARY.

A leg-weary backfield failed by a foot of making first down inside Princeton's 10-yard line during a late march and Vandy bowed by a point. A 15-yard penalty to its 8-yard stripe broke the back of a line that held Kentucky through 58 minutes, and helped the Wildcats to a 10-0 victory. Ole Miss gained a one-touchdown triumph with two scores in the last six minutes after being outplayed until then.

Uncomplainingly Sanders watched his team fail in games when a slight loss of fortune might have given it a major victory. Not once has he mentioned an "if."

Patience he hopes for the lady's smile and prepares his lightly-regarded team for Alabama and Tennessee.

Morris Brown, Clark To Play For Loop Title

Atlanta's top colored football attraction will be staged in Ponce de Leon park this afternoon at 2 o'clock when Morris Brown College and Clark University clash in a game that will decide the championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic conference composed of 13 leading institutions throughout the southern states.

Not only will the title of the conference be decided in this grudge battle, but also the municipal championship, which holds much interest in Atlanta. Clark and Morris Brown won the right to play for the title in their decisive triumphs over Morehouse College by 8-0 and 16-0, respectively.

The largest crowd to witness a colored game here is expected.

Baby Jackets Favored Today

ning, All-State center from Albany.

The Bullpups have no such backs as the Baby Jackets boast. Only Gus Letchas, of Thomasville, has received anything like their publicity. But he is a real three-man gang. He can run, punt and pass. Fans will remember him in the All-Star prep game here last August.

The Bullpup line is another proposition. It is led by two tackling fools, Bill Godwin and Clyde Erhardt, both centers. Then there are several fine ends, including Atlanta's Duck Conner for his 80-yard touchdown sprint and Captain John Brown, both of Boys' High.

Jim Lee, a guard who played with Ryckley and McDonald at Marist, is another Atlantan who will be in the starting lineup.

Every dollar of the gate receipts goes to the Scottish Rite hospital. There are no expenses to be taken care of. Newspapermen, officials and everybody but the players pay their way into the stadium. There will be plenty of tickets on sale at the gate.

'40 season has brought. Such a thought ought to keep 'em on their toes. And such a thought also is good for an inspired performance from Clark. It is expected to be a whale of a game.

Tigers Travel

Auburn's touring Plainsmen paused in Atlanta long enough to pick up a couple of football writers and then continued the long journey to Boston last night.

There may be a terrific upset in the making. The Plainsmen have been plagued by injuries to key men but are coming up to the battle of Boston in fairly good shape. Chester Bulger, one of the south's better tackles, has returned to the team.

If it seems the Auburn team has been a little disappointing, don't forget what happened to the first-string tackles, Bulger, Gordon MacEachern and John Chalkley. All have been out the better part of the season. Loss of Rufus Deal is a terrific blow.

Even so, Auburn may be in the best shape of the year for the behemoths of oston College. It ranks as one of the top intersectional clashes. A Sugar Bowl bid will belong to Auburn College if Auburn is successfully hurled.

Coach Jack Meagher will give the boys a workout this afternoon at Lynchburg, Va. They'll arrive in Boston Friday afternoon and work out at Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox. The game will be played in Fenway Park.

Elmer George Salter, Auburn's excellent public relations agent, is holding out high hopes that the Plainsmen will prance home ahead. A year ago Boston College scored twice in the last five minutes of the game to beat Auburn, 13-7.

Peacock Battles Tallahassee Team

Peacock's six-man football team leaves this morning for Tallahassee, Fla., where they will battle the Florida High squad, champions of their league, Friday afternoon. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Peacock school has won three games and lost two. This will be their last game of the season. Florida High has won six games and lost only one.

Hapeville Bumps Marietta, 7 to 0

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—The Hapeville High eleven scored a touchdown on a freakish play late in the fourth quarter here tonight to down the Marietta High team, 7 to 0, in a tight, bitterly fought tilt.

With the oval in Hapeville's possession on Marietta's 10-yard line, Billy Sirmon, Marietta back, intercepted a pass from Haney, intended for Mote. Sirmon, however, fumbled on the 6-yard line, where he caught it, and Haney, who had thrown the aerial, caught it in mid-air and stepped over the goal for the game-winning score. Marietta threatened early in the first quarter, and Hapeville made several threats.

Berman, Ezell, Carroll Return To Grid Wars

Marist, Commercial To Play in Macon, Augusta Today.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS. Not since Grandpa drank the cider barrel dry and rode all night on the merry-go-round has anyone been going around in circles like Shorty Doyal has been this week in getting his undefeated Boys' High eleven ready for their December 5 joust with equally unbeaten Miami High in Miami.

First, three of his best players who have not seen much action this year, began working out with the squad again this week and are rounding into shape. Alfred Berman, fullback, and Bub Ezell, halfback—both were forced out earlier this year with emergency appendectomies—and Ralph Carroll, one of the Purples' best tackles, who was the victim of a broken shoulder, are back in harness and will be ready to face the Stingarees when the Hurricane tries to breeze through them.

Second, Shorty is convinced of that story of the lady's cat returning four times after being taken to the four corners of the state. His jet black feline, "Blackout," is back home after being lost ever since the early season game with Marist. The good luck cat breezed in the other day, and now Doyal is doubly certain his eleven will be able to take the measure of the Miamians.

With the G. I. A. A. champs resting today, Marist and Commercial hit the road for Thanksgiving battles today. The Cadets take on the rejuvenated Lanier Poets in Macon and Commercial goes to Augusta to pick a fight with Richmond Academy's strong forces. Little Fulton High journeys to LaGrange for a Turkey Day tilt too, and Richardson invades Canton.

Other games of the week for the locals include a Friday melee for Bud Harris' G. M. A. M Pine Bluff, Ark., and a Saturday tussle for Tech High against Charlotte High in the latter city. Both local outfits will be underdogs.

Polo Battle Set At Ft. Mac Today

A farewell match between the "Clevelanders" and Fort McPherson polo teams will be played at the Fort Mac field today at 3 o'clock.

This match will mark the close of the 1940 polo season here. Fred Tejan, famous poloist, who has played in several matches here with the Cleveland team, will again lead them in their match against the soldiers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(A)—

The bond market wound up its affairs for the Thanksgiving holiday today in a reactionary frame of mind.

Losses predominated throughout the list and ranged from small fractions to around 3 points in the more speculative loans while persistent buying edged two higher priced groups into new peaks for 1940.

Buyers appeared timid and highly selective from the start and by noon those wishing to dispose of a large assortment of rails and utility bond issues had to accept substantial losses before the market prevailed at Tuesday's close.

Denmark 4s advanced 7 points to 39, but losses were more numerous than gains in other foreign dollar issues.

Defense Labor Task Tackled By Atlantian

J. E. McDaniel Aids National Council in Southeast.

By CHARLES GILMORE

If J. E. McDaniel does his job well, southeastern industry will have no difficulty in filling $208,000,000 worth of national defense orders.

In addition the job is proof in itself that the almost forgotten "good times" are either on the way back, or have already arrived riding on the wings of rearmament.

J. E. McDaniel, a former secret service agent and now dean of Georgia Tech's co-op school, has been appointed district representative of the National Defense Council by order of William Knudsen himself.

The job is a big one. McDaniel must stay in contact with industries holding national defense orders in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee. He must see that these industries have a sufficient supply of skilled labor to fill the contracts efficiently and of great importance—on time.

Labor Shortage

There is a critical shortage of skilled labor over the nation, and especially in the South, where industry plays second fiddle to agriculture.

That is why the defense council set up district representatives throughout the nation, one of whom is J. E. McDaniel, who because of his position as dean of the co-op school at Tech is on speaking terms with every leading industrialist in the Southeast. The leading shortages at present are skilled machinists of all kinds, foremen and plant superintendents. When Mr. McDaniel runs into an industry that needs 50 machinists, or a half dozen foremen, he must supply them at once.

Despite relief rolls and employment agencies bulging with clients, supplying skilled labor when and where it is needed is a full-time job.

Acute Problem
According to Mr. McDaniel, there is no skilled labor on relief or on file in state and federal employment offices. Likewise, foremen and superintendents who are trained to meet the national defense specifications are all well and happy at work.

Therein lies the rub. He can find plenty of unskilled labor and plenty of white-collar men. But ask for some men skilled in shipbuilding or lens grinding or floor management, and you have an acute labor problem.

But Mr. McDaniel, who decoded secret messages in the World War, attacks his problem just as he does a cryptogram. If he can't find a solution, he makes one.

In other words, if he can't find enough "chippers" or "loftsmen" to keep a ship building yards working, Mr. McDaniel sets up a training school in conjunction with some nearby engineering school, and ingeniously educates enough men to fill the bill.

When he does that, Mr. McDaniel is known as the N. D. C. regional adviser for engineering education. Otherwise, he is just a district representative who makes certain there is a slip between the order and the ship.

Employment Tripled.
He cites a plant in Baltimore that manufactures mountings for antiaircraft guns. Ordinarily, the plant employs 6,000 skilled workmen and foremen; with new orders it requires more than 21,000 such men—over three times as many.

If this factory were in Mr. McDaniel's jurisdiction, he would first study all available employment agency lists, colleges and universities, vocational schools and civil service waiting lists. If these sources provide enough men, the particular problem is solved.

If there is still a shortage, Mr. McDaniel heads for the nearest engineering school. There he confers with deans and department heads, and eventually sets up a special course or two which is open to likely candidates for special degrees.

These men—unskilled usually—are brought in, carefully investigated as to character and loyalty, and then trained to fill the vacancies in the industry. He has just come home from a tour through Tennessee. He found a few shortages, but all engineering schools in the state expressed a willingness to co-operate in setting up the special courses.

The shortages in skilled labor are caused, Mr. McDaniel says, by the huge expansion program undertaken by those industries with defense orders. Ordinarily, there is enough labor of this kind, and foremen, to supply the demand; but with expansions such as the Baltimore plant is undergoing, increasing in the nation, the supply is bound to run out eventually.

In the states covered by Mr. McDaniel, the council has placed $208,000,000 worth of defense orders up to October 15. Since then, many hundreds of thousands of dollars more have been spent in this area; and that is only a beginning.

A large part of the orders are placed with textile plants, making uniforms and tent materials. Steel and shipbuilding and timber contracts also rank high.

When he left the Secret Service Department, Bureau of Cryptography, in 1920, Mr. McDaniel came to Georgia Tech and since 1927 has headed the co-op department which trains men in the skilled vocations.

He describes three "bottle-necks" standing in the way of rapid rearmament programs. The first is a bottleneck of materials. Such important items as chromium, tungsten, tin, rubber and manganese are all imported—and their importation is being curtailed by the war. Although the National Defense Council is attempting to lay in a stock of these materials, the slow supply may hamper orders.

The second bottleneck is one of red tape, the slow process needed by the government to make legal a national defense order, and then place it with a firm.

The skilled labor shortage is the third bottleneck, and the one in which Mr. McDaniel is interested. In the industrial north it is acute, but in the south he looks for little trouble.

A Three Days' Cough is Your Danger Signal

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

3 New World Empires Seen After Conflict

German-Dominated Europe Not One of Them, Professor Says.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Three great world empires will emerge from the present World War, and German-dominated Europe will not be one of them, according to Dr. Clinton Howard, professor of history at the University of California.

The three empires, which are already in the making, he said, will be as follows:

1. An Anglo-American empire which is federal in structure, and essentially maritime in culture, having sea power as its great means of communications and weapon of defense and offense.

2. A Russo-Siberian empire of as yet largely undeveloped resources and personalities.

3. Some type of a Sino-Japanese empire with either group predominating, but just which is uncertain at the present time.

Dr. Howard believes an Anglo-American empire may emerge in one of two ways:

1. Through closer co-operation of the British Empire and the United States.

2. In the event the British Empire should go down, through the reorganization of the English-speaking parts of the empire around the United States.

Results of War.
"The results of the present war," Dr. Howard stated, "will leave Europe broken economically and exhausted spiritually. Some parts of it may come under German control, but what is more likely, it may fall under the hegemony of the Anglo-American and Russo-Siberian empires."

"In any event, Europe's control of the overseas world is probably broken and done. She may continue as a cultural center, but her political and industrial importance will be destroyed.

"German industrial capitalism will be crushed by the powerful neighbors which flank her, the Anglo-American group and the Russo-Siberian."

List Illinois Pilot In RAF Injured

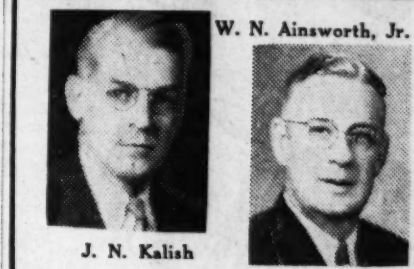

Mrs. Phillip Leckrone, of Salem, Ill., is awaiting further word regarding her husband who, according to a brief cable message, was injured in service with the Eagle Squadron of the Royal Air Force in England.

She was informed he had suffered shock and concussion and that a letter would follow. Leckrone, one of the first residents of Salem to begin flying for sport, joined the American squadron with the RAF several weeks ago and had been credited with shooting down three German planes. The Leckrones have two children.
